APPENDIX 1 - APPENDIX TO MINISTERIAL GUIDANCE: INFORMATION ON LEGISLATION ................................................................. 185
APPENDIX 2 ............................................................................................ 186
1 About this guidance

1.1 This is the fourth part of the comprehensive guidance for EROs on planning for and delivering well-run electoral registration services, and focuses on what EROs will need to do in order to maintain the register throughout the year. It complements Part 3: Annual Canvass, which focuses specifically on activity during the annual canvass period.

1.2 The guidance is directed towards the ERO and the duties they carry out. As these duties may, in practice, be carried out by deputies and/or appointed staff, we use the term ‘you’ throughout this guidance to mean the ERO and whoever is carrying out the ERO’s functions on their behalf. Throughout this document we use ‘must’ to refer to a specific legal requirement and ‘may / should’ for recommended practice.

1.3 It has been developed in close consultation with members of the Society of Local Authority Chief Executives (SOLACE), the Association of Electoral Administrators (AEA), the Scottish Assessors Association (SAA), the UK Electoral Coordination and Advisory Board (ECAB) and the Elections, Registration and Referendums Working Group (ERRWG). It reflects the ERO’s legal obligations and what we, the AEA, SOLACE, the SAA, the ECAB and the ERRWG believe that EROs should expect of their staff in planning for and delivering well-run electoral registration services.

The guidance relating to the Scottish Elections (Reduction of Voting Age) Act 2015 has been developed in close consultation with the SAA, AEA and the Electoral Management Board for Scotland (EMB), and reflects what the SAA, AEA and EMB believe EROs in Scotland should expect of their staff in planning for and delivering well-run electoral registration services in relation to young electors.

Any specific considerations or differences arising from this legislation are highlighted in break-out boxes like these throughout the guidance.

1.4 The guidance is based on the legislation listed in paragraph 1.8 of Part 1 – Planning for the delivery of electoral registration activity. Whenever there are any changes to the legislation, we will provide further guidance and support to EROs and update the relevant guidance Parts as appropriate. Legislative references are included throughout the guidance as endnotes. As there are two versions of the Representation of the People Regulations 2001: one for England and Wales, and one for Scotland; both versions of the legislation are referenced. For example, “Regulation 26(1)(j) 2001 Regulations, RPR (Scotland) 2001” is referring to Regulation 26(1)(j) in both the England and Wales version and the Scotland version of the 2001 Regulations.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

1.5 This guidance does not take account of any differences in approach to the canvass permitted in specified areas under the Electoral Registration Pilot Scheme (England and Wales) Order 2017, the Electoral Registration Pilot Scheme (Scotland) Order 2017, and the Electoral Registration Pilot Scheme (England) (Amendment) Order 2017.

1.6 You will find references to the performance standards framework embedded throughout the guidance. The overall objective of the performance standards framework is to support EROs in planning for and delivering well-run electoral registration services. The framework was developed around key outcomes from the perspective of ensuring that all eligible people are able to participate in the electoral process, should they wish to do so, and of achieving electoral registers that are as accurate (including ensuring no fraudulent entries on the electoral register) and complete as possible.

1.7 Our guidance, tools and templates, along with support provided by our teams across England, Scotland and Wales, will help you to plan for and deliver well-run electoral registration services. The tools and templates we have made available are highlighted in break-out boxes throughout the guidance.

We have been working with the AEA and the SAA to identify specific examples of good practice in electoral registration. The following resources have been published on our website and are highlighted in break-out boxes throughout the guidance:

- Use of tablets in electoral registration
- Communications
- Reaching care home residents
- Effective personal canvassing
- Encouraging responses
- Reaching students
- Effective use of available data
- Effective management of registration processes

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 also contains examples of good practice in relation to data protection.
Ministerial guidance

1.8  The Minister\(^{ii}\) has the power to issue guidance on the way that verification results are interpreted, and you must by law have regard to any such guidance. The Minister has issued such guidance and we have incorporated that guidance into this document so that all the guidance you need is available in one place. Unlike the Commission’s guidance, the Ministerial guidance does not use the term ‘you’ to refer to the ERO.

1.9  This guidance is clearly demarcated in this document by the use of a heading at the start of each section, and a coloured outline, as shown in the example below:

\[\text{Ministerial guidance}\]

\[\text{This guidance has been issued by the Minister under Section 1(3) of, and Paragraph 2(1) of Schedule 1 to, the Electoral Registration and Administration Act 2013.}\]

EROs must, by law, have regard to this guidance.

\(^{ii}\) The Secretary of the State or the Minister for the Cabinet Office.
2 Encouraging individuals to register throughout the year

2.1 You have a duty under Section 9A of the Representation of the People Act 1983 to take all necessary steps to comply with the duty to maintain the electoral register and to ensure, as far as is reasonably practicable, that all those eligible – and no others – are registered in it.

2.2 A proactive approach is required throughout the year and not just during the canvass period in order to maintain accurate and complete registers, ensuring as far as possible that all eligible persons are on the register and that all non-eligible persons are removed.

2.3 As part of your duty to take all necessary steps to maintain the register you should undertake activity throughout the year to identify people who are not registered and encourage them to register. In particular, you should have plans in place to carry out registration activity in advance of scheduled elections or referendums to reach electors and encourage them to register to vote.

Reviewing your strategy and plans

2.4 Your public engagement strategy and registration plans will set out your approach to identifying and targeting potential new electors.

2.5 It is important that they remain living documents and evolve as you learn from your activities. You should use all available data to keep these under review. Keeping your plans under review and evaluating your activity will enable you to understand whether your local challenges are being met and to revise your plan accordingly in order to help target your resources where they are most needed.

In this guidance, we use the term ‘encourage’ in a wide sense. It encompasses everything that you can do to encourage an application before or after formally inviting someone to register.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Sharing good practice
Information on and examples of utilising management tools, see our resource ‘Effective management of registration processes’.

To achieve the outcomes set out in the performance standards, you will need to ensure that you evaluate and update your registration plan as appropriate to deliver your public engagement strategy. To demonstrate how the outcomes have been met, your overall project planning documentation, including a risk register, should be kept under regular review and include:

- The objectives and success measures to be used to monitor the impact of activity
- The resource requirements of the activity you plan to carry out
- A timetable of deliverables and tasks for year round activity
- The partnership activity you have planned
- The evaluation measures you have in place for all activities carried out.

Maintaining the accuracy and completeness of the register after publication

2.6 To ensure that the quality of the register is maintained throughout the year it is important that you identify and target any unregistered residents, keep your register under review by processing any amendments to an elector’s registration, and take steps to remove electors who are no longer eligible.

To achieve the outcomes set out in performance standard 2, you will need to use available information sources to identify existing electors who may no longer be eligible and ensure that all necessary steps are taken to remove that elector from the register. The number of reviews of registration undertaken and the total number of electors deleted from the register will help to demonstrate how the outcomes have been met.

In addition, you will need to use available information sources to identify and target new electors, and ensure that all necessary steps are taken to add them to the register. The number of electors added to the register and how the applications originated, will help to demonstrate how the outcomes have been met.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Sharing good practice
Information on and examples of how some EROs are utilising existing data sources to help ensure that registers are as accurate and complete as possible, see our resource ‘Effective use of available data’.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 also contains examples of good practice in relation to data protection.

Sign-posting of application forms and application channels

2.7 As part of your general engagement work you should make sure that potential electors know how to apply to register. You should ensure that you:

- provide a clear link to the online registration form on any relevant pages of your website (and the council’s, if that is separate) – including, for example, alongside any online system for setting up new council tax accounts – and on the websites of partner organisations wherever electoral registration may be relevant
- wherever you provide such a link, set out the alternative registration channels for those who cannot, or do not wish to, apply online
- liaise with local parties and candidates to disseminate information on how to register and how to obtain application forms
- liaise with other local partners you work with to promote registration to include a link to the online form - www.gov.uk/register-to-vote - in any materials they may distribute to or use to communicate with residents, as well as information about the alternative registration channels for those who cannot, or do not wish to, apply online
- provide a clear link to the online application form at the end of any process you provide for responding to HEFs online

To meet the outcomes set out in performance standard 2, you will need to ensure there is provision of comprehensive, accessible information on how to register and ensure there are clear response mechanisms in place for electors to use if assistance is required. To help to demonstrate that the outcomes have been met, you will need to be able to give details of how feedback from electors is managed, including action taken and any changes to plans in response.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Sharing good practice

Information on and examples of communication methods adopted by some EROs to motivate and engage people to take action can be found in our resource ‘Communications’. In addition, examples of working with specific groups can be found in our resources, ‘Reaching students’ and ‘Reaching care home residents’.

What one person can do to help another to make a registration application

We have produced a factsheet for care homes in England and Wales and in Scotland that you can adapt to reflect your particular circumstances. The factsheet is based on our assisted applications guidance for England and Wales and for Scotland which details what one person can do to support another to register.

Identifying and targeting new electors

2.8 There are several tools available to you to support you in your duty to maintain the register by identifying and targeting new electors, which are set out in the following section.

To achieve the outcome set out in performance standard 2, you will need to utilise available direct contact methods to determine the accuracy of entries on the register and encourage applications from new electors. To help to demonstrate that the outcomes have been met, your public engagement strategy should include:

- how you will use the channels available to reach identified groups, including direct contact routes, local partners, media and advertising
- evaluation measures for all contact methods used, and partnership work and activities undertaken.

Sharing good practice

Information on and examples of how some EROs are utilising their registration stationary and materials to encourages responses, see our resource ‘Encouraging responses’.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Encouraging applications before giving an invitation to register

2.9 While you have a duty to give an invitation to register as soon as reasonably practicable and, in any event, within 28 calendar days of the date that you conclude that a person may be entitled to be registered, you could informally prompt an application to register to be made before giving a formal invitation to register. For example, if you have an e-mail address for the potential elector, you could send them a link to the online application form and information about the other available channels for registration. If the local authority has a contact centre you could arrange for information about how to register to be given by phone or email to people notifying the authority about a change of address. You should ensure that your processes still enable you to identify and invite to register other potential new electors who may be resident at the same address. If you have not already done so, you may want to consider trialling one or more of these approaches to understand how effective it is in practice in encouraging registration and reducing the number of electors you formally invite to register.

2.10 If an application is made before the end of the 28-day period in which an invitation to register must be given, the requirement to give a formal invitation no longer applies. Prompting an application to be made – in particular, an online application – has the potential, therefore, to reduce your costs. If you decide to informally prompt an application by promoting the available registration channels, you should do this as soon as possible once you have identified the person to allow time for the person to make an application before you give them a formal invitation.

2.11 You can also take steps to encourage an application to be made once you have given a formal invitation to register. This could also help to reduce costs by reducing the number of electors with whom you are required to undertake follow-up activity due to non-response to an invitation. However, there may be circumstances, such as immediately before an election, where you should not wait to formally invite people to register.

2.12 You should maintain a clear audit trail of potential new eligible electors that you have identified and the steps you have taken to encourage them to make an application. Your EMS system may provide the facility to do this. This will help to ensure that you comply with your duty to give an invitation to register where no application has been made within the 28-day period.

Sharing good practice

Swale Borough Council have successfully used a postcard-style colour-coded household notification card to encourage people who are not already registered to make an application. Further information on this is contained on our website.
Household notification letters

2.13 It is important that you continue to take steps to maximise the number of people included on the electoral registers. The period leading up to the next scheduled polls provides an opportunity to:

- encourage those people missing from the register to apply
- check that there are no inaccurate entries in your register

2.14 Sending a letter to all households showing who is registered to vote at that particular address has a number of clear benefits, all of which can contribute to helping EROs to ensure that their registers are as accurate and complete as possible ahead of the next scheduled polls:

- It will be a useful tool for prompting those who have not registered yet to do so.
- It will help to pick up those who have recently moved within or into the registration area.
- It will give residents an opportunity to check their details on the register are accurate.

2.15 This ‘household notification letter’ should ask those who live at the address to:

- register to vote if their name is not included on the letter, emphasising the ability to register online
- notify the ERO if any information on the letter is incorrect

2.16 In order to support this registration activity we have produced a template letter and accompanying FAQs that EROs can use for this purpose. The template is included in Appendix 2.

2.17 Where you have decided to send a household notification letter to a property, you should consider how to prompt a registration application to be made to reduce the need to give a formal invitation to register to any new person living at the address. This could be done by emphasising the option to apply to register online at www.gov.uk/register-to-vote, and telephone or in-person channels (if you offer these services), as well as by giving information on how paper application forms could be obtained. You should ensure that the household notification letter explains clearly the importance of returning any information where relevant and encourages registration applications where there are new electors, so that you can be confident that you have identified all potential new electors at the address.

2.18 In some instances it may be appropriate to include paper application forms with your household notification letter – for example, ahead of a registration deadline – so as to expedite the registration process for those requiring a paper form.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Timing

2.19 You will need to decide on when to send the household notification letter, taking into account when the exercise could have the most impact. The activity is likely to have a greater benefit the closer it is carried out to a scheduled election, helping to ensure your register is as accurate and complete as possible at the time of the poll(s), but at the same time you will need to balance this against the time needed to complete the administrative processes resulting from the activity and also any other work you will need to undertake in preparation for the poll(s).

2.20 Printer lead-in times will in practice influence the earliest time that the activity can start. You will need to liaise with your printers to establish the timescales for signing off proofs, sending data and getting the letters and envelopes printed and collated.

Maximising impact

2.21 You will also need to consider how you can maximise the impact of the letters. For example, how will the activity be supported by any local awareness work to make people aware of the letter and that they should be looking out for it? What local public awareness work can you undertake to promote your activity?

2.22 You don’t necessarily need to spend a lot of money to raise public awareness – for example, you can retweet tweets from the Electoral Commission’s official twitter account, and place information on the homepage of your local authority website. In addition, there are a range of public engagement resources available on the Commission’s website which could be used or developed as assets for future campaigns. These will be updated as appropriate ahead of scheduled polls, but include general guidance and suggestions which continue to be relevant and so may still be helpful in supporting your activity locally.

2.23 You will also need to consider what local public engagement work you can undertake. For example, what partners did you identify in your public engagement strategy and how can they help you? There are a range of partnership resources available on the Commission’s website which include practical suggestions for how you can involve partners in helping to get people registered. Political parties may also be able to support your registration activities as they have a stake in ensuring their supporters are registered and so they may be prepared to help spread the message for people to look out for the household notification letter.

2.24 You may also be able to maximise the impact of your household notification letter by linking it to any national public awareness campaign that the Commission may undertake in advance of scheduled polls. This will support the work you’re carrying out locally, with the branding providing a recognisable link with your household notification letters.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

2.25 You should also consider who else you will need to liaise with to effectively carry out the activity across the whole of your registration area. For example, you will need to liaise with university accommodation officers and managers/landlords of houses of multiple occupation (HMOs) on how best to carry out the activity in HMOs and student halls.

2.26 To limit the risk of potential confusion and electors becoming overwhelmed with communications from the ERO, you will need to think how the activity will fit in with other communications you will be sending to electors (e.g. absent vote signature refresh), as well as how it will interact with any known by-elections.

Resourcing

2.27 You need to ensure that you are properly resourced to carry out the activity. In particular, you will need to identify what resources you will need to put in place in order to be able to process any new registrations resulting from the write-out and to conduct registration reviews or seek a second piece of evidence where required to delete electors who are no longer resident at a particular address. You should also consider what arrangements you will put in place to deal with any enquiries from electors as a consequence of the letter.

How will you conduct the activity?

2.28 You will also need to decide on the practical arrangements for carrying out the activity. For example, will you print the letters in-house or use an external supplier? Will you use canvassers to deliver the letters, or use a postal service? How will this impact on cost and delivery times?

The envelope

2.29 Your first challenge will be to get householders to open the household notification letter. Our experience of user testing registration materials has shown that people are more likely to open an envelope if it looks official and is brown in colour. You can increase your chances of the envelope being opened by including text that emphasises the importance of the communication: e.g. ‘IMPORTANT INFORMATION ENCLOSED’.

2.30 Commission public awareness campaigns will use the ‘Your vote matters – don’t lose it’ branding. Reflecting this on the envelope will increase recognition and tie in any national registration message with your local one.

Letter

2.31 You are not required to use the canvass Household Enquiry Form (HEF) for the purposes of notifying households who is registered at that address. Neither the design nor the content of the household notification letter is prescribed, but you should ensure that the letter is easy to understand, with a clear explanation of what action, if any, householders need to take. As the household notification letter falls outside the statutory framework, no response is required and there is no penalty for not responding, and you are not legally required to carry out any follow-up processes. However, you could consider sending reminders and you should in any case carry out house-to-house, postal or other enquiries as are necessary in order to enable you to produce an accurate and complete register of electors and to meet your Section 9A duties.

2.32 The letter template we have produced (Appendix 2) has been kept as simple as possible to ensure that the key messages are communicated clearly. If you are considering producing your own letter, it should include the type of information that is included in our template, i.e.:

- information on why the letter is being sent
- the names of all electors registered at the address
- what to do if any information on the letter is incorrect or if someone who lives at the address is not registered
- ‘Your vote matters – don’t lose it’ branding
- frequently asked questions
- data protection messaging

2.33 The simpler the letter, the clearer the ‘call to action’ and the more likely it is that you will elicit the desired response. In general terms, there is a risk that additional information may confuse some electors and dealing with questions resulting from their confusion may draw resources away from registering new electors ahead of the scheduled poll. Additional information also means potentially having to tailor the letter to particular audiences, which creates its own series of risks and challenges.

2.34 In deciding whether to add additional information to the letter, you should consider the risks of doing so and identify how you would mitigate these. You would also need to check in each case that your software would be capable of enabling you to include any additional data on the letter. Additional data – and some of the risks of doing so which would need to be managed – could include:

- Franchise: This has the benefit of making clear to the elector which elections they are entitled to vote at. For example, whether they would be entitled to vote at a UK Parliamentary election and/or any local (or other) elections happening on that day. However, this may be a difficult message to convey in a simple way, especially in households where some individuals have and others do not have the full franchise. We have included in our template an FAQ which we recommend outlines the franchise for any upcoming elections.

- Information on registration deadlines for upcoming elections: While it is an opportunity to provide information specific to upcoming elections, our experience from user testing messages suggests that this type of information is most effective when the ‘call to action’ is closely linked to the message, i.e. where the deadline for registration is close to the request to register. Where the deadline is a few weeks or months away there is a risk that those who receive the letter will not take the necessary action.
Reference to registration deadlines could also confuse those who are already registered resulting in duplicate applications.

- Open register preference: Open register information is not directly relevant to an upcoming election. The questions this could generate may also divert resources away from registering electors.

Using a contractor

2.35 If you are sending data from the electoral register to a contractor or supplier to produce your HNLs, or to provide an automated response service, you are using a ‘processor’ to process personal data on your behalf.

2.36 Data protection legislation requires that you only appoint a processor that can provide ‘sufficient guarantees’ that the requirements of data protection legislation will be met. This means that data protection needs to be integral in any tender exercise, and you should document your decision-making process to ensure you have an audit trail.

2.37 Whenever you use a processor, data protection legislation imposes a legal obligation to formalise the working relationship in a written agreement or contract which sets out:

- the subject matter, nature and purpose of the processing;
- the obligations and rights of the data controller;
- duration of the processing; and
- the types of personal data and categories of data subjects.

2.38 In addition, data protection legislation requires that the contract must set out specific obligations on the processor, including that they:

- comply with your instructions
- are subject to a duty of confidentiality
- keep personal data secure and notify you of any breach
- maintain written records of the processing activities they carry out for you
- only use a sub-processor with your consent
- submit to audits and inspections and provide you with whatever information you need to ensure compliance with data protection requirements
- delete or return all personal data to you as requested at the end of the contract.

2.39 As the data controller, you remain ultimately responsible for ensuring that personal data is processed in accordance with data protection legislation. However, if a processor fails to meet any of its obligations, or acts against your instructions, then it may also be liable to pay damages or be subject to fines or other penalties or corrective measures. The ICO has provided guidance ‘Contracts and liabilities between controllers and processors’ which you should consider in relation to your contracts with data processors.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

2.40 You should ensure that when using a contractor that you have robust proof-checking processes in place, including ensuring that you are only providing the data required for each specific process, as this could help detect any errors and avoid data breaches before they occur.

We have produced a proof checking factsheet which you can use to help quality assure your processes. We also have produced a contract development and management checklist to support you in your work with suppliers/contractors.

Inspecting other records

2.41 To meet your duties to take the necessary steps to maintain the register, you should check data sources that are available to you to identify potential electors who are not registered. Your plan should include details of the records to be checked and a schedule of when those checks are to be carried out. You should also maintain a clear audit trail, demonstrating what checks have been undertaken and when, and what action you have taken on the basis of the information you have obtained.

To achieve the outcomes set out in performance standard 2, you will need to use information sources available to you to identify and target new electors, and ensure that all necessary steps are taken to add them to the register, including putting measures in place to encourage applications to register from identified new electors. The number of electors added to the register and the overall electorate figures will help to demonstrate how the outcomes have been met.

Information and examples of how some EROs are utilising existing data sources to help ensure that registers are as accurate and complete as possible, see our resource ‘Effective use of available data’.

Other records can also be used to identify those who may no longer be entitled to be registered at a particular address. Chapter 9 contains guidance on removing an elector from the register. Chapter 10 contains guidance on undertaking a review of an elector’s registration where you have reason to believe they are not entitled to be registered.

2.42 By law, for the purposes of meeting your registration duties, you can inspect and make copies of records kept in whatever form by:
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- the council which appointed you (where you are an ERO for a district council in a two-tier area, this extends to the county council)^
- any registrar of births, deaths and marriages (including any superintendent in England and Wales)
- any person, including a company or organisation, providing services to, or authorised to exercise any function of, the council. This includes those that are providing ‘outsourced’ services under any finance agreement

2.43 Paragraph 1(5) of Schedule 2 to the Representation of the People Act 1983 provides that where the ERO requests to inspect and/or take copies of the records specified in paragraph 2.42, a statutory or other restriction, including the GDPR, cannot be used to refuse disclosure of those records. For example, if a private contractor has been appointed to collect council tax on behalf of your local authority, as ERO for that authority, you are entitled to access the data held by that contractor.

2.44 In addition to the ERO’s right to inspect under paragraph 2.42, the council which appointed the ERO is permitted to disclose to the ERO, for certain registration purposes, information contained in records held by the council. In the case of an ERO for a district council in England, this also applies to the relevant county council. There are three purposes:

- to verify information relating to a person who is registered in a register maintained by the officer or who is named in an application for registration
- to ascertain the names and addresses of people who are not registered but who are entitled to be registered
- to identify those people who are registered but who are not entitled to be registered

2.45 Any such disclosure can only be made in accordance with a written agreement between the council and the ERO regulating the processing of the information, including its transfer, storage, destruction and security.

2.46 While records may assist you in identifying who does not have an entry in the register, any potential new elector who is identified in this way must always make a successful application before they can be added to the register.

2.47 The following records may help you identify new electors:

- Council tax: Council tax records may alert you to the fact that new residents have moved into a property. It may be the case, however, that the person named in the council tax record is not eligible to register to vote, for example if they own the property but do not reside there. Also, council tax records will not necessarily tell you whether there are more people resident at the address whom you may need to invite to register. Council tax records can also be used to provide evidence that a property is empty or that, while occupied, it is not used as someone’s main residence, which may affect their entitlement to register. Access to the records should include access to any supplementary notes, as this detail may assist with clarifying who is resident at a property.

- Council tax reduction (formerly council tax benefit): Records relating to those residents claiming council tax reduction may alert you to who else is living at their property.

- Housing: The records of arms-length management organisations and housing records where the council maintains the housing stock directly can be inspected for the details of tenants.

- Housing benefit: As housing benefits are paid directly to an individual, housing benefit records can be helpful in identifying new electors.

- Register of households in multiple occupation (HMOs): You should consider inspecting these records and consequently making contact with landlords or managing agents who are likely to be in a position to provide names of new residents.

- Records held by the registrars of births, deaths and marriages: Information received from the registrar about marriages and civil partnerships could potentially indicate that there is an additional resident at a property. It may also alert you to a change of name of an existing elector.

- Lists of residential and care homes / shelters / hostels: Social services (or equivalent department) will be able to provide lists of residential and care homes, as well as shelters and hostels. The wardens of these types of accommodation may be helpful in providing information on changes of residents. We have produced a factsheet for care homes in England and Wales and in Scotland that you can adapt to reflect your particular circumstances. The factsheet is based on our assisted applications guidance for England and Wales and for Scotland which details what one person can do to support another to register.

- Lists of disabled people receiving council assistance: Social services (or equivalent department) may be able to provide details of certain disabled people living at home, such as those who are blind, deaf, etc., which should also enable you to tailor the service you provide to such individuals.

- Land Registry/Registers of Scotland: These sources can be used to find information on property ownership and sales of property, which can provide a useful source of information on changes, particularly as the name of the buyer is given.

- Planning and building control: Inspection of building control records and liaising with house builders can give an indication of the state of progress of new developments and whether they are ready for residential occupation. Instead of liaising with planning and building control directly, you may be able to gain the necessary information from the Valuation Office in England and Wales, or the local Assessor in Scotland.

- List of new British citizens held by the registrar: The registrar who is responsible for holding citizenship ceremonies will have information on who has become a British citizen. You are entitled to inspect and make copies of these records, and could use them, for example, to identify potential new electors and issue them with an invitation to register. Information on applying to register to vote could also be given to the registrar to include in the pack they make available to those receiving British citizenship. Depending on their previous/other nationality, someone who has become a British citizen may already be on the electoral register, but information should be provided in any case to ensure that they have the correct franchise.

- Local authority education data: Inspection of local authority education data may provide you with information which could assist with the identification of potential electors aged 16 to 18 years who may be eligible to be registered either as attainers or electors.

2.48 To comply with data protection legislation, you will need to be able to demonstrate that all information obtained – whether from inspecting council records (see paragraph 2.42), or disclosed by your council (see paragraph 2.44) – complies with the principles of processing personal data, ensuring that it is processed lawfully, fairly and in a transparent manner. Therefore, you should maintain details of:

- the records to be checked
- a schedule of when those checks are carried out
- the lawful basis on which you are processing that information. For example, Section 9A places an obligation on the ERO to inspect records that they are permitted to inspect as part of their duty to maintain the electoral register. Section 9A therefore provides the statutory basis by which you process personal data obtained through council records
- measures to ensure appropriate security is in place to protect the data (for example, encrypting/password protecting data whenever it is transmitted, and using secure storage)
- what action you have taken on the basis of the information you have obtained
- retention and secure disposal of data (in accordance with your document retention plan)

In Scotland, 15 year olds and some 14 year olds are entitled to be included as ‘attainers’ on the local government register. For the purposes of the local government register in Scotland, an attainer is someone who turns 16 by the end of the twelve months following the 1 December after the ‘relevant date’ (for further information on the ‘relevant date’, see paragraph 4.12). Inspection of local authority education data may provide you with information which could assist with the identification of potential electors aged 14 and 15 years old who may be eligible to be registered as attainers.

2.49 You separately have the power to require information from a person who is not the elector. You can use this power where it is required for purposes of maintaining the register. This means that you can, for example, use it to require those in charge of multiple occupation establishments or care homes to provide you with information on residents.

Sharing good practice

Information on and examples of how some EROs are utilising existing data sources, including accessing data held by upper-tier authorities, see our resource ‘Effective use of available data’.

As set out in Part 1: ‘Planning for the delivery of electoral registration activity’, your registration plans should set out how you will work with organisations and individuals to access local data to support this process, and you should keep these plans under review to ensure they remain effective.

Personal visits

2.50 To meet your Section 9A duties you are required to undertake house-to-house enquiries throughout the year and you should have the necessary staff in place to carry out these visits. These staff can be used not only for making enquiries and to follow up with individuals who have not responded to an invitation to register, but also to:

- identify any changes to properties, such as new buildings or alterations to existing properties to help you to update your property database
- provide help to electors who need additional support or assistance to make an application to register or to respond to your enquiries

2.51 Data protection training should be included in training for all staff and canvassers. This will help you to embed the data protection principles in your work and demonstrate compliance with data protection legislation.

In Scotland, while the Section 9A duty to take all necessary steps to ensure your registers are accurate and complete still applies, the requirement to carry out house-to-house enquiries as part of the annual canvass has not been extended to 14 and 15 year olds. A personal visit to 14 or 15 year olds who have not responded to an ITR is not required at any time during the year.

If you do not make a visit to the household, you should consider what other mechanisms you can use to encourage a response from those in this age group. For example, you could contact under 16s by email if you hold their email address. Also, as part of any canvass follow-up activity, there may be an opportunity to remind any adults living at an address that 15 year-olds and some 14 year-olds are entitled to register and to ask them to encourage any 14/15 year olds at the address to apply to register online.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

You should also work with partners that specifically work or have influence with young people and reflect this in your plans. For further information, see Chapter 2 of Part 1: Planning for the delivery of electoral registration activity. We have provided specific guidance on engaging with young people and attainers in our example tactics sheet for reaching target audiences.

Guidance on planning, training and the recruitment of staff, including canvassers is included in Part 1 – ‘Planning for the delivery of electoral registration activity’. Further guidance on the recruitment and training of canvassers is contained in Part 3 - Annual Canvass which is equally applicable throughout the year.

Information on and examples of methods adopted by some EROs to meet the challenges of carrying out personal visits, see our resource ‘Effective personal canvassing’.

Working with partners

2.52 Internal and external partners may be able to identify residents who are entitled to be registered, but do not have an entry in the register. Council departments or organisations that are in regular contact with residents, for example, those delivering meals on wheels or providing domestic care, could be approached to promote the completion of applications.

Sharing good practice

Information on and examples of working with internal and external partners to access specific groups can be found in our resources, ‘Reaching students’ and ‘Reaching care home residents’.

2.53 If the partners you are working with will be, or are likely to be, assisting electors when completing their application, you should ensure that they are aware of data protection principles before handling any personal data.

2.54 You should consider having a formal data-sharing agreement whenever you are obtaining personal data from external organisations. These organisations are likely to be data controllers in their own right, for example, universities and care homes will hold personal data on their students and residents respectively.

2.55 Although data protection legislation does not require a written agreement when sharing data between data controllers, it is strongly recommended that you agree with your partner a data sharing agreement. This will help you both demonstrate that you are acting in accordance with data protection legislation.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 also contains a checklist to support you in developing a data sharing agreement.

Sharing good practice
The Scottish Assessors Association (SAA) have made available the data sharing agreement being used by EROs to share data in Scotland.

Part 1 – 'Planning for the delivery of electoral registration activity' contains guidance on working with partners both inside and outside your organisation.

Direct contact from residents

2.56 You may receive the names and addresses of potential electors from direct contact with residents or others, which can be used to invite them to register. These may be people who are contacting you because they:

- have moved into or within your area
- are newly eligible, for example if they have gained British citizenship
- are responding to public awareness or engagement activity

2.57 You may also receive information on potential new electors as a result of information given to your canvassers at the doorstep, through intercoms or from neighbours. Information gathered from a third party, such as neighbours, should be treated with caution as it may not be as reliable as information gathered directly from the applicant. Information obtained from a third party should be cross-checked where possible in order to validate it. If this is not possible, a record should be kept of the source of the information and the steps that were taken to obtain it.

2.58 While you have a duty to give an invitation to register as soon as reasonably practicable and, in any event, within 28 calendar days of the date that you conclude that a person may be entitled to be registered, you may wish to send the invitation to register later in the 28-day window if you think you can prompt an application to be made without the need for a formal invitation to be given. You should ensure that you keep records for the purpose of having a clear audit trail of the steps that you have taken as part of the invitation to register process.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

2.59 Examples of steps you could take before giving an invitation to register include:

- encouraging residents who have called you to apply to register at that point (assuming you allow telephone registration)
- training your canvassers to encourage applications on the doorstep or tell residents about the various registration channels and prompt them to register before the requirement for issuing a formal invitation to register is triggered.
3 Giving invitations to register

3.1 Once you have identified the name and address of a person who is not registered and you have reason to believe that they may be eligible, you must invite them to make an application to register as soon as reasonably practicable and, in any event, within 28 calendar days of the date that you conclude that they may be entitled to be registered. Where the expiry of the 28 days falls on a weekend or bank holiday, the period is extended to the next working day. You should have a mechanism for keeping a record of the date on which you conclude that a person may be entitled to be registered, which then starts the 28-day period. Your EMS system may facilitate this.

3.2 As set out in paragraph 2.9, you could informally prompt an application to register to be made before (and after) giving a formal invitation to register. If you have no information that would enable you to informally prompt an application or you do not plan to do so in any given case, you should not delay giving the invitation.

Swale Borough Council have successfully used a postcard-style colour-coded household notification card to encourage people who are not already registered to make an application. Further information on this is contained on our website.

3.3 You should not issue an invitation to register to a person if, in the meantime, you receive an application for registration from them, or you identify that they are not eligible to register to vote. To avoid giving an invitation to register to a person who has already made an application to register you should have a process in place to identify whether such an application has been made before you give an invitation.

3.4 You should bear in mind that an application may have been made online or, at your discretion, by telephone or in person and you should ensure that as part of your working practices you have in place a process to check for applications received through any channel before you issue an invitation to register. Your EMS system may be able to automate this process, although you should also bear in mind that the name on an application may not match exactly the name of the person to whom you have given an invitation and some manual checking of applications received against invitations issued may be required. You could do this by cross-checking the details on the application against your list of potential new electors that you have identified and to whom you have sent an invitation to register. On paper applications, this process could be facilitated by adding a barcode to the paper application form you are including alongside your invitation to register.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Content

Form of the invitation to register

3.5 An invitation to register must be given either by delivering it to the person (including by post) or leaving it at the person’s address. The invitation to register may also be sent by electronic means, including by email.

3.6 You must use the invitation to register approved by the Minister for the Cabinet Office and made available by the Commission. A separate prescribed email invitation to register is also available.

Application form

3.7 Whenever you give an invitation to register you must include with it a paper application form. You must use the application form approved by the Minister for the Cabinet Office and made available to you by the Commission and must, if practicable, pre-print on the application form the full name and address of the person being invited. This does not apply if you have given the invitation to register by electronic means. In that case the prescribed email ITR includes a link to www.gov.uk/register-to-vote.

The invitation to register and application form that you must use are available on our website. The prescribed form includes a data protection statement and the prescribed description of the electoral and open registers. The prescribed email invitation to register for England and Wales, and for Scotland is included in the ‘letters’ folder also available on our website. The prescribed forms, letters and email templates have been updated to provide revised data protection messaging and you should ensure that you are using the latest versions.

Our forms and letters guidance sets out how the registration form and letter must be used. The forms and letters guidance for England and Wales, and the forms and letters guidance for Scotland is available for download on our website.

In Scotland, the data protection statement on the prescribed form includes wording covering what happens to data relating to 14 and 15 year olds.
Outgoing envelope

3.8 You should address the envelope to the named person at the address you have identified. You must print the following information on the envelope:¹⁴

- a direction requesting that the envelope is not re-directed if it is incorrectly addressed
- a direction requesting that any other person who receives the envelope and who is resident at the address inform you if the addressee is not resident there
- your contact details

Reply envelope

3.9 You must also include with the invitation to register – except for any sent electronically – a pre-addressed, pre-paid reply envelope in which the form can be returned.¹⁵

3.10 The Commission has produced suggested content for envelopes, which includes all required information, and accompanying guidance. These are available on our website.

Delivery mechanisms

3.11 An invitation to register must be given either by delivering it to the person (including by post) or by leaving it at the person’s address.¹⁶ The invitation to register may also be sent by electronic means, including by email.¹⁷ An invitation to register cannot be given verbally, such as by telephone, although you can informally prompt applications to register by any suitable means before or after you give an invitation (see paragraph 2.9).

3.12 In deciding how to give an invitation to register you should bear in mind that, before you can require a person to make an application to register, you will need to establish that at least one of the invitations has been received by the elector, and you should therefore consider what processes and audit trails to put in place to achieve this in practice. For example, you may want to ensure that at least one of the invitations to register is hand-delivered. You should ensure that you consider the delivery methods that you will use for invitations to register when reviewing your engagement strategy and reflect this in your registration plans.

3.13 As set out earlier in this chapter, you should take steps where possible to informally prompt applications from people to whom you have given an invitation, as this may be more effective (and potentially more cost-effective) than sending further invitations and application forms.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Following up non-responses

'Reminder' invitations

3.14 Once you have given a person an invitation to register, unless they are a special category elector (see Chapter 7: Special category electors), you are required to take certain steps to encourage them to make an application to register if they have not yet done so. As with the first invitation, you should have a process in place to identify whether an application has been made by any available channel before you give a further invitation to register. You may visit the address where you delivered the first invitation at any time to encourage the person to make an application.

3.15 None of the steps set out below apply if you are satisfied that the person in question is not entitled to be registered at the address where the invitation was given, or that the person is registered at a different address.

3.16 If you have given an invitation to register and the person does not make an application to register within a reasonable period of time, you must give them a second invitation.

3.17 If no application is made within a reasonable period of time following the second invitation you must give a third invitation. The requirements set out under ‘Content and delivery mechanisms’ above apply equally to the second and third invitations. In practice, the second and third invitations are reminders to the person to make an application to register. Where a particular delivery mechanism has not resulted in a registration application being made, you should consider whether to use a different delivery mechanism for the second or third invitation. If you have not received a response to an email invitation to register, you should consider giving the reminder invitations by post or by hand.

3.18 While a ‘reasonable’ period of time is not defined in legislation, in our view this should be no longer than 28 days and may in some circumstances be shorter (for example where you are approaching the conclusion of the canvass or where there is an election due to take place).

Making at least one visit

3.19 If you have given a third invitation and no application to register has been made, you are required by law to make at least one visit to the address for the purpose of encouraging an application to be made, if you have not already done so.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

In Scotland, a personal visit to 14 or 15 year olds who have not responded to an ITR is not required at any time during the year.\textsuperscript{22}

If you do not make a visit to the household, you should consider what other mechanisms you can use to encourage a response from those in this age group. For example, you could contact under 16s by email if you hold their email address. Also, as part of any canvass follow-up activity, there may be an opportunity to remind any adults living at an address that 15 year-olds and some 14 year-olds are entitled to register and to ask them to encourage any 14/15 year olds at the address to apply to register online.

You should also work with partners that specifically work or have influence with young people and reflect this in your plans. For further information, see Chapter 2 of Part 1: Planning for the delivery of electoral registration activity. We have provided specific guidance on engaging with young people and attainers in our example tactics sheet for reaching target audiences.

3.20 You can choose to make a visit at any time in the process, for example at the same time as delivering any of the invitations. You may therefore have met this requirement before the end of the period for making an application following the third invitation. You must, however, have made a visit specifically for the purpose of encouraging a person to make an application to register. In our view, this means a visit where you have attempted to make contact personally with the person you are inviting.

3.21 If you have made a visit only for the purpose of leaving a form at the address and no attempt was made to contact the person being invited, this would not in our view satisfy the requirement. If, however, on such a visit the person making the visit spoke to the person being invited and encouraged them to make an application, the requirement to have made a visit will have been satisfied. As with all stages of this process, you should ensure that you keep records for the purpose of having a clear audit trail of the steps that you have taken as part of the invitation to register process. This will also help to ensure that, where you are considering requiring a person to make an application (see paragraph 3.24), you are able to establish that the prerequisites for making such a requirement have been met.

3.22 You should in any case consider making a further visit if this is likely to result in an application being made.

3.23 If no application is made in response to the third invitation and you have made at least one visit to the address, you can move to the next stage of requiring the person to make an application to register by giving them notice in writing of the requirement.\textsuperscript{23}
Requirement to register

3.24 If you have not received an application after a reasonable time after the third invitation to register has been given, and you have made a personal visit at least once to encourage an application, you may require a person to submit an application to register by a specified date. This must be done on a written notice.\(^{24}\)

\[\text{In Scotland, a personal visit is not required before a requirement to register can be issued to a person aged under 16 years old. Where a requirement to register is issued to a person under 16 years old, it must not include reference to the civil penalty as a civil penalty cannot be imposed on a person under 16 years old.}^{25}\]

3.25 Before you can require a person to make an application for registration you must establish that the person:

- has received at least one invitation to register\(^{26}\) - ideally, you should obtain confirmation from the named person, such as written confirmation of receipt or a written statement from a canvasser that they have given an invitation to the individual in person. Confirmation by email or telephone would also be acceptable and, if the telephone call is not recorded, you should make a written note of the conversation

- has received a personal visit to encourage an application\(^{27}\) – a person must already have received a personal visit as part of the invitation to register follow-up processes

\[\text{In Scotland, a personal visit is not required before a requirement to register can be issued to a person aged under 16 years old.}\]

- has been informed of how to make an application for registration\(^{28}\) - your invitation to register will already have informed the person how they can make an application to register

- has been informed that you may impose a civil penalty if you require them to make an application and they fail to do so\(^{29}\) – your invitation to register will already have included an explanation of the circumstances where a civil penalty may be imposed, and the amount

\[\text{In Scotland, a civil penalty for failing to respond to a requirement to register cannot be imposed on any person under 16 years old, and the invitation to register used in Scotland makes clear that the civil penalty does not apply to any such person.}\]
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- is resident at the address at which the invitations to register were given - you should consider if there is any checking of local records or other process that you can undertake to confirm that the person is resident.

3.26 Your record keeping and processes for issuing invitations to register and carrying out personal visits should be designed to ensure that you can be satisfied that all of those requirements have been established.

3.27 The notice requiring a person to make an application for registration must state:

- the date by which the person must make an application for registration
- that, if the person does not make an application by that date, you may impose a civil penalty
- the amount of the civil penalty (£80) and the rate of interest payable if the penalty is not paid on time
- that, if the person is not entitled to be registered, they must inform you of that fact before the date by which the application must be made and explain why they are not entitled, and that in such a case they are not required to make an application for registration
- that, if the person is registered at another address, they must inform you of that fact before the date by which the application must be made and provide you with that address, and that in such a case they are not required to make an application for registration
- that the person may make other representations as to why they should not be required to make an application to register by the date by which the application must be made, or why a civil penalty should not be imposed if they do not do so

In Scotland, a civil penalty for failing to respond to a requirement to register cannot be imposed on any person under 16 years old. Where a requirement to register is issued to a person under 16 years old, it must not include reference to the civil penalty as a civil penalty cannot be imposed on a person under 16 years old.

The Commission has produced a template ‘requirement to register notice’ as part of the IER letters available on our website.

3.28 The date by which the named individual must make an application is not prescribed. When deciding on a date by which the person must make an application, you should allow sufficient time for them to receive the notice, digest the information and submit an application. As with the recommended maximum period that would be considered ‘reasonable’ in relation to invitations to register, in most cases, 28 days would provide sufficient time for the person to receive the
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

3.29 You must include an application for registration with the notice and the full name and address of the individual should be pre-printed on the application. You should also include a pre-paid and pre-printed return envelope alongside the application, as well as information on how to register online, or by telephone or in person (if you offer those services).

3.30 You must cancel a requirement to register if either as a result of direct communications from the individual or from other information:

- you are satisfied that the person is not entitled to be registered at the address at which you gave the invitations to register
- you are satisfied that the person is registered at a different address
- you discover that any of the requirements for sending a notice requiring a person to register had not been met

3.31 You have discretion to cancel a requirement to make an application for registration if you consider it appropriate to do so. For example, you may consider it appropriate to cancel the requirement notice if a person is ill and, as a result, will be unable to make a declaration of truth for the foreseeable future.

3.32 However, the discretion to cancel a notice should only be used in very limited and special circumstances, and a decision to cancel should be taken on a case-by-case basis, with each case considered on its merits. You should maintain a clear audit trail of the decision and the reason(s) for it.

3.33 There may be individual cases where you receive information that a person who is subject to a requirement to register notice is unable to make an application within the specified timeframes, such as because they are away from their address for an extended period. However, this in itself should not trigger a cancellation of the requirement to register process. In such circumstances, you should instead consider extending the time allowed for the potential elector to submit their application.

3.34 Whenever you decide to cancel the requirement to register, you must give the person concerned notice in writing of your decision.

Civil penalty

In Scotland, a civil penalty for failing to respond to a requirement to register cannot be imposed on any person under 16 years old, and the invitation to register used in Scotland makes clear that the civil penalty does not apply to any such person.

3.35 You may impose a civil penalty on those who were issued a requirement to register but who fail to make an application to register by the date you stated in the requirement to register notice. You should have in place a process for issuing civil penalties that includes making arrangements for collecting and accounting for any money collected. This should cover how you will ensure that any money collected is returned to the Cabinet Office to be paid into the Consolidated Fund.

3.36 You may want to seek advice on carrying out the civil penalty process and collecting penalties, from other departments within the council who have experience of undertaking similar processes, including the council’s legal department.

3.37 If you decide to impose a civil penalty on a person you must give a civil penalty notice to that person informing them that a penalty has been imposed and specifying the reasons for it. The notice must explain that the person must:

- make an application to register within 28 calendar days from the date of the notice, or
- pay the full amount of the civil penalty within 28 calendar days from the date of the notice, or
- request a review of the decision to impose the civil penalty within 14 calendar days from the date of the notice

3.38 The notice must also state:

- the amount of the civil penalty (£80)
- how to make payment
- the rate of interest payable if the penalty is not paid on time (which is the daily rate of interest equivalent to 8% per year from the date that the civil penalty must be paid)
- that making an application to register by the date stated on the notice will prevent the person being liable to pay the civil penalty

3.39 The 14-calendar day period during which a person may ask you to review your decision to impose a civil penalty starts on the date of the notice. Therefore, you should ensure that the civil penalty notice is issued on the day that it is dated.

3.40 Any request to review your decision to impose a civil penalty must be made in writing (which includes via email).

3.41 Where you receive such a request for a review within 14 calendar days of the notice you must send an acknowledgement notice to the individual within 7 calendar days of receiving the request to inform them that:

- they have up to 14 calendar days from the date of the acknowledgement notice to:
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- make representations explaining why they have not made an application to register or why the civil penalty should be cancelled, and
- submit evidence in support of such representations

3.42 The acknowledgement notice must also explain how any representations may be made and any evidence submitted. It should be dated and sent on the same day, as the date of the acknowledgement determines the start of the 14-day period for making representations.

3.43 If a person makes a request for a review within the 14 calendar day time period you must carry out a review of your decision to impose a civil penalty irrespective of whether the person has submitted any representations or evidence to you. If they have submitted any representations or evidence, you must consider them.

3.44 Your review must not start before the earlier of:

- the end of the 14th calendar day after the date of the acknowledgment notice, or
- the receipt of any representations or evidence

3.45 This means that if you receive any representations or evidence before the end of the 14-day period, you may commence your review then. If not, you must wait until the end of the 14-day period before you can start your review process.

3.46 There may be circumstances where you receive representations or evidence after you have already started the review, or indeed after you have completed it but before the penalty has been paid. In those cases, you should still take the representations and evidence into account and review your grounds for issuing the civil penalty notice in light of these.

3.47 In the absence of any representations or evidence, you should check whether there are any grounds for cancelling the civil penalty notice.

3.48 You must cancel a civil penalty notice if the person makes an application for registration before the time for payment of the civil penalty, or if either as a result of direct communications from the individual or from other information:

- you are satisfied that the person is not entitled to be registered at the address at which you gave the invitations to register,
- you are satisfied that the person is registered at a different address,
- you discover that any of the requirements for sending a notice requiring a person to register had not been met

3.49 You have discretion to cancel a civil penalty notice if you consider it appropriate to do so. For example, a person may have been away for the vast majority of the period between the requirement to register and the civil penalty notice. Depending on the circumstances, it may be appropriate to cancel the civil penalty and set a new deadline for receiving an application.

3.50 A person may also not have responded to your invitations and requirement to register on the grounds of a disability or an inability to read or write. Again, in these circumstances, you should consider cancelling the civil penalty and offer any assistance which may be necessary to enable the person to make an application.

3.51 Also, a person may not have responded to your invitation to register because they had concerns that their safety could be compromised by providing you with personal information. In those circumstances, you should assess whether they would qualify for registering as an anonymous elector and, where appropriate, cancel the civil penalty and explain the anonymous registration process to them.

3.52 On completion of your review you must either:

- uphold the decision to issue a civil penalty, or
- cancel the civil penalty

3.53 You must then inform the person in writing of the outcome of the review. If you uphold the decision to impose a civil penalty, the notice confirming the outcome of the review must state:

- that they may appeal against that decision to the First-tier Tribunal, and how to make such an appeal, and
- the date by which the civil penalty must be paid.

Timescale for payment of the civil penalty

3.54 Where no review has been requested or appeal has been made to the First-tier Tribunal, payment must be made within 28 calendar days of the date of the civil penalty notice.

3.55 Where the person has requested a review or made an appeal to the First-tier Tribunal, the civil penalty must also be paid within 28 calendar days, but the 28-day period ceases to run while the review or appeal is being considered and re-starts if the review or appeal is unsuccessful.

3.56 When calculating the 28-day period, the day on which any review or appeal is requested is excluded and the day on which the review or appeal concludes is included.

3.57 You should liaise with your council's legal department regarding the process for any debt recovery should a person fail to pay the penalty within the required timeframe. Where a payment is overdue, interest is accrued at a daily rate equivalent to 8% per year. In cases where a person refuses to pay, an application can be made to the county court, or the sheriff in Scotland, for recovering the debt and any accrued interest.\textsuperscript{56}

Appeals to the First-tier Tribunal

3.58 If a person has made a request for a review of your decision to impose a civil penalty and is unsuccessful, the final course of appeal open to them is to appeal to the First-tier Tribunal.\textsuperscript{57} The Tribunal may either uphold your decision to impose a civil penalty or cancel the penalty.\textsuperscript{58} During the time the appeal process takes place, the requirement to pay the civil penalty is suspended (as described in paragraph 3.55 above).\textsuperscript{59}

3.59 Should the person make an appeal, you will need to prepare information and evidence to help the Tribunal establish whether all the legal requirements leading to the issuing of the civil penalty were met. You should include copies of all the documents that you used (including your invitations and notices), and information and evidence about:

- why you decided to send an invitation to register (e.g. which record was checked that led you to believe that there was a person resident who was eligible for registration, or whether you gained this information through correspondence with the elector themselves or through a third party)
- when and how you gave the three invitations to register and when you carried out a personal visit, including any responses you received
- the dates on which you gave the requirement to register and issued the civil penalty notice
- if the person requested a review or otherwise made any representations or submitted any evidence to you, the representation, evidence and conclusion of your review

3.60 The chamber of the First-tier Tribunal responsible for hearing appeals against civil penalty notices is the General Regulatory Chamber:

The Commission has produced template notices and letters to use when undertaking the civil penalty process. These are available on our website.
4 Applications

4.1 As set out in Chapter 3 of Part 2: ‘Registration framework’, one of the aspects of entitlement to register is that any statutory requirements in relation to the application are met.

Contents of the application

4.2 An ordinary application for registration (excluding special category electors, which are covered in Chapter 7: Special category electors) must contain the following information: 60

- The applicant’s full name.
- The address where the applicant is resident on the date of the application and in respect of which they are applying to be registered.
- Any address where the applicant has ceased to reside in the 12 months prior to the date of the application and, where that address is not in the UK, an indication of whether that person was registered as an overseas elector during this period.
- An indication of whether the applicant is resident at any other address, including any address where the applicant is currently registered and claims to be entitled to remain registered.
- The applicant’s date of birth or, if they are unable to provide this information, the reason why they are not able to do so and a statement as to whether the applicant is under 18 years old or aged 76 or over.

In Scotland, where the applicant is not able to provide their date of birth, they must give the reason why they are not able to do so and give a statement as to whether they are under the age of 16, aged 16 or 17 or aged 18 or older. 61

- The applicant’s National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so.

In Scotland, the requirement for an applicant to provide their National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so, does not apply where the applicant is under 16 years old. 62

- The applicant’s nationality or nationalities or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason why they are not able to do so.
- An indication of whether the applicant requests their name to be omitted from the edited register.
In Scotland, a person under 16 years old is automatically opted out of the edited register. The details of any person under 16 years old must not be included in any version of the published register, including the edited register.\textsuperscript{63}

- A declaration that the contents of the application are true (in practice, on the paper form, this will involve a signature or at least a mark on the form that shows that they have made the declaration).
- The date of the application.

4.3 If any of the above information is not provided, the application is not complete and an ordinary application for registration cannot be processed. You should follow up any missing information with the applicant. The process for doing so is explained further at paragraph 4.16.

4.4 The application form must provide space for the applicant to provide their most recent previous name (if they have one)\textsuperscript{64} and an explanation that providing this information is not mandatory but may help in verifying their identity and that if it is not provided, additional personal information may be required.

4.5 The application form must also provide space for the applicant to indicate whether they are the only person aged 16 or over (14 or over in Scotland) resident at the address and an explanation that providing this information is not mandatory.\textsuperscript{65}

Part 3: Annual Canvass includes guidance on the implications when a person indicates on their registration application that they are the only person aged 16 or over (14 or over in Scotland) resident at the address, including how this information can be used by EROs in determining whether to send HEFs in certain circumstances.

4.6 The IER Digital Service allows anyone over 16 to submit an application, and you may also receive an application on a paper form from those not old enough to be an attainer. If you receive such an application, you should contact the applicant and explain that you cannot process their application at this time, but that you will keep their details on file and invite them to register once they become eligible.

In Scotland, 14 and 15 year olds can apply to register through the IER Digital Service (excluding those applying as special category electors) but these applications will not be sent for verification against DWP records. Instead, their application details will be sent to the ERO to verify by checking against education records or other local data. For further information on verifying the identity of applicants, see Chapter 5. For further information on special category electors, see Chapter 7.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

4.7 To be able to contact these individuals at the right time you should keep a record of their name and address, and any other contact information, and the date on which they would become eligible for registration based on their age. You will also need to put in place a mechanism to alert you to send an invitation to register at the appropriate time.

Chapter 4 of Part 2: ‘Registration framework’ sets out the different channels through which applications can be made.

Special categories of data

4.8 As set out in paragraph 4.2, an applicant for registration must provide their nationality or nationalities, or, if they are not able to provide that information, the reason they are not able to do so. Under data protection legislation, nationality data is classed as a special category of personal data because it may reveal an individual’s racial or ethnic origin. In order to process nationality data, you must have in place a policy document which, amongst other things, must explain:

- the procedures for complying with the data protection principles
- the policies for retention and erasure.

4.9 Therefore, your policy document in place to allow you as data controller to process special categories of personal data will need to reflect your local processing procedures and your policies for the retention and erasure of personal data. This policy document must be kept until six months after the processing ceases, be reviewed and updated at appropriate times and be made available to the ICO on request. We will make the Commission’s own policy document available in April for your reference.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains further information on special categories of data and the need for a policy document.

Application form

4.10 You must use the form approved by the Minister for the Cabinet Office and made available by the Commission when sending out paper application forms to residents, and you are not allowed to alter it. The form does, however, include space for you to add your contact details, local authority information, unique reference, security code and a barcode.
When is an application deemed to be made?

4.11 You must make a determination on applications for registration based on whether or not an applicant meets the requirements for registration and whether or not they are disqualified from registration on the ‘relevant date’. The relevant date will vary depending on the way in which the application is made.

4.12 The relevant date of an application for registration sent to you on a paper form is the date the application is deemed to be made, i.e. when the form is completed by the applicant, which can be identified by the date given on the form (or, where you receive an incomplete application, the date on which you have received all of the required information). Regardless of the relevant date, an application to register must be received by the appropriate deadline. For example, a paper application dated before the registration deadline but received after it would not be able to be determined and included in the next update to the register.

4.13 Applications made online are deemed to be made on the date the IER Digital Service records the application as being made, and that electronic date stamp will be included on the information sent to you with the application.

4.14 Telephone and in-person applications are deemed to be made at the time all of the information required for the application has been received and recorded in writing, and the applicant has declared the truth of the information provided in the application.

Acknowledging applications

4.15 There is no legal requirement for an application to be acknowledged - whether it is in response to an invitation to register or not. However, you do have discretion to send an acknowledgement. In all cases, you are required to send a confirmation if the application is successful, as set out in paragraphs 6.10 to 6.15.
Incomplete applications

4.16 Online applications cannot be submitted unless the elector has supplied all of the required information or given a reason as to why this information cannot be provided. Applications made on a paper form, by telephone or in person (if you have decided to offer telephone and/or in-person applications) may have some information missing, particularly any application made other than on an official form.

4.17 If any required part of the application as set out in paragraph 4.2 is missing or incomplete, it will not constitute a complete application, and you will need to contact the applicant and request the information that is missing. You can require additional evidence where you consider it necessary to verify identify, or to determine an applicant’s entitlement to register.

4.18 In some cases, a person may not be able to give you their date of birth, National Insurance Number or nationality. If a person is unable to state their date of birth, National Insurance Number or nationality they must, as part of the application, provide a statement of the reasons why they are unable to provide this information.

68 In Scotland, the requirement for an applicant to provide their National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so, does not apply where the applicant is under 16 years old.

4.19 Where this statement is not included, you cannot assume that the person cannot provide this information and you should contact the applicant and ask them to supply the missing information. The application will be on hold until the required information has been returned. The missing information does not need to be provided on a new application form – it can be provided over the phone, via e-mail or in person. You must, however, keep a written record of the missing information that has been provided, and ensure that the information is transferred to the written application.

4.20 There is an exceptions process that you will need to follow to verify the applicant’s identity where the required information has not been provided but a statement of reasons is provided (and their identity could not be verified using local data matching). This is covered in detail in Chapter 5: Verification, below.

4.21 If the applicant is unable to state their nationality, you can require the applicant to provide evidence about their immigration status in order to determine whether they are a qualifying Commonwealth citizen. This includes, if applicable, the applicant’s biometric immigration document issued in the UK. The fact that you may require additional evidence of an applicant’s nationality, and may request checks of a person’s immigration status against Government records is included on the registration application form approved by the Minister and made available to you by the Commission.

Further guidance on this process and contact details are available by contacting the Home Office: ICESSVECECF Workf low@homeoffice.gsi.gov.uk. You will be asked to complete a template which will be provided – please complete and return the section below the heading ‘Subject 1’ to the same email address. The Home Office have requested one template per subject per email, and that ‘ER’ be added to the subject header for each email to ensure that it goes into the correct folder for a response. The Home Office will respond within five working days unless a file is required, in which case it will respond within ten working days.

4.22 You should keep a record of any incomplete applications or applications where you have requested further information and keep track of these, so that you can follow up with the applicant if they do not respond to your initial request for information. You should inform the applicant by which date you expect them to provide you with the information requested. Where you do not receive a response within a reasonable time (the 28-day maximum, but potentially earlier if there is an election), and you consider that the person is resident and may be eligible to register, you must give them an invitation to register.

Listing applications and objections

4.23 You are required to maintain three separate lists of:

<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>Applications received</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2</td>
<td>Any objections made prior to the person being added to the register</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>Any objections made after the person has been added to the register</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>

4.24 As soon as any application or objection is received, the appropriate details must be recorded as follows:

- Details of the application (the name and nationality of the applicant, and the address given as their qualifying address) must be entered in the list of applications, unless the application is accompanied by an application for anonymous registration.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- Details of the objection (the name and qualifying address of the objector, plus details of the application (as above) or register entry) must be entered in the relevant list of objections.\textsuperscript{73}
- In addition, where an objection is received before a person has been entered on the register, the particulars of the objection must be entered in the list of applications.\textsuperscript{74}

4.25 Entries on the lists of applications and objections are open for inspection until the applications or objections have been determined, i.e. until you have made the final decision as to whether an entry or alteration to the register is required.\textsuperscript{75} These lists are usually produced by software packages or, alternatively, they could be handwritten or typed manually.

In Scotland, an application by a person under 16 years old must not be entered in the list of applications available for public inspection.

Leave to remain checks

4.26 If you are in any doubt as to whether an applicant or elector is legally resident, you should request checks of a person’s immigration status against Home Office records.

4.27 The fact that you may request checks of a person’s immigration status against Government records is included on the registration application form approved by the Minister and made available to you by the Commission.

4.28 Further guidance on this process and contact details are available by contacting the Home Office: ICESSVECWorkflow@homeoffice.gsi.gov.uk. You will be asked to complete a template which will be provided – please complete and return the section below the heading ‘Subject 1’ to the same email address. The Home Office have requested one template per subject per email, and that ‘ER’ be added to the subject header for each email to ensure that it goes into the correct folder for a response. The Home Office will respond within five working days unless a file is required, in which case it will respond within ten working days.

Retention of documents

4.29 At a minimum, you must retain any documents supplied as part of an application (or, where an original has been supplied and returned, a copy of any such document) until the application has been determined.\textsuperscript{76} This includes the application form itself and the information that you receive as a result of an online application, or one made by telephone or in person (if you allow applications to be made in this way), or any evidence you receive under the documentary exceptions process.

4.30 You may keep these documents or information after your determination of the application. Data protection legislation does not set out any specific maximum periods for retention of personal data, but it says that personal data processed for any purpose shall not be kept for longer than is necessary for that purpose. You will therefore need to consider whether it would be appropriate for you to hold on to the information. Copies of documents (either scanned or in hard copy) could be retained for a specific period to take account of the possibility of a legal challenge and any analysis the police may need to carry out if there are any integrity concerns.

4.31 It is important that you have a document retention policy in place which sets out the period in which you will retain documents and your reason for doing so. Unless there is a legal challenge or investigation you should not retain any documents relating to a particular elector for more than 12 months after they have been removed from the register, as this is the usual time limit for any prosecutions. You should ensure that you do not retain documents for longer than the period specified in your document retention policy – unless there is a legal challenge – and that they are securely destroyed at the appropriate point. This should include ensuring that you have processes in place to manage scanned images that may be held on your EMS software.

The Information Commissioner’s Office provides general advice on the retention of personal data: http://www.ico.org.uk/for_organisations/data_protection/the_guide/information_standards/principle_5.

4.32 Where you decide to keep any application-related documents beyond the point of determination, you must redact the applicant’s National Insurance Number from any documentation you have, including the application form, by no later than the day that would be 13 months from the date the application was determined. You will need to ensure that you have an appropriate mechanism for carrying out such redactions, which may include using special redaction software. The council’s Data Protection Officer should be able to give you advice on redaction of personal information. You will also need to keep a record of the day on which you have made your determination on an application, so that you can accurately calculate the 13-month period. Your EMS system may facilitate this.

4.33 National Insurance Numbers will only be available on paper applications, or where someone has applied in person or by telephone; for applications made online, you will not receive the National Insurance Number.

4.34 The requirement to redact the applicant’s National Insurance Number does not apply where this documentation is required for the purpose of any civil or criminal investigations or proceedings.
4.35 While not a legal requirement, you should consider following a similar approach for redacting dates of birth. Your policies on redaction should also be detailed in your document retention plan.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains further information the storage of personal data and on document retention, including what should be included in a document retention policy.

Requirement to notify the previous ERO

4.36 An application to register must contain any address where the applicant has ceased to reside in the 12 months prior to the date of the application and, where that address is not in the UK, an indication of whether that person was registered as an overseas elector during this period.

4.37 You have a duty to notify the relevant ERO where you have been given a previous address in the UK. This process is automated through a link between your EMS system and the IER Digital Service and the notification triggered once you have allowed the application.

4.38 However, a person may be entitled to be registered at more than one address (e.g. students). If on their application they claim that they are entitled to be registered at more than one address, you should contact the elector and the other ERO to establish the details of their residence.

Guidance on a person’s entitlement to be registered at more than one address is provided in Chapter 3 of Part 2: ‘Registration framework’.

Identifying suspicious registration applications

4.39 You are uniquely placed to identify incidents and patterns of activity that might indicate electoral fraud in your local area. Applications for registration do not have to be taken at face value – you have the option of taking any application to a hearing (see also Chapter 10: Reviews, objections and hearings). You can also require additional evidence where you consider it necessary to verify identity, or to determine an applicant’s entitlement to register.
4.40 Although there are no definitive signs of possible electoral registration fraud, and each specific case will be different, you should ensure that you have mechanisms in place to monitor indicators of possible fraud. These indicators and any trigger points for further action will need to be informed by:

- the context of your local area
- whether they are consistent or inconsistent with any other data available to you
- the specific circumstances surrounding an application or applications

4.41 The following could, depending on the context, be indicators of possible fraud:

- Any number of registration application forms completed in the same hand.
- A large number of registration applications submitted in respect of a single property, particularly where the number of forms does not reflect the type or size of the property (e.g. 10 applications for a small flat).
- Registration applications which do not appear to match the usual pattern of previous or existing registrations at a particular property.
- Unusual number of applications failing verification (for example, if all applications from a property or neighbouring properties fail verification)
- Large numbers of attestations in any particular area
- Information from the IER Digital Service on:
  - whether the National Insurance Number supplied with an application has been given in any other applications in the previous 12 months and in which local authority areas
  - the originating IP address for each online application

4.42 You should put in place mechanisms that will help you to identify suspicious registration applications:

- Training for canvassers and office staff on what to look out for
- Review returns data regularly to identify patterns
- Consider how best to share data about patterns of registration applications with local political parties and elected representatives, to improve transparency and confidence, and so that they can help identify any specific register entries which might be suspicious.

To meet the outcomes set out in Performance standard 2, you will need to ensure that you have in place processes to identify and investigate patterns of activity that might indicate potential risks to the integrity of the register and take appropriate steps to deal with any such problems. To demonstrate how the outcomes have been met, you will need to document how your approach to preventing and detecting electoral fraud is communicated to voters, candidates and other local contacts.
Your local police Single Point Of Contact (SPOC)
4.43 You are uniquely placed to identify incidents and patterns of activity that might indicate electoral fraud in your area. Effective early action to address possible electoral registration fraud could help avoid costly police investigations or legal challenges to the results of elections. Your local police SPOC will be a key partner to help you ensure that any possible instances of registration fraud are quickly identified and dealt with.

4.44 You should make sure that you are clear who your SPOC is and how you can contact them. If you have any problems establishing contact with your SPOC, please contact your local Commission team.

4.45 As part of your liaison with your SPOC you should have an agreement in place about the division of responsibilities between you and your SPOC, so that there is early clarity about each other’s roles.

4.46 Early discussions should cover your mechanisms for identifying possible fraud and what actions should be taken where any suspicions arise. You should also agree with your SPOC an approach for referring allegations of fraud you may receive for further investigation where appropriate. Documentation that you would need to provide to the police if necessary for their investigation is likely to include:

- All papers received (including envelopes), sealed in a packet or envelope. Handling of the documentation by staff should be kept to a minimum.
- Copies of the internal documents used to conduct internal checks (e.g. council tax records).

4.47 You should also agree a mechanism for handling evidence, following advice from your SPOC, so that the police can carry out any forensic analysis, where necessary.

4.48 The police will investigate any allegations of fraudulent electoral registration until, following consultation with the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) or the Crown Office and Procurator Fiscal Service (COPFS) in Scotland, either they are satisfied that no further action is necessary or appropriate, or they forward the case file to the CPS (or COPFS in Scotland) for prosecution. The police should keep the ERO, and where appropriate the RO, informed of the progress of the case.
5 Verification

Verification of identity

5.1 As set out in Chapter 3 of Part 2: ‘Registration framework’, one of the aspects of entitlement to register is that the application is made by someone who appears to be the person named on the application. Any person making a new application for registration must provide personal identifiers for the purpose of establishing whether they are the person named in the application, and the results of this process must be taken into account in determining the application. The information provided is used to verify their identity against DWP records, and may also be matched against local data sources if the applicant’s identity cannot be verified using DWP records.

‘Inspecting other records’ in Chapter 2 sets out the records you are entitled to inspect and you may be able to use these records to establish an applicant’s identity where it cannot be verified using DWP records.

In Scotland, the IER Digital Service allows applications to register to be made by those aged 14 years old or over. However, only those aged 16 years old or over may apply through the IER Digital Service as special category electors.

Applications from those aged 14 or 15 years old will not be sent for verification against DWP records and so you will not receive verification results with the application. Instead, you will need to verify the applicant’s identity using education records or other local data that meets the standards set out in the Ministerial Guidance. Section 5 of the Ministerial Guidance details the exceptions process to be followed where you are unable to verify the identity of the applicant in this way.

Section 5 of the Ministerial Guidance details the exceptions process to be followed where you are unable to verify the identity of an applicant, either through matching against DWP records or through local data matching.
Ministerial guidance

This guidance has been issued by the Minister under Section 1(3) of, and Paragraph 2(1) of Schedule 1 to, the Electoral Registration and Administration Act 2013.

EROs must, by law, have regard to this guidance.

1 Interpretation of verification DWP data match results

The relevant legislative references on which this guidance is based are set out in Appendix 1.

1.1 How to interpret DWP match results

1.1.1 The database against which applications to register are matched is the DWP Customer Information System (CIS) database. CIS is an amalgamated data source, consisting of information received from internal DWP systems, as well as other government sources, such as HMRC. As a result CIS is seen within DWP as being the main data source of customer information.

1.1.2 In order to perform the data match, DWP have developed an algorithm which matches the applicant’s personal identifiers (full name, National Insurance Number [NINo], and date of birth [DOB]) sent to them via the IER Digital Service, against the CIS database.

1.1.3 The DWP matching algorithm works like a filter, the stages of which can be broadly summarised as:

- The identifiers contained in the personal record are standardised by DWP to make them more consistent with the DWP dataset (e.g. removal of spaces and hyphens from NINos)
- The personal record is compared to the records in the DWP dataset, following a sequence of matching operations:
  1. Is there a record in the DWP dataset with a NINo that matches the NINo provided? If not, the personal record is flagged as No Match and no further matches are attempted.
  2. Does the DWP record identified at step 1 have a DOB that matches the DOB provided? If not, the personal record is flagged as No Match.
  3. Do the names on the DWP record identified at step 1 match the names provided? A series of name matches are carried out until the best match is obtained. These are described in table 1.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

4. The level of match obtained is reported back to the IER Digital Service which assigns a score to the results, indicating either success or failure.

5. The match results plus the score assigned to them are passed back to the EMS where they are displayed to the ERO.

1.1.4 The end result is a series of match statements that describe the levels at which a record has ‘passed’ or ‘failed’ against a series of matching criteria.

*It is recognised that there is the potential for some inaccuracies using this match category, for example “Stephen” and “Stephanie” could be matched under this category despite being different people. However, detailed testing undertaken across 6 pilot areas as part of the confirmation pilots, found that 94% of these matches were deemed accurate. Whilst this was a slightly lower result than other ‘green’ match categories (98% of which were deemed accurate) the results suggest that including this category (on which approximately 3% of register entries matched in the pilot) would not weaken the accuracy of the matching significantly. Full details can be found in Annex A of the Cabinet Office’s full evaluation of the confirmation pilots at https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/simplifying-the-transition-to-individual-electoral-registration.

v A soundex match is a match made using a phonetic algorithm for indexing names by sound, as pronounced in English, so that they can be matched despite minor differences in spelling. The soundex algorithm is English biased and is less useful for languages other than English.
1.2 Action to take following the return of matched data

1.2.1 When the ERO receives their matched data returned from DWP, they will need to assess whether the applicant’s identity has been established according to the pass/fail rating supplied.

1.2.2 The ERO is not limited to assessing whether the identity of the applicant has been established strictly according to the match rating; however, where the ERO makes an assessment which does not accord with the match rating (the ERO may have local data which contradicts the DWP match for example) the ERO should record the reasons why they have reached their assessment and the evidence this was based upon.

Pass matches

1.2.3 Where an applicant’s identity has been given a pass rating by DWP, this indicates to the ERO that they can have confidence that the applicant is the person they claim to be on their application.

1.2.4 The ERO will also need to establish that the applicant fulfils their other eligibility criteria (age, nationality, residence) and may have already done so before receiving the match results from DWP.

Fail matches

1.2.5 Where an applicant’s identity has been given a fail rating by DWP, this indicates that it has not been possible to establish that person’s identity.

1.2.6 On receipt of a fail match rating, the ERO should contact the applicant to check whether the details submitted on their application are correct. The ERO should ask the applicant to supply their full application information (name, address, date of birth, National Insurance Number (EROs will only hold National Insurance Number where the application was made by a paper form)) to be checked against the original application. The ERO should not supply information given in the application to the applicant. The ERO may check application information in any way, including by telephone.

1.2.7 If the applicant has made an error on their application, the ERO should resubmit their personal identifiers for a further check and write to the applicant to tell them that a change has been made to their application based on additional information supplied by the applicant. The ERO should not include any personal identifier information (NINo and DoB) in the letter.

1.2.8 Where it cannot be established that an error has been made on the application, the ERO may wish to use suitable local data sources (see local data matching guidance in section 2) to establish the identity of the applicant. Where local data matching is successful, it is not necessary to resubmit the application for matching against DWP data.

1.2.9 If no error has been made on the application, the ERO should write to the applicant informing them that it has not been possible to verify their identity and requesting them to supply documentary proof of their identity (the exceptions process – section 5).

1.3 Next steps

1.3.1 Applicants whose identity can be verified through either the DWP match or local data matching should be added to the register of electors at the next available update, providing the eligibility criteria have been met and the applicant has been positively determined. A confirmation letter should be sent if appropriate.

1.3.2 Applicants whose identity cannot be verified by either the DWP check or by local data matching should be directed to the exceptions process (see section 5 on the exceptions process).

1.4 Processing errors

1.4.1 Regardless of when an application for registration is received, the ERO is still obliged to send the relevant information for verification matching against DWP data. Equally, where the ERO receives the results of this, they must take them into account in determining the application.

1.4.2 In some cases, the ERO may make a processing error which results in an applicant who has properly submitted an application not having their identity verified before the determination deadline for publication of the register for an election. For example, a paper application form may be received but misplaced and not properly dealt with, or an online application may be incorrectly processed by the ERO, resulting in them not requesting documentary evidence for an application made without identifiers. In these circumstances, the ERO still has a duty to satisfy themselves that the application is made by someone who appears to be the person named on the application before they add them to the register.

1.4.3 In such cases, if the ERO is satisfied that the application was submitted before the deadline (for example, it was time- and date-stamped upon receipt), the ERO must send the relevant information to be verified. However, since a processing error can be discovered up to and including on polling day, the results of the DWP matching process may not be returned in time to be able to be used to verify the identity of the applicant so that they can be added to the register in time to vote, or to allow local data matching and/or the documentary exceptions process to take place in the event that the DWP match cannot verify the applicant’s identity. Therefore in these circumstances the ERO may also proceed to local data matching and/or the documentary exceptions process before they receive the result of the verification.

1.4.4 After an applicant whose application was subject to a processing error has provided documentary evidence or an attestation, the applicant’s information may be returned from DWP. In this situation, the ERO is only permitted to continue to hold the documentary evidence or attestation if it was used in making a decision. For example, if DWP matching returns a fail match rating for an applicant whose application was subject to a processing error, but the ERO has already established their identity using other means and added them to the register, the documentary evidence or attestation does not need to be destroyed and no further action is needed.
Local data matching for verification purposes

5.2 Local data matching enables you to use local data sets (such as council tax or housing benefit) to help you to verify the identity of applicants in combination with the results of the DWP data match.

5.3 Local data matching must not be undertaken until DWP match results have been received and considered. There are limited exceptions to this as set out below and in Section 7 of the Ministerial Guidance.

5.4 You may use local data to verify an applicant's identity where they have been unable to provide a National Insurance number, provided that the reason given for not providing a National Insurance number is valid.

Inspecting other records

In Chapter 2 sets out the records you are entitled to inspect and you may be able to use these records to establish an applicant’s identity where it cannot be verified using DWP records.

In Scotland, the requirement for an applicant to provide their National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so, does not apply where the applicant is under 16 years old.

Where a person aged 14 or 15 years old makes a registration application, it will not be sent for verification against DWP records and so you will not receive verification results. Instead, you will need to verify the application using education records or other local data that meets the standards set out in the Ministerial Guidance. Section 5 of the Ministerial Guidance details the exceptions process to be followed where you are unable to verify the identity of an applicant in this way.

Applications received close to an election registration deadline

5.5 Regardless of when an application for registration is received, including if this is near to the application deadline for inclusion on the register for an election, you are still obliged to send the relevant information for verification matching against DWP records. Equally, you must take account of the results in determining the application.
In Scotland, an application from a person under 16 years old will not be sent for verification against DWP records and so you will not receive verification results to take into account in determining the application.

5.6 For an election, a complete registration application (i.e. an application containing all the information required for an application, as set out in paragraph 4.2) must be made by midnight, 12 working days before the poll. While you can expect to receive the results of the verification matching from the IER Digital Service within 24 hours, where an applicant cannot be verified there will only be a short period in which to undertake local data matching and, if necessary, to advise the applicant of the need to provide documentary evidence under the exceptions process, and for that evidence to then be provided, before the determination deadline (six working days before the poll).

5.7 In such cases, therefore, you may wish, once an application has been made, to proceed with local data matching before the results of the DWP match have been returned. If you can verify the identity of the applicant using local data, in the event that a negative match result is then returned by the IER Digital Service, you may use the local data match in order to determine the application without any further input from the elector.

5.8 If local data matching does not allow for the verification of the applicant’s identity and you have still not received the results of verification from the Digital Service, you could advise the applicant that it might be beneficial to their application for them to supply, on a voluntary basis, the necessary evidence for the documentary exceptions process (see Section 5 of the Ministerial Guidance). An applicant may choose not to supply this evidence as supplying it in these circumstances is not a requirement. If the applicant does provide this evidence, in the event that a negative match result is returned by the IER Digital Service, you can use the documentary evidence to determine the application.

5.9 You will need to consider carefully the benefits and risks of requesting evidence in these circumstances, taking into account the potential for voter confusion and balancing this against doing what you can to ensure that everyone who has applied by the registration deadline can be registered in time to be able to vote in the election. In no circumstances should you ask for documentary evidence to be submitted with a registration application - this may discourage applications from being made, and could cause confusion about the registration process.

5.10 Where an application has been submitted close to the deadline and:

- local data matching does not allow for verification of the applicant’s identity;
- you have still not received the results of verification from the Digital Service;
- and you have requested and received documentary evidence from the applicant

you are only permitted to continue to hold the documentary evidence if it was used in determining the application (i.e. if the IER Digital Service returned a negative match result and the evidence was required to establish the applicant’s identity). As always, any documentary evidence that you collect must be stored securely, and you must have processes in place to securely record and store the documents you receive. If the IER Digital Service returns a positive match, the documentary evidence is unnecessary and must be destroyed. You will therefore also need to have processes in place to securely destroy documents where necessary.

5.11 If the results of the applicant’s identity verification are not returned by the IER Digital Service by midnight on the day before the election determination deadline (by midnight, seven working days before the poll), then reference should be made to the contingency guidance in Section 7 of the Ministerial Guidance below.
Ministerial guidance

This guidance has been issued by the Minister under Section 1(3) of, and Paragraph 2(1) of Schedule 1 to, the Electoral Registration and Administration Act 2013. EROs must, by law, have regard to this guidance.

2 Using local data to establish identity with pass and fail matches

The relevant legislative references on which this guidance is based are set out in Appendix 1.

2.1 Local data matching in the verification process

2.1.1 When an individual applies to register to vote, either on a paper form or online, they are asked to supply their National Insurance Number and date of birth. This information, together with the applicant’s full name, is matched against the DWP CIS database; the results of this match will be returned to EROs with an overall match rating (pass or fail) for the applicant as well as a match rating against each item of data (name, NINo, DoB).

2.1.2 Where an applicant has been matched against DWP (a pass match) the ERO can then add the applicant’s details to the next available update to the electoral register (see section 1 on interpreting verification DWP data match results) provided the application as a whole has been positively determined.

Where it has not been possible to match the applicant the ERO may contact the applicant to query the information given on the application and (if it is not possible to resolve the query or if the ERO believes matching against local data may be more effective) may also use local data to verify the identity of the applicant. If the ERO decides not to contact the applicant or use local data matching, they should direct the applicant to the exceptions process so that they can establish their identity by providing documentary evidence.

2.1.3 In all cases, if the ERO cannot locate the applicant on local data or the ERO cannot be certain that local data verifies the applicant’s identity then the applicant must be directed to the exceptions process.

2.1.4 Where an applicant cannot provide a National Insurance Number, the ERO may use local data matching to verify their identity.
2.2 Potential data sources

2.2.1 There are a wide variety of data sources available to EROs that may be suitable for local data matching. These could include, but are not limited to:
- Adult Social Care data
- Local authority billing and payments data
- Blue Badge data
- Customer service database
- Council tax benefit and housing benefit database
- Housing (inc. Arms Length Management Organisations) data
- Leisure database
- Libraries data
- Parking Permits database
- Payroll data
- Penalty charge notice data
- Registrar data on births, deaths and marriages
- Schools admissions data

2.2.2 The availability of these data sources will depend on the type of authority in which the ERO is based (for example a district council ERO may not have direct access to adult social care data as this information is held by the county authority). Access may be practically limited by internal procedures within the authority that holds the data; however, the ERO is legally entitled to any data held by the authority which appointed them – including data held by other organisations working on behalf of the authority such as Arms Length Management Organisations. Legislation also allows those EROs appointed by a lower tier authority in a two tier structure to request relevant data from their County Council – it is at the discretion of the upper tier authority as to whether to supply this data and EROs should ensure that they have appropriate data sharing agreements in place where this data is supplied.

2.2.3 The list above is descriptive of the potential data sources that may be available to the ERO; each data source must be assessed against the criteria in section 2.4 of Ministerial Guidance before being used for local data matching.

2.2.4 The ERO should also consider the coverage afforded by any one data set. Where a data set has limited coverage the ERO may wish to consider aggregating that data set with another to provide greater coverage across their area. Data sets with limited coverage may also have value where they correlate with groups identified by the ERO as part of their engagement strategy.

2.2.5 While the ERO has legal entitlement to their local authority’s data, they should conduct any data matching activities in accordance with current legislation (in particular the Data Protection Act 1998) and relevant guidance and good practice. The statutory Data Sharing Code of Practice and the two data sharing checklists (both available on the Information Commissioner’s Office website at http://ico.org.uk/for_organisations/data_protection/topic_guides/data_sharing) may be of particular interest to the ERO.

2.3 Methods of local data matching

2.3.1 Manual data matching is likely to be the main form of data matching used in verification. It involves visually checking records from the local data source against the electoral register. This may have cost implications for both staff resources and time if dealing with large volumes of data. However, it allows the ERO to interpret and make a judgement on complex data (written notes attached to a council tax record for example) which may yield an accurate result. Manual data matching would also be suited to dealing with small scale local data sources, such as the lists of recently deceased persons provided by Registrars.

2.3.2 Automated data matching is the use of a computer programme or algorithm to match two or more sets of data (the local data source and a list of applications, for example) against one another to produce a list of matches and mismatches. This form of matching is suited to matching large volumes of records.

2.3.3 Though automated local data matching was used mainly by EROs during the confirmation process at the beginning of the transition to IER, it may also continue to be useful for verification. It could be used where a number of applications are grouped together to be verified at the same time (this may be particularly the case during the canvass period or a pre-election period, when a large volume of applications are being received).

2.3.4 Because this form of matching does not require human interaction to check every record, the ERO should ensure that matching software and/or algorithms are thoroughly tested before being used. EROs should examine what capacity for undertaking this kind of work already exists within their local authority (for example, a local authority may be matching benefits data against other data sets to prevent and detect fraud). Automated matching would still require an element of human interaction from the ERO to ensure that matching was being undertaken to the expected standard and to resolve queries.

2.3.5 There are a variety of sources that may be able to provide the ERO with automated data matching capability: the ERO’s authority may have the capacity to develop new processes or adapt existing processes to achieve this, and there are also a number of private companies who offer data matching services. EROs who wish to conduct automated data matching should investigate all possibilities to achieve a cost effective solution.

2.3.6 If an ERO chooses to outsource any local data matching activities, to either a private company or another part of their local authority, the ERO should ensure that the group conducting the data matching is fully aware of both the Data Protection Act and the rules governing supply of the electoral register.

2.4 Evaluating local data sources in verification

2.4.1 Where an ERO chooses to use local data matching for verification, they must decide whether each data source they intend to use can satisfy the requirements of the task.

2.4.2 Verification matching requires the ERO to establish the identity of the person applying. This means that local data sets which can be used for this purpose will be limited to those where the resident’s identity has already been established for example, where an ERO wishes to use data gathered under regulation 35 this would mean data held on people who are in receipt of some form of benefit from the local authority, such as council tax benefit, or housing benefit.

2.4.3 EROs should assess their intended data record against the following criteria before using it to conduct local data matching as part of the verification process:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Criteria</th>
<th>Notes</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Has the applicant provided identity evidence to the data holder?</td>
<td>The data source must record that the applicant has provided documentary evidence to prove their identity to the local authority. This could be; a) a passport or similar photo ID; b) a range of trusted government documents and/or financial and social history documents such as, birth certificate, adoptions certificate, financial statements, utility bills etc.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Has the applicant’s evidence been confirmed as valid by the data holder?</td>
<td>The data source should record that the evidence provided by the applicant has been validated by checking with the issuing authority or against guidance provided by the issuing authority</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Has the data holder ensured that the evidence provided belongs to the person applying?</td>
<td>The data source should record that the identity of the applicant has been verified by comparison of the applicant to the strongest piece of identity evidence</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

| Does the data holder check that the evidence provided is not fraudulent? | The data source should record that the identity of the applicant has been subjected to counter fraud checks and that the document has been confirmed as genuine |

2.4.4 All of the above criteria must be fulfilled before a data set can be considered suitable for matching.

2.5 General considerations

2.5.1 There is a key difference between data which an organisation has gathered for itself (such as its payroll data) and data that is based on information provided by individuals about themselves. While data holders have a responsibility under the Data Protection Act (DPA) to ensure the accuracy of the data they hold, the DPA says that the data holder will not be deemed to have breached the data protection principles if the inaccuracy of the data is the fault of the individual supplying it. EROs should therefore carefully consider if the source(s) of the data they are using is reliant on information provided by individuals and assess whether that information is likely to be accurate. For example, applications for library membership may be based entirely on information provided by the service user with no checks by the local authority on the accuracy of the information. The ERO may conclude that, because of this, their library data is not suitable for local data matching.

2.5.2 EROs should also consider what data standards and/or good practice exist for the local data source they wish to use. The ERO should ask the data holder whether data standards or good practice exist for the data sources they intend to use and then judge whether the data holder meets these standards or if it follows good practice. For example, the Department for Work and Pensions has set out detailed guidance on good practice for the processing and use of council tax benefit and housing benefit, which includes guidance on the checking of evidence provided to local authorities and how to deal with fraud. An ERO from an authority that delivers its benefits service to these standards should be confident in using benefits data for local data matching.

2.6 Determination of results

2.6.1 The purpose of local data matching is to provide the ERO with further information, beyond the DWP data match, with which to make a determination as to whether to allow a new application.

2.6.2 There are only two forms of match for verification, pass and fail. Pass matches are those where the applicant’s identifiers (NINo, DoB, and name) have been successfully matched against DWP records. Because there is no match against address (the connection between the applicant and their address having been established by the ERO by other means) and because DWP have confirmed the identity of the applicant, EROs should not need to conduct local data checks against pass matches.

2.6.3 An ERO may use local data matching to verify applicants whose personal identifiers cannot be matched against DWP records or who cannot provide these identifiers.

2.6.4 One of the key elements in using local data matching to make a determination on an elector/applicant is the ERO’s confidence in the specific record used to match against the application. The level of trust an ERO places in an individual record will be affected by their belief that the data source as a whole can be considered to be reliable. However, there are three principles in making a determination based on local data that EROs must consider:

- Any determination made by an ERO should take into account the results of the data match against the DWP database prior to local data matching, where this takes place (see Section 1.4 for an exception to this);
- Any decision made by an ERO should be capable of being defended in the event of challenge with a clear audit trail;
- An ERO should be confident that the local information they are using verifies the identity of a new applicant – where the ERO has any doubt as to the evidence they should proceed to the next stage of the process (exceptions).

2.7 Deciding whether to use local data

2.7.1 While the ERO has a legal duty under section 9A of the Representation of the People Act 1983, this duty does not make the use of local data for verification matching compulsory; the ERO may decide that the local data which is available does not verify the identity of the applicant or that directing the applicant to the exceptions process is a more effective means of establishing identity. However, the ERO’s decision on whether to use local data matching should be taken in knowledge of the benefits that local data matching can have in terms of reducing follow-up costs and the burden on the applicant to provide evidence.

2.7.2 In addition to considering the suitability of available data sets for this work, EROs will also need to evaluate the potential costs and benefits of local data matching; because the results of this evaluation will vary guidance can only be broadly descriptive of local data matching rather than a definite approach that all EROs must take.

2.7.3 It is possible, however, to define the range of approaches that are available to the ERO and what qualities make data suitable for local data matching.

2.7.4 Before using local data to inform their determination, EROs must ask the following questions:
  • What sources of local data are available to me?
  • Is the data record I intend to use accurate? (section 2.5)
  • What benefit will I gain from using local data matching for a particular task?
  • What resources will I need to be able to use local data effectively?
  • What are the costs involved in developing/using local data matching capacity?
  • Can I achieve beneficial results in sufficient time to meet the needs of the task?

2.7.5 Regulations 23, 35, and 35A of the People Regulations 2001 (for both England and Wales, and Scotland) are the relevant regulations about the use of data sources by EROs in order to make a determination.

2.7.6 Regulation 23 allows the ERO to require any person to supply them with information required for purposes of the ERO’s duties in maintaining the register of electors. The ERO is therefore entitled to request data sets from organisations where the ERO deems it necessary for the purpose of verifying the identity of an applicant. Any data source that the ERO uses for this purpose must meet the requirements of paragraph 2.5.3. It should be noted that the ERO is not permitted to obtain information from individual applicants under Regulation 23 in order to make a determination of that person’s application.

2.7.7 Regulation 35 allows the ERO to inspect any data held by the council which appointed the ERO, any superintendent registrar of births, deaths and marriages, any registrar of births and deaths, and any registrar of marriages (note that the latter two are not limited to registrars within the ERO’s local authority area), and (where the ERO is appointed by a District Council) the relevant County Council. The ERO is also allowed to inspect any data held by private contractors or arm’s length organisations that provide services to a local authority or undertake work on behalf of that authority - for example, if a private contractor has been appointed to collect council tax on behalf of the local authority, the ERO for that authority is entitled to access the data held by that contractor regardless of any contractual arrangements.

2.7.8 Regulation 35A gives express permission for local authorities which have not directly appointed an ERO to provide data to this ERO but requires a written agreement between the ERO and the authority to be in place before any transfer of data occurs. The written agreement should regulate the processing of information, specifically; its transfer, storage, destruction, and security.

2.7.9 Paragraph 1(5) of Schedule 2 to the Representation of the People Act 1983 has the effect of exempting information requested under Regulation 35 or 35A from any other statutory or other restriction on its disclosure.

2.7.10 The exemption described in paragraph 2.7.9 does not extend to data supplied under Regulation 23. This means that the provisions of the Data Protection Act will apply to data gathered in this way; you should seek further guidance from your organisation’s data security team on what you will need to do in order to ensure that any data transactions are DPA compliant.

2.8 Evaluating local data matching practices

2.8.1 As well as taking decisions on whether to use local data matching, the ERO should also undertake evaluation of any existing local data matching practices. The ERO should be conducting ongoing monitoring and evaluation of the costs and benefits of local data matching, and keeping under review the data sets used. Evaluation should also take into account the other potential uses of local data matching apart from in verification – for example, in identifying potential electors to invite to register, or in sourcing one piece of evidence towards the deletion of an elector who is no longer eligible.
The exceptions process

5.12 While the majority of applicants are likely to have their identity verified by matching against DWP records, or subsequently against local data sources, there will be some applicants who cannot supply the required personal identifiers and cannot be matched.

5.13 Applicants who cannot supply some or all of the required personal identifiers and cannot be matched must be asked to provide documentary evidence to prove their identity — this is known as the exceptions process. Where an applicant cannot be matched and cannot supply documentary evidence, there is a separate attestation process (see paragraph 5.19 later in this Chapter for further guidance).

In Scotland, the IER Digital Service allows applications to register to be made by those aged 14 years old or over. However, only those aged 16 years old or over may apply through the IER Digital Service as special category electors.

Applications from those aged 14 or 15 years old will not be sent for verification against DWP records and so you will not receive verification results with the application. Instead, you will need to verify the applicant’s identity using education records or other local data that meets the standards set out in the Ministerial Guidance. Section 5 of the Ministerial Guidance details the exceptions process to be followed where you are unable to verify the identity of the applicant in this way.

5.14 Paragraphs 4.29 to 4.35 cover the document retention period for documents received as part of an application, including under the exceptions process, and this should be reflected in your document retention policy.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains guidance on document retention and maintaining your document retention policy, including what it should contain.

We have produced template notices and letters which you may use when undertaking the exceptions and attestation process. These are available on our website.
Ministerial guidance

This guidance has been issued by the Minister under Section 1(3) of, and Paragraph 2(1) of Schedule 1 to, the Electoral Registration and Administration Act 2013.

EROs must, by law, have regard to this guidance.

3 Registering electors who do not have or cannot provide a National Insurance Number

The relevant legislative references on which this guidance is based are set out in Appendix 1.

3.1 Information about NINos

3.1.1 NINos should be of the form: QQ 123456 C; that is, two letters, six numbers, one letter.

3.1.2 Some applicants will submit a NINo which does not contain a final letter. This is a valid submission and should be sent for verification as normal.

3.1.3 Some applicants may quote a temporary reference as though it was their NINo. The most common temporary references begin with:

- Two numbers (which can sometimes be found in correspondence from HMRC described as “national insurance number”)
- The letters OO
- The letters TN

3.1.4 If an applicant quotes temporary references in these formats, their details will not match at DWP. The ERO is not required to submit a temporary reference for verification and must proceed straight to the exceptions process. However, the ERO is also not required to filter these applications manually, and if the application is sent for verification as normal, it will fail, and the ERO will proceed to the exceptions process.

3.1.5 When completing a paper form, some electors may mistakenly provide numbers other than their NINo. The most common erroneous submissions are likely to be:

- NHS Number, these are 10 digits long, feature numbers only, and are normally laid out in a 3 – 3 – 4 format; and
- passport number, these are in varying formats, but not the same as either the NHS number or the NI No.

3.1.6 In cases where the applicant has clearly provided the wrong number, as detailed in 3.1.5, the ERO should contact the applicant, by any means of communication, including email and telephone, and ask them to provide the correct number. It is not possible to proceed with the application until a National Insurance Number has been given or a statement as to why it cannot be provided has been made, because the ERO cannot positively determine an incomplete application.

3.1.7 An application which does not have a correct NI No, is missing the applicant’s NI No, or does not give a reason why a NI No cannot be provided is not a complete application and cannot be determined by the ERO for purposes of being included on the electoral register.

3.1.8 The great majority of eligible electors will have a NI No. NI Nos are ordinarily, but not always, issued to:

- Those who legally work in the UK;
- Those who claim benefits in the UK (including those who have had a Student Loan); and
- Those who are present in the UK just before their sixteenth birthday and whose parents are claiming child benefit for them.

3.1.9 However, a small number of people who fall into one of these categories (for example, legal workers, benefit recipients, etc.) may not have a NI No.

3.1.10 A number of applicants are eligible to vote in the UK but will not be in possession of a NI No. For example, (this list is not exhaustive):

- A European citizen who is studying in the UK and who is financially self-sufficient;
- A European citizen who has been posted to work in the UK but who continues to pay tax in their home country;
- A British young person who was not issued a NI No by HMRC’s automatic issuing process;
- A Commonwealth citizen who lives in the UK and who is financially self-sufficient;
- A European citizen who has never worked or claimed benefits in the UK; and
- A British citizen who has never worked.
3.2 Applicants who do not have or cannot submit a NINo

3.2.1 On both the digital and the paper application forms, applicants who do not submit a NINo are asked to explain why they are not providing it. The ERO should be satisfied with the reason given for non-provision of a NINo.

3.2.2 As there is no definitive list of those who should hold NINos, it is not possible to give a list of universally satisfactory reasons for non-provision of a NINo. Reasons that EROs are likely to encounter include:

- The applicant was never issued one;
- The applicant refuses to give it; and
- The applicant cannot find their NINo.

3.2.3 It is possible that other reasons may be given to the ERO as to why a NINo cannot be provided. The ERO should assess the validity of the reason given on a case by case basis, bearing in mind the guidance given in this document.

3.2.4 If the applicant makes a statement on the application form that they have never been issued a NINo, and the ERO has no evidence to contradict the claim, the applicant should be directed to the exceptions process. DWP are not allowed to issue NINos for the purposes of registering to vote, and EROs must not ask applicants who do not have a NINo to apply for one.

3.2.5 If an applicant makes a statement on the application form that they refuse to provide their NINo, it is at the discretion of the ERO to determine whether to reject the application or to direct the applicant to the exceptions process. The applicant is required by regulation 26(1) (f) of the Representation of the People Regulations 2001 to provide their NINo, and can be reminded of this fact.

3.2.6 If the applicant makes a statement on the application form that they have lost or forgotten their NINo, the ERO should either ask the applicant to locate their NINo (see paragraph 3.2.7) or direct the applicant to the exceptions process.

3.2.7 There is no definitive list of places where an applicant can find their NINo, although most paper communications from HMRC and DWP will feature it. The following is a list of places the NINo is most likely to be found, depending on the circumstances of the applicant:
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

For people over 16 but not yet working
- A registration letter from HMRC telling them what their NINo is (their parents may have this)

For employed people
- Pay slips from their employer
- P60 (end of year statement of pay and tax from their employer)
- P2 (notice of tax coding from HMRC)
- P45 (from their employer when they left a job)
- P11D (from their employer if they get any benefits in kind)
- P800 (from HMRC if they have over or underpaid tax at the end of the year)
- Notice to file a Tax Return (SA316) or Tax Return (if they are in Self-Assessment)

Self-employed people
- Notice to file a Tax Return (SA316) or Tax Return
- Statement of Account

Retired people
- the letter issued each year by DWP in February or March telling you how much your pension will be

Other
- A plastic NINo card (these stopped being issued in 2011)

4 Dates of birth

4.1 Information about dates of birth

4.1.1 A small number of people who are eligible to vote cannot provide a date of birth (DoB). Those individuals who have never known their actual DoB will most likely have been given an ‘official’ DoB over the course of time; this might include a DoB on an adoption certificate, a naturalisation certificate, a passport or a driving licence. These suffice for the purposes of making an IER application, and they are likely to match the DoB on record with the DWP.
4.2 Applicants who do not or cannot submit a date of birth

4.2.1 On both the digital and the paper application forms, applicants who do not submit a DoB are asked to explain why they are not providing it. The ERO should be satisfied with the reason given for non-provision of a DoB.

4.2.2 Applications without a DoB must also be accompanied by a statement that the applicant is over 18 and (in England and Wales only), whether the applicant is aged 76 or over.

5 The exceptions process

The relevant legislative references on which this guidance is based are set out in Appendix 1.

5.1 How to use the exceptions process

5.1.1 Where an applicant is required to provide documentary evidence, the ERO should write to the applicant informing them that it has not been possible to establish their identity as required by law and asking them to supply documentary evidence.

5.1.2 EROs have discretion to reject applications where the application is obviously false (e.g. the applicant has given an address which has clearly been fabricated or does not exist) and do not need to undertake the exceptions process in such cases.

5.1.3 The letter to the applicant should list the types and quantity of evidence that must be provided as set out in the table below.

5.1.4 The ERO may also set a deadline date for the applicant to respond; this will be helpful to the ERO when deciding to reject an application because no response has been received. The time given to applicants to respond is at the discretion of the ERO; however, it should allow the applicant reasonable time to locate and provide the documents required for exceptions.

5.1.5 In the first instance, the ERO should request that the applicant provide photocopies of the evidence to the ERO. EROs should ensure that copies of documents provided by applicants, or copies taken by the ERO of original documents, should be stored securely in the same way as application forms. The applicant may attend the ERO’s office in person with either copies or original documents if they are unwilling to send copies through the post.

5.1.6 The ERO must be satisfied that the documents or copies provided to them appear to be genuine.

5.1.7 Where the ERO has doubt as to whether a document that has been copied is genuine or where the copy is of such poor quality that the ERO cannot make an assessment of the document, the ERO may ask the applicant to present the original document(s) in person at the ERO’s office. It is also permissible for the applicant to send original documents to the ERO to be copied and returned, however EROs should be aware that they would become responsible for the secure transit of the document.

5.1.8 Where the ERO has doubt as to whether an original document is genuine, they may ask the applicant to provide alternative documentary evidence in the first instance. Where alternative documentary evidence is not available, the ERO should direct the applicant to the attestation process or reject the application.

5.1.9 An application using the exceptions process is not considered complete until the applicant has provided satisfactory documentary evidence of their identity. Applications should not be determined for inclusion on the register until a complete application has been made.

5.1.10 Where an applicant has provided documentary evidence that does not appear to be genuine, the ERO should advise the applicant of the penalties for supplying false information. The ERO should inform their police Single Point Of Contact (SPOC) that false information may have been supplied.

5.1.11 If an applicant does not respond to the ERO’s request to supply documentary evidence, the ERO may reject the application and inform the applicant of this in writing.

5.1.12 The types and quantities of documents required to successfully establish an applicant’s identity using the exceptions process are as follows:

- Route 1: Applicants may provide any one document from table 1 to the ERO to establish their identity.
- Route 2: Applicants who cannot provide any of the documents from table 1 can provide one document from table 2 and two additional documents from either table 2 or table 3.
- Route 3: Applicants who cannot provide any of the documents in tables 1 or 2 can provide four documents from table 3.

viii EROs should be aware, and should make applicants aware, that classifying a photo driving licence as a primary identification document does not mean that a photo driving licence has greater value as a licence to drive than a paper licence. The photo driving licence has been classified as a primary identification document because an ERO can easily establish the identity of the licence holder from the photo on the licence. The ERO should assure an applicant who holds a paper licence that this can be used to establish their identity in the next group of documents if other photo ID is unavailable.
5.1.13 In all cases, each piece of documentary evidence should refer to the applicant by name. For example, a credit card statement provided as evidence should be for a credit card held in the name of the applicant.

5.1.14 Applicants who meet the requirements set out above and have provided evidence which appears to be genuine to the ERO have established their identity to the standard set by regulations and Ministerial Guidance.

5.2 Next steps

5.2.1 An applicant who has established their identity to the ERO through the use of documentary evidence according to the framework set out in this guidance should, provided they have satisfied the other eligibility criteria for registration, have their application positively determined.

5.2.2 If an applicant cannot provide the quantity and types of documentary evidence set out in this guidance, they should be asked to provide an attestation in support of their application.

5.2.3 Where an applicant provides documentary evidence that appears to the ERO to be false, the ERO may either ask the applicant to provide an attestation in support of their application or reject the application.
Documents in support of an application

Document authenticity checks

5.15 The purpose of documents being provided in support of an application is to allow you to satisfy yourself as to the identity of the person making the application and that they are the person named in the application. You will therefore need to be satisfied that a document provided to you for this purpose is genuine.

5.16 The Home Office has produced guidance on examining identity documents. It covers:

- the security features in identity documents
- how identity documents are forged
- how to detect basic forgeries

5.17 General tips on what to look for when determining if a document is genuine can be found on the website of the Centre for the Protection of National Infrastructure.

5.18 The following table provides information on where guidance for checking particular documents that may be used for the verification of an applicant’s identity can be found. It only covers the documents for which guidance is available:

The attestation process

5.19 Attestation is the final option in the verification of identity process. Applicants can only use attestation to establish their identity once all the other stages - DWP matching and local data matching (where appropriate) and the exceptions process – have been undertaken and it has not been possible to verify their identity.

We have produced template notices and letters which you may use when undertaking the attestation process. These are available on our website.

5.20 Paragraphs 4.29 to 4.35 cover the document retention period for documents received as part of an application, including under the attestation process, and this should be reflected in your document retention policy.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains guidance on document retention and maintaining your document retention policy, including what it should contain.
Ministerial guidance

This guidance has been issued by the Minister under Section 1(3) of, and Paragraph 2(1) of Schedule 1 to, the Electoral Registration and Administration Act 2013.

EROs must, by law, have regard to this guidance.

6 The attestation process

The relevant legislative references on which this guidance is based are set out in Appendix 1.

6.1 Managing and assessing attestations

6.1.1 Where an applicant cannot prove their identity by providing documentary evidence to the type and quantity required by the exceptions process, the ERO should write to the applicant informing them of this and asking them to provide an attestation in support of their application.

6.1.2 The ERO may wish to design a form that contains the necessary legal statements and requirements for an attestation; alternatively, the ERO may wish to set this detail out in the letter to the applicant. In all cases, the ERO must communicate the legislative requirements for an attestation as set out in regulations 26B (see section 6.1.10 onwards).

6.1.3 If an applicant submits an attestation which is not made using a pro forma designed by the ERO but which contains all of the required information for an attestation, the ERO should accept this attestation as valid.

6.1.4 The ERO should also provide examples of a ‘person of good standing’ (see section 6.1.13) to aid the applicant in identifying a suitable attestor.

6.1.5 The ERO may wish to consider setting a deadline date for the applicant to respond; this will be helpful to the ERO when deciding to reject an application because no response has been received. The time given to applicants to respond is at the discretion of the ERO; however, it should allow the applicant reasonable time to source and return their attestation.

6.1.6 An application using the attestation process is not considered complete until the applicant has provided a satisfactory attestation that establishes their identity. Applications should not be determined until a complete application has been made.

6.1.7 The applicant should be advised that it is not permissible for an attester to charge for providing an attestation.

6.1.8 The applicant may deliver their attestation in person to the ERO’s office, or alternatively they may send it by post or arrange to have it delivered to the ERO’s office, though a submission by electronic means is not acceptable. The ERO may also, if they wish, and particularly in cases where the applicant is not physically able to deliver their attestation, send a member of staff to the applicant’s registered address to collect the attestation in person.

6.1.9 One of the requirements of the attester is that they supply their electoral number as part of the attestation. EROs should be aware that they may receive requests from potential attestors to supply this information.

6.1.10 When the ERO receives an attestation, they should ask the following questions to assess whether the attestation meets the requirements of legislation:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Question</th>
<th>Answer</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The attestor has stated that the applicant is the person named in the application (this would be confirmed by a written statement and the attestor signing the attestation)</td>
<td>Yes/No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The attestor has confirmed that they are aware of the penalty for providing false information to the registration officer (this would be confirmed by a written statement and the attestor signing the attestation)</td>
<td>Yes/No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The attestor has confirmed that they are not the spouse, civil partner, parent, grandparent, brother, sister, child or grandchild of the applicant (this would be confirmed by a written statement and the attestor signing the attestation)</td>
<td>Yes/No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The attestor has given their full name (this should be written or printed on the attestation)</td>
<td>Yes/No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The attestor has given their date of birth (this should be written or printed on the attestation)</td>
<td>Yes/No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The attestor has given their electoral number (this should be written or printed on the attestation)</td>
<td>Yes/No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The attestor has given their occupation (this should be written or printed on the attestation)</td>
<td>Yes/No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The attestor has dated the attestation</td>
<td>Yes/No</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The attestor has signed the attestation</td>
<td>Yes/No</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

6.1.11 If the answer to all of these questions is yes then the applicant has provided a complete attestation; however, if one or more are answered with a no then the attestation is not complete and the applicant must be directed to ask the attestor to supply the missing information. If an attestor cannot supply the missing information then the applicant should be told that they must seek an attestation from another source, otherwise their application will be rejected. Again, the ERO may wish to set a deadline date for this.

6.1.12 Once a complete attestation has been received, the ERO must assess whether the attestation is valid. The first question to be answered in this respect is:

a) Is the attestor a ‘person of good standing in the community’?

6.1.13 There is no precise definition of good standing; however, for purposes of evaluating this point for an attestation, the ERO should consider it to mean someone who has credentials that can be checked and would suffer professional or reputational damage if they were to provide a false attestation. The list in the table below is not intended to be definitive but is intended to illustrate to EROs which professions could be described as of good standing:

6.1.14 NOTE: An unemployed/retired person who is of good standing in the community is not precluded from attesting an application.

6.1.15 EROs must judge each attestation on its individual merits rather than apply a blanket policy.

6.1.16 The ERO must assess whether the attestation satisfies the relevant requirements, by answering two further questions:
   b) is the attestor registered to vote in a local authority area in England or Wales, or in Scotland?; and, if so,
   c) has the attestor signed fewer than two attestations since either:
      i) the last publication of the annual register, or
      ii) the attestor was first added to the register, whichever is most recent?

6.1.17 To answer these questions, if the attestor’s address is in the same local authority area as the applicant, the ERO should check their electoral register and their electoral management software to check that the attestor satisfies conditions b) and c).

6.1.18 If the attestor’s address is not in the same local authority area as the applicant, the applicant’s ERO should contact the attestor’s ERO in order to confirm that the attestor satisfies conditions b) and c). The attestor’s ERO should, if requested, check their electoral register, confirm that this is so, and inform the applicant’s ERO. This must be done in a timely manner, particularly nearing a determination deadline before an election.

6.1.19 If the applicant’s address is situated in a local authority in England or Wales, the attestor must be registered to vote in a local authority area in England or Wales. If the applicant’s address is situated in a local authority in Scotland, the attestor must be registered to vote in a local authority area in Scotland. An individual registered to vote in a local authority area in England or Wales cannot attest for an individual applying to be registered in a local authority area in Scotland and vice versa.

6.1.20 In all cases, the provision of the attestor’s name, address, electoral number, and date of birth will aid in establishing the answer to question b), whether the attestor is registered in a local authority area in England or Wales, or Scotland.

6.1.21 In regard to question c) ‘Has the attestor signed fewer than two attestations since either the last publication of the register or since the attestor was added to it, whichever is the most recent?’, attestors are limited to signing no more than two attestations in any one electoral year (normally from 1 December to 30 November), or since their entry was added to the register in that local authority area, whichever is the shortest period. This allows the attestor’s ERO to confidently supply the required information without being required to account for attestations made whilst the attestor was registered elsewhere.

6.1.22 The ERO’s election management software should record each time an elector has signed an attestation; where the limit has been reached, the ERO should reject the attestation for this reason - this does not prevent the applicant from seeking another attestation from a different elector. Attestations should be processed and assessed in the order they are received from the ERO.

6.1.23 If the attestor’s address is not in the same local authority area as the applicant, the applicant’s ERO should contact the attestor’s ERO to check if the attestor fulfils these conditions. This will mean that if the attestor fulfils conditions a), b) and c), the attestation will be accepted, and so the attestor’s ERO will be able to record this against the elector’s record. This will then count towards this elector’s total allowable attestations, in case they sign another attestation in the future.

6.1.24 Where the ERO can answer yes to questions a) - c) then the attestation is valid and has successfully established the identity of the applicant. If the answer is no to one or more of the questions then the application is not valid and the applicant cannot be registered.
Contingency

5.21 The Minister has issued guidance on the processes you should follow to verify the identity of an applicant should the IER Digital Service be unavailable. The Ministerial guidance also covers the processes to be followed should you be unable to receive and process applications made online in the event of a service outage which prevents normal use of the IER Digital Service.

5.22 You should have a contingency plan in place and this should be incorporated into your existing business continuity plans and your organisational disaster recovery plans, as appropriate. It should be reviewed and updated on a regular basis.
7.1 Introduction

7.1.1 IER requires EROs to be satisfied as to the identity of any person applying for inclusion on the register. This means that the ERO will need to take steps to verify the identity of an applicant. Under IER an applicant must provide personal identifiers to establish that they are the person named in the application or state why they cannot provide these identifiers. Where these identifiers are supplied and where it is possible to do so, the ERO must send this information to be verified against DWP records and use the result of that matching process to assist their determination as to whether the applicant can be included on the register.

7.1.2 The IER Digital Service has been robustly tested and measures are in place to ensure that the service will be continually operated; situations where this system fails are highly unlikely. There is also a possibility that the systems EROs use may experience difficulty connecting to the IER Digital Service because of a local service outage. Whilst either possibility is not considered to be likely, it is sensible to plan ahead for any circumstances where a service outage, either at a local level within the ERO’s organisation or at a national level prevents communication with the IER Digital Service from taking place. The ERO must, where it is possible to do so, use the IER Digital Service to verify an applicant’s identity. However there may be times where one of the situations described above or some other scenario prevents the ERO from accessing this service either to send or receive information.

7.1.3 It is likely that the most appropriate course of action will be for the ERO to wait until the service becomes available again. There may be circumstances, however, in which an ERO needs to make an urgent determination of the applications they hold. For example, a service outage immediately prior to a registration deadline may require urgent action to ensure that all applications are determined before publication of the relevant notice of alteration. If the ERO has made reasonable efforts to access the IER DS and not been successful they should contact the IER Support Centre. Taking into account the advice from the IER Support Centre, EROs should then consider whether or not to undertake local contingency.

7.1.4 EROs will also need to be able to receive and process applications made online in the event of a service outage which makes normal use of the IER Digital Service impossible. Depending on the nature of the service outage they should speak with the IER Support Centre who will advise them on the available options for accessing application data.

7.1.5 In all cases EROs should ensure that they have local contingency plans in place and have included the requirement to maintain contact with the IER Digital Service in their organisation’s disaster recovery plans. Sections 7.3 and 7.4 set out this requirement in more detail.

7.1.6 This next section outlines the measures that are available to EROs and the level of assistance they may expect from the IER Digital Service in the event of a critical service outage.

7.2 Actions to take if you cannot access the IER Digital Service

7.2.1 Determine the source of the outage: EROs will need to determine the source of the problem as far as they are able. EROs should contact their organisation’s IT department in the first instance; where the issue does not appear to be a local one, they should access the information available on the status of the IER Digital Serviceix.

7.2.2 Assess the problem: EROs should assess whether the service outage will have a critical impact on voter registration. Factors an ERO may consider in reaching this assessment will include; the proximity of any registration deadlines, the volume of outstanding applications to be processed, the projected resolution time of the service outage, and the resources available to them to carry out the registration process in a timely fashion. For example, an outage during the ordinary rolling registration monthly cycle where an election deadline is not imminent may not be deemed by the ERO to have a critical impact – applications could be determined after the service has been resumed.

7.2.3 Report the problem: Local issues should be reported to your organisation’s IT department for resolution or your EMS supplier if the problem appears to be EMS based. EROs should check any communications from the IER Support Centre and, if these do not contain information on their issue, report it to the IER Support Centre.9 The Support Centre will discuss with EROs potential solutions to any issues and will have measures in place to resolve many of the most likely issues around local connectivity to the IER service.

7.2.4 Decide whether to deploy contingencies: EROs should use the information they have gathered under the previous steps to decide whether to invoke their contingency plans. Whilst the factors that affect this decision will be dependent on individual circumstances, EROs should generally consider the projected resolution time of the issue, the proximity of any registration deadlines, the number of registration applications awaiting determination, and the resources available to them to carry out the registration process in a timely fashion.

7.2.5 Record your actions: EROs should make a record of any issue, whether contingency plans were employed, what actions they took, and what the outcomes were from these actions. This information may prove useful to EROs in the event of any challenge to their decisions.

7.2.6 Advice and guidance will be available to EROs at any time from the IER Support Centre, who can be reached at ierservice@digital.cabinet-office.gov.uk.

7.3 Contingency planning for verifying identity

7.3.1 If an ERO cannot access the IER Digital Service and will not be able to do so in time to determine applications before the deadline, then the ERO will need to turn to a local method of verification. In these circumstances, there are two possible methods other than the check against DWP data for verifying identity within the IER legislative framework: matching applicants against local data, and the exceptions process which requires applicants to supply documentary evidence of their identity. Where an applicant cannot prove their identity by providing documentary evidence to the type and quantity required by the exceptions process, the attestation process should be followed. Guidance on local data matching for verification purposes and the exceptions and attestations processes is contained in sections 2, 5 and 6.

7.3.2 Each ERO should decide which approach is most appropriate in their individual circumstances. Whichever approach is taken, the ERO must be satisfied as to the applicant’s identity before they can allow an application.

7.3.3 Matching against local data allows the ERO to use data sources available to them under Regulation 35 of the Representation of the People Regulations 2001 to verify that the person making the application is the person that they claim to be. Guidance on local data matching for verification purposes can be found in section 2. If an ERO does not normally carry out local data-matching for verification purposes, this option should only be used as a contingency if the ERO is satisfied that the data sources available to them can satisfy the requirements of the task, as set out in sections 2.5 and 2.6 of the Ministerial guidance.

7.3.4 If an applicant cannot be matched against local data, or the ERO chooses not to use this option, the exceptions process must be followed and applicants must be asked to provide documentary evidence of their identity in order to register. The ERO will need to be mindful of the burden this could potentially impose on the applicant, such as, for example, the elderly or vulnerable or those for whom English is not their first language. More information on the documentary exceptions process can be found in section 5.

7.3.5 EROs should establish in advance of the start of IER which contingency method(s) they intend to employ and what resources they will require to enable them. This should be documented in the ERO’s contingency plans. Resource/IT requirements should be logged as critical requirements in their organisation’s disaster recovery plans and provision made for the necessary resources to implement them.

7.3.6 The ERO should check the progress and resolution time for the problems which initiated the contingency process in order that they can revert back to the IER Digital Service as soon as these are resolved.

7.4 Contingency planning for receipt of online applications

7.4.1 EROs should notify their EMS supplier and if necessary, the IER Support Centre if they are experiencing difficulty with retrieving or viewing online applications. The ERO should ensure that they inform the IER Support Centre of any registration deadlines that are imminent; the Support Centre will make an assessment of the potential impact to the registration service and will make every effort to provide the ERO with alternative means of accessing application data. The nature of this assistance will be dependent on circumstances; however the Support Centre will provide full advice on the implementation of the proposed solution.

7.4.2 EROs should be aware that circumstances may mean that it is not possible for online applications to be verified against DWP data in the event of a service outage. EROs should ensure that their contingencies identified in 7.3 are also capable of being used for the receipt of online applications from the IER Support Centre as, for example, there may be the need to use the exceptions process to check the identity of online applications.
6 Determining entitlement to be registered

6.1 For you to determine that someone is entitled to be registered you need to be satisfied that:

- the application is made by someone who appears to be the person named on the application (see Chapter 5: Verification)
- any statutory requirements in relation to the application, including how it may be made and the information it must contain, are met (see Chapter 4: Applications, Chapter 7: Special category electors and Chapter 8: Amendments to existing entries)
- the person named on the application appears to the ERO to meet the eligibility criteria for registration and is not disqualified from registering (see Part 2: ‘Registration framework’)

When can entitlement to be registered be determined?

6.2 You should determine entitlement as soon as is practicable. As far as possible, you should ensure that you make a determination by the relevant deadline for the next register update - be that a notice of alteration or the revised register. This will ensure that your register is kept as up-to-date as possible.

6.3 You must make a determination on entitlement to registration based on whether or not an applicant meets the requirements in paragraph 6.1. You can also require additional evidence where you consider it necessary to verify identity or determine an applicant’s entitlement to register.

6.4 Once you have received an application, it may be determined without a hearing after five clear working days have passed from the day the application was listed, provided it meets the statutory requirements of an application, no objections to registration have been received and the identity of the applicant has been verified.

6.5 In the case of applications accompanied by an application for anonymous registration, it is not necessary to wait five days for determination. This is because the application cannot be objected to and you can allow the application without a hearing at any time once you are satisfied that it meets all of the requirements for registration.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

6.6 If an objection has been made you must consider it before proceeding to a determination. If an objection has been deemed by you to be clearly without merit you can proceed to determine the application. If you are of the opinion that the objector is not entitled to object, you may disallow the objection and must inform the objector. If not, the determination of the application will be made alongside the determination of the objection.

In Scotland, although a registration application from a person under 16 years old is included in the list of applications for registration, it must not be entered in the list of applications available for public inspection. You can determine the application on the sixth working day after the application has been entered in the list of applications.

You can find guidance on objections in Chapter 10: Reviews, objections and hearings.

Application hearings

6.7 Applications for registration do not have to be taken at face value. You have the option to take any application to a hearing. You should consider proceeding to a hearing where you have questions about the integrity of an application. For example, you may have reason to doubt the authenticity of the information provided in the application or of any documentary evidence supplied in support of the application. If you are unable to resolve these doubts through the process of verifying the identity of the applicant or any further correspondence with the potential elector, including through the supply of any evidence obtained under your power to require evidence of age and nationality, you should proceed to a hearing.

6.8 Hearings may also be required by a person who objects to an application or by an applicant who receives notice that their application is to be disallowed.

Further information on the hearings process can be found in Chapter 10: Reviews, objections and hearings.

Allowing applications for registration

6.9 Where you determine that a person is entitled to be registered, you must add the person to the register at the next opportunity and send a confirmation letter to confirm the application is successful.
Confirmation letter when application is successful (in response to an invitation to register)

6.10 Where an application is returned in response to an invitation to register and is positively determined, you must confirm that their application has been successful. The confirmation must be given in writing and must include the date that the applicant will be added to the register and, where a previous address at which the applicant no longer resides has been given in the application, confirmation that their register entry relating to that address will be removed.

6.11 You must use the prescribed letter “Confirmation of a successful application (made in response to an ITR)” approved by the Minister for the Cabinet Office and made available by the Commission. The letter must not be amended.

6.12 The confirmation letter must be sent before the applicant is added to the register (for example, before publication of the next notice of alteration or before publication of the revised register, whichever is appropriate). The confirmation letter can be delivered to the applicant by hand, by post or by e-mail.

Confirmation letter when application is successful (unsolicited applications)

6.13 Where an application is returned that is not in response to an invitation to register and is positively determined, you must confirm that their application has been successful. The confirmation must be given in writing and must include the date that the applicant will be added to the register and, where a previous address at which the applicant no longer resides has been given in the application, confirmation that their register entry relating to that address will be removed. It must also include the ERO’s contact details and request that any person who receives the confirmation informs the ERO if the applicant is not resident at that address.

6.14 You must use the prescribed letter “Confirmation of a successful application (unsolicited)” approved by the Minister for the Cabinet Office and made available by the Commission. The letter must not be amended.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

6.15 The confirmation letter must be sent before the applicant is added to the register (i.e. before publication of the next notice of alteration or before publication of the revised register, whichever is appropriate). The confirmation letter can be delivered to the applicant by hand or by post, but cannot be delivered electronically.

Disallowing applications for registration

6.16 You must disallow an application where it:

- contains information demonstrating that it cannot be successful, or
- there is insufficient information to allow the application to succeed after you have taken all the necessary steps to obtain it, or
- the applicant’s identity could not be verified

6.17 If there is insufficient information to allow the application you should follow the steps set out in paragraphs 4.17 to 4.22.

6.18 Where you are of the view that an application for registration cannot be allowed, you must send a notice to the applicant stating that, in your opinion, the application cannot be allowed because:

- the particulars of the application are such that they do not entitle the applicant to succeed, or
- the matter has been concluded by a court decision

6.19 You must also give the applicant the opportunity to ask for a hearing, and set out that unless notice is received from the applicant within three working days requesting that you hear the application, the application may be disallowed. If you receive no request for a hearing, you may disallow the application and no further action is required. If a request is received, a hearing must be held (see Chapter 10: Reviews, objections and hearings).
7 Special category electors

7.1 Special category electors are:

- overseas electors, i.e. British citizens living outside the UK
- HM Forces service voters (and their spouses or civil partners)
- Crown servants and British Council employees (and their spouses or civil partners)
- electors who have a declaration of local connection, who include people living in the UK but who have no permanent address or fixed address
- anonymously registered electors, i.e. those who can register anonymously because their safety would be at risk if they appeared on the register using their name
- patients in mental health hospitals whose stay at the hospital is sufficient for them to be regarded as resident there
- remand prisoners whose stay at a penal institution is sufficient for them to be regarded as resident there

In Scotland, the franchise for Scottish Parliamentary and local government elections has been extended to include 16 and 17 year olds. This means that the local government register will include 16 and 17 year olds as full electors. Additionally, 15 year olds and some 14 year olds are entitled to be included as ‘attainers’. For the purposes of the local government register in Scotland, an attainer is someone who turns 16 by the end of the twelve months following the 1 December after the ‘relevant date’ see paragraph 4.12). In Scotland, the following are also eligible to register as special category electors:

- a person who is under 18 years old and living with a parent or guardian who is a member of HM Forces. They must be living in Scotland or would be living in Scotland if their parent or guardian were not based overseas.
- a person who is under 18 years old and living with a parent or guardian who is a Crown Servant or British Council employee serving abroad provided they would be living in Scotland if their parent or guardian were not based overseas
- a person under 16 who is or has been looked after by a local authority or is currently being kept in secure accommodation. They must have previously resided at an address in Scotland. Local authorities in Scotland have a duty to promote awareness of how to register as local government electors for children that are “looked after” and to provide assistance to help such young people to register. For further information about this duty, see Part 2: Registration Framework.
New applications as special category electors

7.2 The duty to send a second and third invitation to non-responding new potential electors and the duty to make at least one personal visit does not apply where someone has made an application:

- under Section 7(2) or 7A(2) of the RPA 1983
- by making a declaration of local connection, service declaration or overseas elector’s declaration
- to register anonymously.

Existing special category electors who are registered under the ’old registration provisions’

7.3 Special category electors who were registered before the introduction of individual electoral registration (i.e. before 10 June 2014 in England and Wales, and before 19 September 2014 in Scotland) did not have to register individually until they renewed their registration for the first time under individual electoral registration.

7.4 Where an existing special category elector’s registration renewal date fell in the three months beginning with the start of the transition to individual electoral registration, the special category elector did not need to provide personal identifiers and was able to renew their registration under the ‘old’ registration provisions. In England and Wales, the three month period ran from 10 June 2014 to 9 September 2014 (inclusive). In Scotland, the three month period ran from 19 September 2014 to 18 December 2014 (inclusive).

7.5 Since the registration of a member of HM Forces (or their spouse or civil partner) lasts for 5 years, it is therefore possible that there are some service voters who are still registered under the ‘old’ registration provisions. Once the declaration of these service voters expires, or their circumstances change, they will need to make a fresh application to register.

7.6 Before such an existing special category elector whose registration is not based on an individual registration application is due for renewal, they will be able to retain their absent vote or may apply for an absent vote even though they are not individually registered. They are the only category of elector who did not lose their absent vote entitlement because they were not registered individually on publication of the revised register by 1 December 2014 in England and Wales and by 2 March 2015 in Scotland.

Forms

You must use the special category elector registration forms approved by the Minister for the Cabinet Office and made available by the Commission. These have been updated to provide revised data protection messaging and you should ensure that you are using the latest versions as made available on our website. Overseas electors, HM Forces service voters (and their spouses or civil partners), and Crown servants & British Council employees (and their spouses or civil partners) may also apply through the IER Digital Service.

In Scotland, the IER Digital Service allows applications to register to be made by those aged 14 years old or over. However, only those aged 16 years old or over may apply through the IER Digital Service as special category electors.

Overseas electors

Who may register?

7.7 Subject to a set of conditions, a British citizen living abroad is entitled to be registered as an overseas elector if they are either:

- a person who is (or was) included in a register of Parliamentary electors before they left the UK, or
- a person who was too young to be included on the register at the time they left the UK

In Scotland, the franchise for Scottish Parliamentary and local government elections includes 16 and 17 year olds, but this is not relevant to the registration of overseas electors since overseas electors are not eligible to vote in Scottish Parliamentary or local government elections.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Conditions that apply to a person who is (or was) included in a register of Parliamentary electors before they left the UK:¹¹²

- that entry on the register was made on the basis that they were resident, or treated for the purposes of registration as resident, at that address
- that the entry on the register was in force within 15 years of the date given on the declaration provided as part of the application to register as an overseas elector, and
- they have not appeared in any other electoral register for any other qualifying address since being last registered at the application address

Conditions that apply to a person who was too young to be included on the register at the time they left the UK:¹¹³

- have last lived in the UK within 15 years of the date given on the declaration provided as part of their application to register as an overseas elector
- have been too young to have been included in a register of electors prior to residing overseas
- have the name of a parent or guardian included in a register of electors for the address at which they were residing prior to living overseas.

Contents of overseas applications

7.8 An application to register as an overseas elector must contain all of the following:¹¹⁴

- The applicant’s full name.
- The last UK address at which they were registered.
- An address where they can be contacted.
- Any address where the applicant has ceased to reside in the 12 months prior to the date of the application and, where that address is not in the UK, an indication of whether that person was registered as an overseas elector during this period.
- An indication of whether the applicant is resident at any other address, including any address where the applicant is currently registered and claims to be entitled to remain registered.
- The applicant’s date of birth or, if they are unable to provide this information, the reason why they are not able to do so and a statement as to whether the applicant is under 18 years old or aged 76 or over.
- The applicant’s National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so.
- An indication of whether the applicant requests their name to be omitted from the edited register.
- A declaration that the contents of the application are true.
- The date of the application.
- The appropriate declaration.
7.9 If an overseas applicant changed their name before their details last appeared on an electoral register in the UK, they may also provide their previous name, but this is not mandatory. However, it may help in verifying their identity and the application form must provide space for the applicant to provide this information if they wish.

7.10 The declaration must be dated and must state:\(^{115}\)

- The applicant’s full name and present address.
- Their previous name, and the reason for the change, if they changed their name since they last appeared on an electoral register in the UK
- That they are a British citizen.
- That they are not resident in the UK on the relevant date.
- The date when they ceased to be resident in the UK or, in the case of a person relying on registration in pursuance of a service declaration, when they ceased to have a service qualification or, if later, ceased to be so resident.
- Which of the two sets of conditions apply.
- In the case of the first set:
  - the address in the UK at which they were registered
  - if they were last registered in pursuance of a service or other declaration, rather than actual residence at the address and no longer had connection with the address at the time at which they were so registered, a statement that they were so registered.
  - if their name has changed since they were last registered in respect of the address, the name under which they had last previously registered and the reason for the name change
- In the case of the second set:
  - their date of birth
  - the address in the UK at which they were resident
  - the name of the parent or guardian on whose registration in respect of that address they rely
  - whether the person named was a parent or guardian
  - if the applicant has not on a previous occasion made an overseas elector’s declaration in pursuance of which they were registered, the applicant’s birth certificate must be sent together with the declaration. The birth certificate must contain the applicant’s date of birth and the names of either or both of the parents.
  - where the applicant’s name on their birth certificate (if required to be submitted) is not the same as their name as given in the declaration, the reason for the change of name.
  - where the applicant is required to provide their birth certificate and they rely on the registration of either a parent whose name in the register is not the same as the name of that parent as given in either the applicant’s birth certificate or in the declaration or a guardian whose name in the register is not the same as the name of that guardian as given in the declaration, the name of the parent or guardian as given in the register and, where known, the reason for the change or, as the case may be, changes of name or, where such reason (or reasons) is not known, a statement to that effect.

- If they have been previously registered as an overseas elector and have not, since being so registered, been registered in such a register by virtue of being resident or treated for the purposes of registration as resident at an address in the United Kingdom, a statement of those facts and indicate when they were last registered as an overseas elector.
- If they have never made an overseas declaration before or if they have not made such a declaration since being registered by virtue of being resident or treated for the purposes of registration as resident at an address in the United Kingdom:
  - if they have a British passport which describes their national status as ‘British citizen’, the number, date and place of issue of that passport
  - if they do not have such a passport, but were born in the UK before 1 January 1983, that fact
  - if they do not have such a passport and were not born in the UK before 1 January 1983, a statement of when and how they acquired British citizenship, together with the date, place and country of their birth.

7.11 A declaration may not specify more than one UK address. Where more than one declaration bearing the same date is made specifying different addresses in the UK, the declarations will be void.

7.12 As set out in para 7.10 above, overseas electors must provide information relating to their status as a British citizen. Under data protection legislation, nationality data is classed as a special category of personal data because it may reveal an individual’s racial or ethnic origin. In order to process nationality data, you must have in place a policy document which, amongst other things, must explain:

- the procedures for complying with the data protection principles
- the policies for retention and erasure.

7.13 Therefore, your policy document in place to allow you as data controller to process special categories of personal data will need to reflect your local processing procedures and your policies for the retention and erasure of personal data. This policy document must be kept until six months after the processing ceases, be reviewed and updated at appropriate times and be made available to the ICO on request. We will make the Commission’s own policy document available in April for your reference.
Calculating the 15-year period

Electors who are (or were) included in a register of Parliamentary electors before they left the UK

7.14 The 15-year period begins from the last day that the elector was last on a register of electors in the UK, either as an ordinary elector or as a service voter, i.e. the last day on which the person was on the register before they were removed.\(^{117}\) The date the elector left the UK is irrelevant.

7.15 The applicant’s application/declaration is deemed to be made on the date that it is dated. If both the application and declaration are dated within 15 years of the last date the applicant appeared on a register, the 15-year requirement will be met.

Electors who were too young to be included on a register of electors when they left the UK

7.16 If someone was too young to have registered before they left the UK (including as an attainer), the 15-year period begins from the date they claim to have left the UK.\(^{118}\)

Acknowledging applications

7.17 There is no legal requirement for an application to be acknowledged - whether it is in response to an invitation to register or not. However, you do have discretion to send an acknowledgement. In all cases, you are required to send a confirmation if the application is successful, as set out in paragraphs 6.10 to 6.15.

Processing of applications and declarations

7.18 All applications and declarations should be processed and the applicant’s identity verified as soon as possible after receipt. If you receive an application where the qualifying address falls outside your area it should be forwarded to the relevant ERO without delay.

7.19 If you have determined that an applicant is entitled to be registered, you must confirm that their registration application has been successful.\(^{119}\) The process and contents of the confirmation letter is as set out in paragraphs 6.13 to 6.15 for unsolicited applications and paragraphs 6.10 to 6.12 should the application have been solicited.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

7.20 You should also consider including alongside the confirmation letter, information on any postal or proxy arrangements that are in place. If no arrangements are in place you should make clear what their absent voting options are. If you have rejected a registration application, you must return the declaration, notify the applicant and inform them of the reasons why.\textsuperscript{120}

7.21 Where an existing overseas elector has successfully renewed their declaration, there is no requirement to send them a confirmation notice. You may, however, still decide to send them further information confirming that their renewal has been successful, which you could do by e-mail. This communication could also include information on when their declaration will expire, how and when they will next be reminded to renew it, what absent voting arrangements they have in place and, if they have none, information on what absent voting options are available to them.

7.22 You should also make the elector aware of the general timings for dispatching postal votes ahead of an election and could advise the elector to appoint a proxy as an alternative if it is not realistic for their postal ballot pack to be despatched, completed and returned before the close of poll. It is, of course, the choice of the elector as to which method of voting they prefer, but it is important that electors are fully advised of the circumstances surrounding their choice so that they can make an informed decision.

Inclusion on the register

7.23 Overseas electors should be listed as ‘other electors’ at the end of each relevant part of the register and entries must be shown without an address. They must be grouped in alphabetical order together with any service voters and persons registered by making a declaration of local connection\textsuperscript{121}. All overseas electors must have the letter F prefixed before their name\textsuperscript{122}, unless they are a member of the House of Lords. In this case, the letter E should be placed against their name.\textsuperscript{123}

Lists of overseas electors

7.24 You must keep a separate list or lists of overseas electors for your area.\textsuperscript{124} It must be compiled in alphabetical order by surname within each constituency or part of a constituency within your area.\textsuperscript{125} It must specify both the qualifying address and the full address outside the UK of each overseas elector.\textsuperscript{126} You must publish this list when you publish the revised register and must make it available for inspection and supply, as appropriate.\textsuperscript{127} For guidance on access and supply of overseas elector lists, see \textit{Chapter 12: Access and supply}.\textsuperscript{128}
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Validity of overseas declarations

7.25 An overseas declaration for overseas electors is valid for twelve months. Registrations can be removed earlier in the following circumstances:

- cancellation by the elector
- you determine that the person is not entitled to be registered
- you determine that the person was registered, or that their entry was altered, as a result of an application made by another person (i.e. not the individual whose details are provided on the application and who has declared that the information provided is true)
- if another entry is made in respect of the elector in any register of electors

For guidance on removing an elector from the register, see Chapter 9: Deletions.

7.26 Where you receive a declaration later than three months after it is dated, it must be rejected. The applicant should be informed and invited to submit a fresh declaration.

7.27 An overseas voter may cancel their declaration at any time. The cancellation of an overseas declaration will cancel any postal or proxy voting arrangement made in connection with that declaration even if the elector makes an application to register as an ordinary elector at the same qualifying address.

Renewal of overseas declarations

7.28 Where a person is registered as an overseas elector they are entitled to remain registered until the end of the 12-month period beginning with the date when the entry first takes effect provided the other conditions for registration remain satisfied.

7.29 You are required to remind every overseas elector of the need to make a fresh declaration if they wish to remain registered as an overseas elector. The reminder should include a declaration for the overseas elector to complete.

7.30 The reminder must be sent between 9 and 10 months after the date when the overseas entry first takes effect. You are required to send a second reminder to overseas electors to let them know that their declaration is about to expire if they have not responded to the first reminder. This second reminder must be sent not less than 21 days and not more than 28 days after sending the first reminder. You will need to maintain a record showing when reminders are due to be sent.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

7.31 Reminders must not be sent where you have received information that the person is no longer entitled to make the relevant declaration or no longer wishes to be registered as an overseas elector.\textsuperscript{138}

7.32 Where a declaration is not renewed within the 12-month period and the person is removed from the register, they will also lose any postal or proxy voting arrangement they had in place.

\begin{itemize}
\item Guidance on providing notification of loss of entitlement to an absent voter can be found in Part 5: ‘Absent voting’.
\end{itemize}

7.33 Paragraphs 4.29 to 4.35 cover the document retention period for documents received as part of an application and this should be reflected in your document retention policy.

HM Forces service voters

Who may register?

7.34 A member of HM Forces and their spouse or civil partner may register as a service voter.\textsuperscript{139} A member of HM Forces is a person serving on full pay as a member of any of the naval, military or air forces of the Crown raised in the UK. Members of HM Forces qualify to register as a service voter – although they may choose in certain circumstances to make a registration application as an ordinary elector instead.

In Scotland, a person who is under 18 years old and living with a parent or guardian who is a member of HM Forces is also eligible to register as service voter. They must be living in Scotland or would be living in Scotland if their parent or guardian were not based overseas.\textsuperscript{140}

7.35 The following do not qualify as an HM Forces service voter:\textsuperscript{141}

- persons serving only as a member of a reserve or auxiliary force (except those serving during a period of emergency)
- members of the regular army required, by the terms of their service, to serve in Northern Ireland only
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

7.36 When a person is not qualified to be a service voter for one of the reasons listed above, and is away on duty from a UK address at which they have been residing, they can still be deemed to be resident there. They may therefore be registered as an ordinary elector if outside the UK on duty.¹⁴²

7.37 Each unit of the services has designated one member of staff to be a Unit Registration Officer (URO) and each base commander has been asked to give assistance to the URO and other personnel in their unit to promote participation in the electoral process.¹⁴² The responsibilities of the URO include providing information to service personnel and their families and acting as a liaison between the unit and local EROs.

7.38 Where you have any military establishments in your area you should make contact with the UROs. If any problems occur with the registration of service personnel you should raise these issues with the URO of the unit in the first instance. It should now be possible for you to contact a URO in any location, including overseas. To ascertain who the URO is for any particular unit, the Ministry of Defence recommends contacting the unit directly, initially through directory enquiries, and then asking for information about the URO from:

- Royal Navy – First Lieutenant’s office
- Army – Adjutant’s office
- RAF – OC PSF (Officer Commanding Personnel Services Flight)

Registration of HM Forces service voters who are qualifying Commonwealth citizens

7.39 A service declaration must state the address where the applicant is living in the UK or, if they are living abroad because of their service, where they would have been living in the UK but for their service abroad. If they cannot give any such address, they must give an address at which they have lived in the UK.¹⁴³

7.40 Service personnel who are qualifying Commonwealth citizens, who have been recruited to the services in their country of origin or outside the UK without previously being resident in the UK, but who receive their training in the UK and are then immediately posted overseas may register at:

- the address of the barracks where they were enlisted and/or did their training
- a barracks where they were or would be resident if they were not posted abroad
- their regimental headquarters where they may have been resident
- an address in the UK where they would be resident were they no longer in the forces or not required to be resident in barracks, such as a relative’s address

¹ A unit could be a base, ship, depot, barracks, etc.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Contents of an HM forces application

7.41 An application to register as an HM forces service voter must contain all of the following:\(^144\)

- The applicant’s full name.
- Their correspondence address or British Forces Post Office (BFPO) number.
- Any address where the applicant has ceased to reside in the 12 months prior to the date of the application and, where that address is not in the UK, an indication of whether that person was registered as an overseas elector during this period.
- An indication of whether the applicant is resident at any other address, including any address where the applicant is currently registered and claims to be entitled to remain registered.
- The applicant’s date of birth or, if they are unable to provide this information, the reason why they are not able to do so and a statement as to whether the applicant is under 18 years old or aged 76 or over.

In Scotland, where the applicant is not able to provide their date of birth, they must give the reason why they are not able to do so and give a statement as to whether they are under the age of 16, aged 16 or 17 or aged 18 or older.\(^145\)

- The applicant’s National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so.

In Scotland, the requirement for an applicant to provide their National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so, does not apply where the applicant is under 16 years old.

- The applicant’s nationality or nationalities or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so.
- An indication of whether the applicant requests their name to be omitted from the edited register.

In Scotland, a person under 16 years old is automatically opted out of the edited register. The details of any person under 16 years old must not be included in any version of the published register, including the edited register.

- A declaration that the contents of the application are true.
- The date of the application.
- The appropriate declaration.
7.42 The application form must also provide space for the applicant to provide their most recent previous name (if they have one) and an explanation that providing this information is not mandatory but may help in verifying their identity and that if it is not provided, additional personal information may be required.

7.43 An HM Forces service declaration must state:

- the date of declaration
- the applicant’s full name and address
- that on that date the applicant is, or but for the circumstances entitling that person to make the declaration would have been, residing in the UK

In Scotland, in relation to an application from a person under 18 years old who is living with a parent or guardian who is a member of HM Forces, the address the person is, or would have been residing in, must be an address in Scotland.

- the address where the applicant is, or, as the case may be, would have been residing in the UK, or if they cannot give such an address, an address at which they have resided in the UK

In Scotland, in relation to an application from a person under 18 years old who is living with a parent or guardian who is a member of HM Forces, the address the person is or would have been residing in, or at which they have resided, must be an address in Scotland.

- that on the date of the declaration the applicant is a qualifying Commonwealth citizen, a citizen of the Republic of Ireland or a citizen of a member state of the European Union
- whether the applicant had on the date of the declaration attained the age of 18 years and, if they had not, their date of birth
- the grounds on which a service qualification is claimed
- information relating to the service in which they or the person entitling them to make the application, serve (whether naval, military or air forces), their rank and service number

Acknowledging applications

7.44 There is no legal requirement for an application to be acknowledged whether it is in response to an invitation to register or not, although you do have the discretion to send an acknowledgement. In all cases, you are required to send a confirmation if the application is successful, as set out in paragraphs 6.10 to 6.15.
Processing of applications and declarations

7.45 Data protection legislation requires you to have a policy document in place when processing special categories of personal data, which includes nationality data received as part of an application to register.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains guidance on the requirement to have a policy document when processing special categories of personal data, including what it must contain.

7.46 All applications and declarations should be processed and the applicant’s identity verified as soon as possible after receipt. If you receive an application where the qualifying address falls outside your area it should be forwarded to the relevant ERO without delay.

7.47 If you have determined that an applicant is entitled to be registered, you must confirm that their registration application has been successful. The process and contents of the confirmation letter is as set out in paragraphs 6.13 to 6.15 for unsolicited applications and paragraphs 6.10 to 6.12 should the application have been solicited.

7.48 You should also consider including alongside the confirmation letter, information on any postal or proxy arrangements that are in place. If no arrangements are in place you should make clear what their absent voting options are. If you have rejected a registration application, you must notify the applicant and inform them of the reasons why.

7.49 Where an existing HM Forces elector has successfully renewed their declaration, there is no requirement to send them a confirmation notice. You may, however, still decide to send them further information confirming that their renewal has been successful, which you could do by e-mail. This communication could also include information on when their declaration will expire, how and when they will next be reminded to renew it, what absent voting arrangements they have in place and, if they have none, information on what absent voting options are available to them.

7.50 You should also make the elector aware of the general timings for dispatching postal votes ahead of an election and could advise the elector to appoint a proxy as an alternative if it is not realistic for their postal ballot pack to be despatched, completed and returned before the close of poll. It is, of course, the choice of the elector as to which method of voting they prefer, but it is important that electors are fully advised of the circumstances surrounding their choice so that they can make an informed decision.
Inclusion on the register

7.51 HM Forces service voters should not be listed as ‘other electors’ as a matter of course, but only when they no longer have a connection to their qualifying address other than the fact that they once lived there. Some service voters will be either living at their qualifying address or would be living there were it not for the fact that they were stationed elsewhere because of their employment in the services. In such cases, the elector’s details must be shown in the main body of the register, in the same way as those of ordinary electors.

7.52 HM Forces service voters should only be listed as ‘other electors’ with no address if the service voter’s declaration has given an address at which they have resided, but it is not an address at which they are or would be residing but for their particular circumstances.150

7.53 Where service voters have given the qualifying address in their declaration as that at which they have previously resided, their names are to be listed in alphabetical order at the end of the relevant polling district of the register beneath the ‘other electors’ heading. The entry will show their name and elector number but not their address.151

Validity of service declarations

7.54 A service declaration for members of HM Forces or their spouses or civil partners is valid for five years.152 Registrations can be removed earlier in the following circumstances:153

- cancellation by the elector
- you determine that the person is not entitled to be registered
- you determine that the person was registered, or that their entry was altered, as a result of an application made by another person (i.e. not the individual whose details are provided on the application and who has declared that the information provided is true)
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- if another entry is made in respect of the elector in any register of electors

In Scotland, a person who is under 18 years old who is registered as a service voter because they live with a parent or guardian who is a member of HM Forces, must renew their registration every year.\textsuperscript{154}

You should send a reminder of the need to make a fresh declaration if they wish to remain registered as a service voter, and include a declaration for them to complete. The reminder should be sent between 9 and 10 months after the date when the entry first takes effect. You are should send a second reminder to let them know that their declaration is about to expire if they have not responded to the first reminder. This second reminder should be sent not less than 21 days and not more than 28 days after sending the first reminder. You will need to maintain a record showing when reminders are due to be sent.

Furthermore, they will cease to be registered as a service voter when they are 18 years old. You must issue a reminder to the elector stating that their registration will cease when they are 18 years old, and this reminder must be issued within the period of three months ending when the person attains the age of 18. They will need to make a new application to register reflecting their circumstances at that time.

For guidance on removing an elector from the register, see Chapter 9: Deletions.

7.55 A service declaration received later than three months after it is dated must be rejected.\textsuperscript{155} The applicant should be informed and invited to submit a fresh declaration.

7.56 A service voter may cancel their declaration at any time.\textsuperscript{156} The cancellation of a service declaration will cancel any postal or proxy voting arrangement made in connection with that declaration even if the elector makes an application to register as an ordinary elector at the same qualifying address.

Renewal of service declarations

7.57 Where a person is registered as an HM Forces service voter they are entitled to remain registered until the end of the five-year period beginning with the date when the entry first takes effect provided the elector continues to satisfy the other conditions for registration during this period. You should make contact with the HM Forces service voter during this five-year period to ensure that their registration and voting arrangements remain current.
7.58 You are required to remind every service voter of the need to make a fresh declaration if they wish to remain registered as a service voter. This should include a new declaration for the service voter to complete.

7.59 The reminder must be sent between 57 and 58 months after the date when the service entry first takes effect. If you do not receive a fresh declaration, you are required to send a second reminder to service voters to let them know that their declaration is about to expire. This second reminder must be sent not less than 21 days and not more than 28 days after sending the first reminder.

7.60 Reminders must not be sent where you have received information that the person is no longer entitled to make the relevant declaration or no longer wishes to be registered as a service voter. You will need to maintain a record showing when reminders are due to be sent to service voters. Computer systems should be capable of recording such information and producing reminders for relevant electors on a monthly basis.

7.61 Where a declaration is not renewed within the five-year period and the person is removed from the register, they will also lose any postal or proxy voting arrangement they had in place.

In Scotland, a person who is under 18 years old who is registered as a service voter because they live with a parent or guardian who is a member of HM Forces, must renew their registration every year. You should send a reminder of the need to make a fresh declaration if they wish to remain registered as a service voter, and include a declaration for them to complete. The reminder should be sent between 9 and 10 months after the date when the entry first takes effect. You are required to send a second reminder to let them know that their declaration is about to expire if they have not responded to the first reminder. This second reminder should be sent not less than 21 days and not more than 28 days after sending the first reminder. You will need to maintain a record showing when reminders are due to be sent.

Furthermore, they will cease to be registered as a service voter when they are 18 years old. You must issue a reminder to the elector stating that their registration will cease when they are 18 years old, and this reminder must be issued within the period of three months ending when the person attains the age of 18. They will need to make a new application to register reflecting their circumstances at that time.

Guidance on providing notification of loss of entitlement to an absent voter can be found in Part 5: ‘Absent voting’.
7.62 Paragraphs 4.29 to 4.35 cover the document retention period for documents received as part of an application and this should be reflected in your document retention policy.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains guidance on document retention and maintaining your document retention policy, including what it should contain.

Crown servants and British Council employees service voters

Who may register?

7.63 Crown servants and British Council employees who are abroad and their spouse or civil partner who is accompanying them can be registered at any time as a service voter – although they may choose in certain circumstances to make a registration application as an ordinary elector instead.

7.64 However, spouses and civil partners of Crown servants and British Council employees who are themselves in the UK do not qualify for this type of registration.

In Scotland, a person who is under 18 years old and living with a parent or guardian who is a Crown Servant or British Council employee serving abroad, is also eligible to register as service voter provided they would be living in Scotland if their parent or guardian were not based overseas.

Contents of a Crown servant or British Council employee application

7.65 An application to register as a service voter must contain all of the following:

- The applicant’s full name.
- Their correspondence address.
- Any address where the applicant has ceased to reside in the 12 months prior to the date of the application and, where that address is not in the UK, an indication of whether that person was registered as an overseas elector during this period.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- An indication of whether the applicant is resident at any other address, including any address where the applicant is currently registered and claims to be entitled to remain registered.
- The applicant’s date of birth or, if they are unable to provide this information, the reason why they are not able to do so and a statement as to whether the applicant is under 18 years old or aged 76 or over.

In Scotland, where the applicant is not able to provide their date of birth, they must give the reason why they are not able to do so and give a statement as to whether they are under the age of 16, aged 16 or 17 or aged 18 or older.165

- The applicant’s National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so.

In Scotland, the requirement for an applicant to provide their National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so, does not apply where the applicant is under 16 years old.

- The applicant’s nationality or nationalities or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so.
- An indication of whether the applicant requests their name to be omitted from the edited register.

In Scotland, a person under 16 years old is automatically opted out of the edited register. The details of any person under 16 years old must not be included in any version of the published register, including the edited register.

- A declaration that the contents of the application are true.
- The date of the application.
- The appropriate declaration.

7.66 The application form must also provide space for the applicant to provide their most recent previous name (if they have one) and an explanation that providing this information is not mandatory but may help in verifying their identity and that if it is not provided, additional personal information may be required.

7.67 Their service declaration must state:

- the date of declaration
- the applicant’s full name and address
- that on that date the applicant is, or but for the circumstances entitling that person to make the declaration would have been, residing in the UK
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

In Scotland, in relation to an application from a person under 18 years old who is living with a parent or guardian who is a Crown Servant or British Council employee serving abroad, the address the person would have been residing in, must be an address in Scotland.

- the address where the applicant is, or, as the case may be, would have been residing in the UK, or if they cannot give such an address, an address at which they have resided in the UK

In Scotland, in relation to an application from a person under 18 years old who is living with a parent or guardian who is a Crown Servant or British Council employee serving abroad, the address the person would have been residing in, must be an address in Scotland.

- that on the date of the declaration the applicant is a qualifying Commonwealth citizen, a citizen of the Republic of Ireland or a citizen of a member state of the European Union
- whether the applicant had on the date of the declaration attained the age of 18 years and, if they had not, their date of birth
- the grounds on which a service qualification is claimed
- information relating to their job (or the person’s job who entitles them to make the application): their staff, payroll or other identifying number; for Crown servants, the department in which they work and their position; and for British Council employees, a description of their post.

7.68 The declaration made by Crown Servants and British Council employees does not need to be sent via their employer, which means that Crown Servant and British Council employees can complete the registration process online. 168

To enable the staff/payroll/other identifying number to be checked, the Cabinet Office have provided contact details for the government departments that most frequently send their staff abroad. You can access these contact details by contacting the Cabinet Office’s IER Support Centre: ierservice@digital.cabinet-office.gov.uk.

Acknowledging applications

7.69 There is no legal requirement for an application to be acknowledged - whether it is in response to an invitation to register or not. However, you do have discretion to send an acknowledgement. In all cases, you are required to send a confirmation if the application is successful, as set out in paragraphs 6.10 to 6.15.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Processing of applications and declarations

7.70 Data protection legislation requires you to have a policy document in place when processing special categories of personal data, which includes nationality data received as part of an application to register.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains guidance on the requirement to have a policy document when processing special categories of personal data, including what it must contain.

7.71 All applications and declarations should be processed and the applicant’s identity verified as soon as possible after receipt. If you receive an application where the qualifying address falls outside your area it should be forwarded to the relevant ERO without delay.

7.72 If you have determined that an applicant is entitled to be registered, you must confirm that their registration application has been successful. The process and contents of the confirmation letter is as set out in paragraphs 6.13 to 6.15 for unsolicited applications and paragraphs 6.10 to 6.12 should the application have been solicited.

7.73 You should also consider including alongside the confirmation letter, information on any postal or proxy arrangements that are in place. If no arrangements are in place you should make clear what their absent voting options are. If you have rejected a registration application, you must notify the applicant and inform them of the reasons why.

7.74 Where an existing service voter has successfully renewed their declaration, there is no requirement to send them a confirmation notice. You may, however, still decide to send them further information confirming that their renewal has been successful, which you could do by e-mail. This communication could also include information on when their declaration will expire, how and when they will next be reminded to renew it, what absent voting arrangements they have in place and, if they have none, information on what absent voting options are available to them.

7.75 You should also make the elector aware of the general timings for dispatching postal votes ahead of an election and could advise the elector to appoint a proxy as an alternative if it is not realistic for their postal ballot pack to be despatched, completed and returned before the close of poll. It is, of course, the choice of the elector as to which method of voting they prefer, but it is important that electors are fully advised of the circumstances surrounding their choice so that they can make an informed decision.

Inclusion on the register

7.76 Crown servant and British Council employee service voters should not be listed as ‘other electors’ as a matter of course, but only when they no longer have a connection to their qualifying address other than the fact that they once lived there. Some service voters will be either living at their qualifying address or would be living there were it not for the fact that they were stationed elsewhere because of their employment. In such cases, the elector’s details must be shown in the main body of the register, in the same way as those of ordinary electors.

7.77 Their details should only be listed as ‘other electors’ with no address if the service voter’s declaration has given an address at which they have resided, but it is not an address at which they are or would be residing but for their particular circumstances.

7.78 Where service voters have given the qualifying address in their declaration as that at which they have previously resided, their names are to be listed in alphabetical order at the end of the relevant polling district of the register beneath the ‘other electors’ heading. The entry will show their name and elector number but not their address.

As set out in Part 2: ‘The registration framework’, the parliamentary and local government registers are combined. The combined register will need to make clear the date on which those included on it that are under 18 years of age will become 18 years old in order to clearly show their eligibility to vote in different elections.

No information on those aged under 16 must be included on any version of the register published or otherwise made available, except in very limited circumstances. For further information on access and supply, see Chapter 12.

Validity of service declarations for Crown servants and British Council employees

7.79 A service declaration for Crown servants, British Council employees, or their spouses or civil partners is valid for twelve months. Registrations can be removed earlier in the following circumstances:

- cancellation by the elector
- you determine that the person is not entitled to be registered
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- you determine that the person was registered, or that their entry was altered, as a result of an application made by another person (i.e. not the individual whose details are provided on the application and who has declared that the information provided is true)
- if another entry is made in respect of the elector in any register of electors

For guidance on removing an elector from the register, see Chapter 9: Deletions.

7.80 Where you receive a declaration later than three months after it is dated, it must be rejected. The applicant should be informed and invited to submit a fresh declaration.

7.81 A service voter may cancel their declaration at any time. The cancellation of a service declaration will cancel any postal or proxy voting arrangement made in connection with that declaration even if the elector makes an application to register as an ordinary elector at the same qualifying address.

Renewal of declarations

7.82 A Crown servant/British Council employee registered as a service voter is entitled to remain registered until the end of the 12-month period beginning with the date when their entry first takes effect provided the elector satisfies the other conditions for registration during this period.

7.83 You are required to remind them of the need to make a fresh declaration if they wish to remain registered as a service voter. The reminder should include a declaration for the service voter to complete.

7.84 The reminder must be sent between 9 and 10 months after the date when the service entry first takes effect. If you do not receive a fresh declaration, you are required to send a second reminder to service voters to let them know that their declaration is about to expire. This second reminder must be sent not less than 21 days and not more than 28 days after sending the first reminder.

7.85 Reminders must not be sent where you have received information that the person is no longer entitled to make the relevant declaration or no longer wishes to be registered as a service voter. You will need to maintain a record showing when reminders are due to be sent.

7.86 Where a declaration is not renewed within the 12-month period and the person is removed from the register, they will also lose any postal or proxy voting arrangement they had in place.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

In Scotland, a person who is under 18 years old who is registered as a service voter because they live with a parent or guardian who is a Crown Servant or British Council employee serving abroad, must renew their registration every year.\textsuperscript{180}

You should send a reminder of the need to make a fresh declaration if they wish to remain registered as a service voter, and include a declaration for them to complete. The reminder should be sent between 9 and 10 months after the date when the entry first takes effect. You are should send a second reminder to let them know that their declaration is about to expire if they have not responded to the first reminder. This second reminder should be sent not less than 21 days and not more than 28 days after sending the first reminder. You will need to maintain a record showing when reminders are due to be sent.

Furthermore, they will cease to be registered as a service voter when they are 18 years old. You must issue a reminder to the elector stating that their registration will cease when they are 18 years old, and this reminder must be issued within the period of three months ending when the person attains the age of 18. They will need to make a new application to register reflecting their circumstances at that time.

Guidance on providing notification of loss of entitlement to an absent voter can be found in Part 5: ‘Absent voting’.

7.87 Paragraphs 4.29 to 4.35 cover the document retention period for documents received as part of an application and this should be reflected in your document retention policy.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains guidance on document retention and maintaining your document retention policy, including what it should contain.

Declarations of local connection

Who may register?

7.88 A person who does not have a fixed or permanent address may register at the place where they spend most of their time, or to which they have a local connection.\textsuperscript{181} They can do this by making a declaration of local connection.
Contents of declaration of local connection application

7.89 An application to register by making a declaration of local connection must include all of the following:

- The applicant’s full name.
- The address in respect of which the applicant applies to be registered.
- Any address where the applicant has ceased to reside in the 12 months prior to the date of the application and, where that address is not in the UK, an indication of whether that person was registered as an overseas elector during this period.
- An indication of whether the applicant is resident at any other address, including any address where the applicant is currently registered and claims to be entitled to remain registered.
- The applicant’s date of birth or, if they are unable to provide this information, the reason why they are not able to do so and a statement as to whether the applicant is under 18 years old or aged 76 or over.

In Scotland, where the applicant is not able to provide their date of birth, they must give the reason why they are not able to do so and give a statement as to whether they are under the age of 16, aged 16 or 17 or aged 18 or older.

- The applicant’s National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so.

In Scotland, the requirement for an applicant to provide their National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so, does not apply where the applicant is under 16 year old.
• The applicant’s nationality or nationalities or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so.
• An indication of whether the applicant requests their name to be omitted from the edited register.

In Scotland, a person under 16 years old is automatically opted out of the edited register. The details of any person under 16 years old must not be included in any version of the published register, including the edited register.

• A declaration that the contents of the application are true.
• The date of the application.
• The appropriate declaration.

7.90 The application form must also provide space for the applicant to provide their most recent previous name (if they have one) and an explanation that providing this information is not mandatory but may help in verifying their identity and that if it is not provided, additional personal information may be required.

7.91 A declaration of local connection must be signed and dated by the applicant and state:

• the applicant’s name in full
• the address to which correspondence for them can be delivered or a statement confirming that they are willing to collect correspondence from the ERO
• the category in which their declaration falls, e.g. mental health patient, remand prisoner or person of no fixed address
• in the case of a person of no fixed address, the address of, or near, a place where they commonly spend a substantial part of their time
• in the case of a prisoner on remand making a declaration of local connection, the name and address of the place where they are detained, as well as the address at which they would be residing if they were not detained. If they are unable to give such an address, an address at which they have previously resided.
• In the case of a mental health patient making a declaration of local connection, the name and address of the mental health hospital, as well as the address at which they would be residing if they were not a patient. If they are unable to give such an address, an address at which they have previously resided.

In Scotland, in the case of a person under 16 years old who is or has been a child looked after by a local authority or is being kept in secure accommodation, an address in Scotland at which they have previously resided.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- that they have attained 18 years of age or if not their date of birth.
- that they are a qualifying Commonwealth citizen, a citizen of the Republic of Ireland or a citizen of a European Union member state.

In Scotland, where a declaration of connection is made by a person under 18 years old for the purposes of registering in the local government register, the address given where they would be living if it were not for their current situation, or where they have lived in the past or spend a substantial amount of time, must be an address in Scotland.\(^\text{188}\)

7.92 At a by-election to the UK Parliament, Scottish Parliament or the National Assembly for Wales, any declaration of local connection made by a homeless person received during the period from the date of the vacancy to the close of nominations must include a statement that the applicant has spent a substantial part of time during the past three months at or near to the address at which they claim to be entitled to be registered.\(^\text{189}\)

7.93 If a person makes a declaration of local connection stating more than one address or makes more than one declaration on the same date and stating different addresses, the declaration or declarations will be void.\(^\text{190}\)

Acknowledging applications

7.94 There is no legal requirement for an application to be acknowledged - whether it is in response to an invitation to register or not. However, you do have discretion to send an acknowledgement. In all cases, you are required to send a confirmation if the application is successful, as set out in paragraphs 6.10 to 6.15.

Processing of applications and declarations

7.95 Data protection legislation requires you to have a policy document in place when processing special categories of personal data, which includes nationality data received as part of an application to register.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains guidance on the requirement to have a policy document when processing special categories of personal data, including what it must contain.

7.96 All applications and declarations should be processed as soon as possible after receipt and the applicant’s identity verified. If you receive an application where the qualifying address falls outside your area it should be forwarded to the relevant ERO without delay.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

7.97 If you have determined that an applicant is entitled to be registered, you must confirm that their registration application has been successful.\textsuperscript{191} The process and contents of the confirmation letter is as set out in paragraphs 6.13 to 6.15 for unsolicited applications and paragraphs 6.10 to 6.12 should the application have been solicited.

7.98 You should also consider including alongside the confirmation letter, information on any postal or proxy arrangements that are in place. If no arrangements are in place you should make clear what their absent voting options are. If you have rejected a registration application, you must notify the applicant and inform them of the reasons why.

7.99 Where a person who is registered through a declaration of local connection has successfully renewed their declaration, there is no requirement to send them a confirmation notice. You may, however, still decide to send them further information confirming that their renewal has been successful, which you could do by e-mail. This communication could also include information on when their declaration will expire, how and when they will next be reminded to renew it, what absent voting arrangements they have in place and, if they have none, information on what absent voting options are available to them.

Inclusion on the register

7.100 All persons registered through a declaration of local connection must be included at the end of each relevant part of the register under the heading ‘other electors’ without an address. Their names are to be included in alphabetical order, grouped together with any service voters and overseas electors, but before any anonymously registered electors.\textsuperscript{192}

In Scotland, as set out in Part 2: ‘The registration framework’, the parliamentary and local government registers are combined. The combined register will need to make clear the date on which those included on it that are under 18 years of age will become 18 years old in order to clearly show their eligibility to vote in different elections.

No information on those aged under 16 must be included on any version of the register published or otherwise made available, except in very limited circumstances. For further information on access and supply, see Chapter 12.

Validity of declarations of local connection

7.101 A declaration of local connection is valid for 12 months from the date when the entry on the register first takes effect.\textsuperscript{193} Registrations can be removed earlier in the following circumstances:\textsuperscript{194}
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- cancellation by the elector
- you determine that the person is not entitled to be registered
- you determine that the person was registered, or that their entry was altered, as a result of an application made by another person (i.e. not the individual whose details are provided on the application and who has declared that the information provided is true)
- if another entry is made in respect of the elector in any register of electors

For guidance on removing an elector from the register, see Chapter 9: Deletions.

7.102 Where you receive a declaration later than three months after it is dated, it must be rejected. The applicant should be informed and invited to submit a fresh declaration.

Renewal of declarations

7.103 Where a person is registered through a declaration of local connection they are entitled to remain registered until the end of the 12-month period beginning with the date when the entry first takes effect provided the other conditions for registration remain satisfied.

7.104 You are required to remind the elector of the need to make a fresh declaration if they wish to remain registered. The reminder should include a declaration for the elector to complete.

7.105 The reminder must be sent between 9 and 10 months after the date when the entry first takes effect. If you do not receive a fresh declaration, you are required to send a second reminder to electors who are registered through a declaration of local connection to let them know that their declaration is about to expire. This second reminder must be sent not less than 21 days and not more than 28 days after sending the first reminder.

7.106 Reminders must not be sent where you have received information that the person is no longer entitled to make the relevant declaration. You will need to maintain a record showing when reminders are due to be sent.

7.107 Where a declaration is not renewed within the 12-month period and the person is removed from the register, they will also lose any postal or proxy voting arrangement they had in place.

Guidance on providing notification of loss of entitlement to an absent voter can be found in Part 5: ‘Absent voting’.
7.108 You should consider the most appropriate method of obtaining a renewal from those who have registered through a declaration of local connection. It may be appropriate, in addition to simply sending a renewal notice by post, to make a personal visit to ensure the reminder and declaration reaches the elector.

7.109 Paragraphs 4.29 to 4.35 cover the document retention period for documents received as part of an application and this should be reflected in your document retention policy.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains guidance on document retention and maintaining your document retention policy, including what it should contain.

Anonymous registration

Who may register?

7.110 Anonymous registration is available to those electors whose safety would be at risk if their name or address were listed on the electoral register. Any other person in the same household as a person at risk is also qualified to register as an anonymous elector and may therefore also apply for anonymous registration if they wish.

7.111 You should consider which establishments or properties, such as refuges, should receive anonymous registration forms and additional information as part of your duty to maintain the register. Registration application forms could be sent with a note explaining what anonymous registration is and how people can apply.

In partnership with Women’s Aid in each of England, Wales and Scotland we have produced a guide to anonymous registration for professionals working with survivors of domestic violence. The guide, which may also be useful to you and your staff, explains what anonymous registration is and that an applicant’s name and address details will be kept securely and will not be searchable on the electoral register. The guide also outlines how to apply for anonymous registration.

7.112 There may be circumstances where a returned HEF may include a note from a potential elector asking for more privacy with a reason that may satisfy the requirements for anonymous registration. An anonymous registration application should then be sent and the person should be told that others in the household may also be entitled to register anonymously.
Combining anonymous registration with other special category elector entitlement

Anonymous registration does not affect any other special category elector entitlement and can be combined. For example, a person may be an anonymous elector with a local connection or an anonymous service voter, or an anonymous overseas voter if they meet the qualification for both registrations.

Contents of application

Applicants for anonymous registration must include the following as part of their application for registration:201

- The applicant’s full name.
- The address where the applicant is resident on the date of the application and in respect of which they are applying to be registered
- Any address where the applicant has ceased to reside in the 12 months prior to the date of the application and, where that address is not in the UK, an indication of whether that person was registered as an overseas elector during this period.
- An indication of whether the applicant is resident at any other address, including any address where the applicant is currently registered and claims to be entitled to remain registered.
- The applicant’s date of birth or, if they are unable to provide this information, the reason why they are not able to do so and a statement as to whether the applicant is under 18 years old or aged 76 or over.
- The applicant’s National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so.

In Scotland, where an anonymous application is made by a person under 18 years old for the purposes of registering in the local government register, the address given where the applicant is resident on the date of the application and in respect of which they are applying to be registered, must be an address in Scotland.

In Scotland, where the applicant is not able to provide their date of birth, they must give the reason why they are not able to do so and give a statement as to whether they are under the age of 16, aged 16 or 17 or aged 18 or older.202

In Scotland, the requirement for an applicant to provide their National Insurance Number or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so, does not apply where the applicant is under 16 years old.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- The applicant’s nationality or nationalities or, if they are not able to provide this information, the reason they are not able to do so.
- A declaration that the contents of the application are true.
- The date of the application.
- The fact that the application is accompanied by an application for anonymous registration.

7.115 An application for anonymous registration must be in writing. It must be signed and dated by the applicant and must contain:

- the applicant’s full name
- their address
- the reason for their application
- evidence to support their application (a court document or an attestation as described below)
- if the applicant is someone who lives in the same household as someone whose safety would be at risk, evidence that the applicant lives in the same household as that person. Evidence could be a utility bill, bank statement, photocard driving licence, etc.
- if the applicant is someone who lives in the same household as someone whose safety would be at risk, evidence that that person’s safety would be at risk
- a declaration that:
  - the evidence to support their application is genuine so far as the applicant is aware
  - if it is someone who lives in the same household, the person to whom the evidence relates lives in the same household and that, as far as they are aware, the evidence is genuine
  - the other information given is true

7.116 The application form must also provide space for the applicant to provide their most recent previous name (if they have one) and an explanation that providing this information is not mandatory but may help in verifying their identity and that if it is not provided, additional personal information may be required.

7.117 The application form must also provide space for the applicant to indicate whether they are the only person aged 16 or over (14 or over in Scotland) resident at the address, and an explanation that providing this information is not mandatory.

7.118 All applicants must be able to satisfy you that their safety or that of any other person in the same household would be at risk if their details were made public. Documentary evidence or an attestation must be provided in support of the application.

7.119 You should not involve yourself in the personal circumstances of applicants and your decisions should only rely on the accompanying documents.
You should be satisfied that documents provided in support of an application are genuine.

7.120 Anonymously registered electors are entitled to submit a correspondence address which must be used for all future registration correspondence if given.\textsuperscript{208}

Types of documents and attestation

7.121 The application must also be accompanied by either a court order or an attestation.\textsuperscript{209}

7.122 Any court order or injunction must be for the protection or the benefit of the applicant or another person of the same household.\textsuperscript{210} The order must also be in force on the day of the application\textsuperscript{211}, but need not be for the whole 12-month period of registration. An order ceasing to be in force during the 12-month period of registration does not reduce or otherwise affect the length of registration. A copy rather than the original of any court document being relied on is acceptable.\textsuperscript{212}

7.123 The eligible court documents are:\textsuperscript{213}

- an injunction for the purpose of restraining a person from pursuing any conduct which amounts to harassment granted in proceedings under Section 3 of the Protection from Harassment Act 1997 or under article 5 of the Protection from Harassment (Northern Ireland) Order 1997
- an injunction granted under Section 3A(2) of the Protection from Harassment Act 1997
- a restraining order made under Section 5(1) of the Protection from Harassment Act 1997, or under article 7 of the Protection from Harassment (Northern Ireland) Order 1997
- a restraining order on acquittal made under Section 5A(1) of the Protection from Harassment Act 1997, or under article 7A(1) of the Protection from Harassment (Northern Ireland) Order 1997
- a non-harassment order, interdict or interim interdict made under Section 8 or 8A of the Protection from Harassment Act 1997
- a non-harassment order made under Section 234A(2) of the Criminal Procedure (Scotland) Act 1995
- a non-molestation order made under Section 42(2) of the Family Law Act 1996, or under article 20(2) of the Family Homes and Domestic Violence (Northern Ireland) Order 1998
- a matrimonial interdict within the meaning of Section 14 of the Matrimonial Homes (Family Protection) (Scotland) Act 1981
- a domestic interdict within the meaning of Section 18A of the Matrimonial Homes (Family Protection) (Scotland) Act 1981
- a relevant interdict within the meaning of Section 113 of the Civil Partnership Act 2004
- an interdict that has been determined to be a domestic abuse interdict within the meaning of Section 3 of the Domestic Abuse (Scotland) Act 2011
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- any interdict with an attached power of arrest made under Section 1 of the Protection from Abuse (Scotland) Act 2001
- a forced marriage protection order or interim forced marriage protection order made under Part 4A of the Family Law Act 1996, or under Section 2 of, and paragraph 1 of Schedule 1 to, the Forced Marriage (Civil Protection) Act 2007, or under Section 1 or Section 5 of the Forced Marriage etc. (Protection and Jurisdiction) (Scotland) Act 2011
- a domestic violence protection order made under Section 28 of the Crime and Security Act 2010 or section 97 of, and paragraph 5 of Schedule 7 to, the Justice Act (Northern Ireland) 2015 A template of a domestic violence protection order is available on our website, though you should be aware that each Order will be tailored to the circumstances of the case.
- a female genital mutilation protection order made under Section 5A of, and paragraphs 1 or 18 of Schedule 2 to, the Female Genital Mutilation Act 2003 A template of a female genital mutilation protection order is available on our website, though you should be aware that an Order may vary in appearance.

7.124 No documents other than those listed in paragraph 7.123 can be used as eligible court documents in support of an application for anonymous registration.

7.125 If an attestation is used it must certify that if the name or address were on the register the applicant's or another member of the same household's ‘safety would be at risk’.\textsuperscript{214} Attestations must be in writing and must be signed and dated by a qualifying officer. The period of the attestation begins on the date stated and lasts for a period of between one and five years. The actual length must be stated within the attestation.\textsuperscript{215}

The anonymous registration application form approved by the Lord President of the Council and made available by the Electoral Commission contains a template attestation that applicant’s may use.

7.126 The qualifying officers who may attest are:\textsuperscript{216}

- a police officer of or above the rank of inspector of any police force in the UK
- the Director General of the Security Service or the National Crime Agency
- a director of adult social services or children’s services in England or a director of social services in Wales
- any chief social work officer in Scotland

In Scotland, a chief social work officer may authorise any person to attest an anonymous registration application for a person aged under 16. The written authorisation from the chief social work officer must accompany the attestation.\textsuperscript{217}
• any director of social services of a Health and Social Services Board or executive director of social work of a Health and Social Services Trust in Northern Ireland
• any medical practitioner who is registered with the General Medical Council;
• any nurse or midwife who is registered with the Nursing and Midwifery Council;
• any person who manages a refuge). A ‘refuge’ means accommodation together with a planned programme of therapeutic and practical support for victims of, or those at risk of, domestic abuse or violence.

7.127 No person other than those listed in paragraph 7.126 may attest an application for anonymous registration. It is not possible for a qualifying officer to delegate their power to attest an application to a different person. Equally, the attestation cannot be delegated from a qualifying officer to a more junior person within their organisation.

In Scotland, a chief social work officer may authorise any person to attest an anonymous registration application for a person aged under 16. The written authorisation from the chief social work officer must accompany the attestation.

7.128 The attestation can come from one of the qualifying officers from a different area than that in which the elector now lives and is registering. This may often be the case where the applicant has moved to a new area to set up home away from the cause of the risk to their safety. For example, an attestation from one English local authority director of children’s services is valid in every local authority area in Great Britain.

7.129 You should consider contacting any qualifying officers to alert them to their powers under the anonymous registration process. They may wish to be aware of their attestation powers and any guidance that their representative groups have given on dealing with requests for attestation. In particular, you should proactively contact any refuges, GP surgeries and other medical establishments in your registration area who may not be aware that the types of court order and the attestation requirements have been expanded. For example, you could contact social services, Women’s Aid, or other organisations who work with survivors of domestic abuse, and – explaining what are you doing – ask for details of refuges in your registration area.
In partnership with Women’s Aid in each of England, Wales and Scotland, we have produced a guide to anonymous registration for professionals working with survivors of domestic violence. The guide explains what anonymous registration is and that an applicant’s name and address details will be kept securely and will not be searchable on the electoral register. The guide also outlines how to apply for anonymous registration and how refuge managers may provide an attestation if they wish to do so.

7.130 If you consider it necessary, you are able to undertake online checks of certain categories of attestor:

- The General Medical Council maintains a list of registered medical practitioners available on their website: http://www.gmc-uk.org/doctors/register/LRMP.asp
- The Nursing & Midwifery Council maintains a list of registered nurses and midwives on their website: https://www.nmc.org.uk/registration/search-the-register/

7.131 If you have concerns about an application for anonymous registration, it should be treated like any other application for registration. As set out in ‘Identifying suspicious registration applications’, your local police single point of contact (SPOC) will be a key partner to help you ensure that any possible instances of registration fraud are quickly identified and dealt with. If you have reason to believe that an attestation provided as part of an application for anonymous registration is not genuine, you should contact your SPOC as soon as possible.

Acknowledging applications

7.132 There is no legal requirement for an application to be acknowledged - whether it is in response to an invitation to register or not. However, you do have discretion to send an acknowledgement. In all cases, you are required to send a confirmation if the application is successful, as set out in paragraphs 6.10 to 6.15.

Processing of applications

7.133 Under data protection legislation, processing applications for anonymous registration is considered ‘high-risk’ processing. If you do not have a Data Protection Impact Assessment in place for processing anonymous registration applications, you should undertake one.

7.134 Data protection legislation also requires you to have a policy document in place when processing special categories of personal data, which includes nationality data received as part of an application to register.
7.135 Applications should be processed and the applicant's identity verified as soon as possible after receipt. If you receive an application where the qualifying address falls outside your area it should be forwarded to the relevant ERO without delay.

7.136 Anonymous registration application details such as name and address are not added to the lists of applications. Anonymous applications are not available for public inspection at any time.\(^\text{219}\)

7.137 This means that these applications do not have the same type of public scrutiny as other electoral registration applications. You should therefore be particularly proactive in being satisfied that all the requirements for registration are met.

7.138 When an anonymous application is received, all previous ‘ordinary’ applications either awaiting determination or determined but not added to the register for that individual are suspended until the anonymous application is determined. If the anonymous application is rejected, then all pending applications for registration must be disregarded. If the anonymous registration application is rejected, they cannot be added as an ordinary elector.

7.139 If you have determined that they are entitled to be registered anonymously, you must issue a ‘certificate of anonymous registration’ (see paragraph 7.148 below).\(^\text{220}\) You should also consider confirming any postal or proxy arrangements that are in place, or if no arrangements are in place you should make clear what their absent voting options are. If a person already has an entry on the register and an anonymous application is accepted, the ordinary register entry must be removed and the anonymous registration added. However, the existing entry must not be removed until the anonymous application is accepted.

7.140 If you have rejected an application, you should notify the applicant and inform them of the reasons why.

7.141 The details of a person who has made an application to register anonymously must not be added to the register if the anonymous part of the application fails.\(^\text{221}\) However, you should encourage them to submit an ordinary registration application and invite them to register. If they do not submit an application in response to an invitation, you may require them to submit an application to register, but you should consider the individual's particular circumstances before issuing a 'requirement to register' notice.
In Scotland, where a requirement to register is issued to a person under 16 years old, it must not include reference to the civil penalty as a civil penalty cannot be imposed on a person under 16 years old.

Deadlines for adding anonymously registered electors to the register

7.142 The deadlines for anonymous applications are different from those for ordinary registration applications as there is no requirement for a five-day objections period for anonymous applicants. This is because their applications cannot be objected to.

7.143 The deadlines for receiving and determining anonymous registration applications are as follows:

- For being added to a monthly notice of alteration: 14 calendar days before the publication of the notice
- For being added to the final election notice of alteration: 6 working days before polling day
- For being added to the revised register following the canvass: the last working day of the month prior to the month when the revised register is published
- For being added to a revised register published at any other time: 14 calendar days before the end of the month preceding the month when the revised register is due to be published

Inclusion on the register and record of anonymous entries

7.144 All persons registered anonymously must be included at the end of each relevant part of the register under the heading ‘other electors’ without a name or address. The entry for each anonymously registered elector must consist of their elector number and the letter ‘N’.

7.145 Anonymous entries must not be included in the edited register and all anonymous electors are automatically opted out.

7.146 You must also keep a separate list – the record of anonymous entries. This will contain the elector number, full name, qualifying address, correspondence address (if any) and the date that the registration first took effect. If the person has a postal vote, the delivery address must also be kept on the record. You should ensure that the list is kept secure and prevent any unauthorised access.

7.147 Only the following persons and organisations are entitled to have access to the record of anonymous entries.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- Returning Officers and referendum Counting Officers
- In England and Wales, the Jury Service
- The security services, including Government Communications Headquarters (GCHQ)
- The police, including the National Crime Agency (at the request of a senior officer\(^{xi}\))

7.148 When a person is entered in the record, you will need to issue a signed ‘certificate of anonymous registration’. This must state the local authority area, the elector’s name, qualifying address, electoral number and the date on which the registration took effect. It must also state that the registration will end no later than 12 months from that date if a fresh application for anonymous registration is not made.\(^{227}\)

You can download a template certificate of anonymous registration from our website.

Absent voting lists

7.149 The absent voting lists must, for anonymous electors and their proxies, contain only the elector’s electoral number and the period for which the absent vote is in effect, but not any name or address.\(^{228}\) At an election, the copy of the absent voting lists to enable postal vote issuing and marking the return of postal votes contains only the electoral number.\(^{229}\) The address to which the ballot pack will be sent must not be on that list and all correspondence must be sent in an unidentifiable envelope.\(^{230}\)

Validity of registration

7.150 Registration lasts for 12 months from the day the anonymous entry is first made on the register.\(^{231}\) Anonymous registrations can be removed earlier in the following circumstances:\(^{232}\)

- cancellation by the elector
- you determine that the person is not entitled to be registered
- you determine that the person was registered, or that their entry was altered, as a result of an application made by another person (i.e. not the individual whose details are provided on the application and who has declared that the information provided is true)

\(^{xi}\) Senior officer means an officer of a rank senior to that of superintendent, or, in the case of the National Crime Agency, the Director General of that Agency.
For guidance on removing an elector from the register, see Chapter 9: Deletions.

7.151 You must send a reminder between 9 and 10 months after the date of the first registration (and each anniversary). The reminder must explain that a fresh application for anonymous registration must be made if the elector wants to remain registered anonymously.

7.152 Any ‘renewal’ application must contain the same level of evidence as the original application. Applicants should therefore be advised to keep a copy of attestations or copies of court documents for subsequent applications. You should offer to copy any originals so that they can be returned and the copy kept for reference. If the elector loses their supporting documents, provided you have the appropriate safeguards in place, you could supply a copy of any document or attestation which is still in force to assist with any renewal.

7.153 Anonymous entries can be subject to the review procedures. Further consideration of the review process is contained in Chapter 10: Reviews, objections and hearings. The name and address of the person is not entered on the list of persons under review.

7.154 Paragraphs 4.29 to 4.35 cover the document retention period for documents received as part of an application and this should be reflected in your document retention policy.

Donations to registered political parties by anonymously registered electors

7.155 Anonymously registered individuals can donate to registered political parties but they must provide the party with a copy of their certificate of anonymous registration as proof of eligibility. A registered political party may ask you to confirm the validity of any certificate. The elector details cannot be confirmed but you may wish to confirm the format of their certificate and that the electoral number on that certificate matches the register entry for an anonymous elector.
Prisoners on remand and patients in mental health hospitals

Applications

7.156 Prisoners on remand and patients in mental health hospitals who are registered at their place of custody or hospital must supply the same information as for an ordinary application (see paragraph 4.2).

7.157 There is no legal requirement for an application to be acknowledged - whether it is in response to an invitation to register or not. However, you do have discretion to send an acknowledgement. In all cases, if you have determined that an applicant is entitled to be registered, you must confirm that their registration application has been successful. The process and contents of the confirmation letter is as set out in paragraphs 6.13 to 6.15 for unsolicited applications and paragraphs 6.10 to 6.12 should the application have been solicited.

7.158 You should also consider including alongside the confirmation letter, information on any postal or proxy arrangements that are in place. If no arrangements are in place you should make clear what their absent voting options are. If you have rejected a registration application, you should notify the applicant and inform them of the reasons why.

Validity of registration

7.159 Registration of these electors lasts for 12 months from the day the entry is made on the register. Registrations can be removed earlier in the following circumstances:

- cancellation by the elector
- you determine that the person is not entitled to be registered
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- you determine that the person was registered, or that their entry was altered, as a result of an application made by another person (i.e. not the individual whose details are provided on the application and who has declared that the information provided is true)
- if another entry is made in respect of the elector in any register of electors

For guidance on removing an elector from the register, see Chapter 9: Deletions.

7.160 Paragraphs 4.29 to 4.35 cover the document retention period for documents received as part of an application and this should be reflected in your document retention policy. Section 5 'Document retention' of our resource contains advice on maintaining your document retention policy, including what it should contain.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains guidance on document retention and maintaining your document retention policy, including what it should contain.

Ministerial guidance on special category electors

7.161 The Minister has issued guidance on the exceptions and attestations process for special category electors. Anonymous electors and persons registered under a declaration of local connection are not covered here – people who want to be registered as one of these types of special category elector and are unable to provide the identifiers must follow the same exceptions process and, if required, attestation process, as ordinary applicants.

In Scotland, where an application as a special category elector is made by a person under 18 years old for the purposes of registering in the local government register, and that person’s identity cannot be verified, you should take the following approach:

- Anonymous electors and declarations of local connection (any type) whose identity cannot be verified by education records or other local data must provide documentary evidence or, if they cannot provide documentary evidence, an attestation in the same way as people applying to register as an ordinary elector (see Sections 5 and 6 of the Ministerial Guidance)
- Service voters (for example, due to living with a parent or guardian who is a member of HM Forces, or a Crown Servant or British Council employee serving abroad) whose identity cannot be verified by education records or other local data may be required to provide one of the following documents (or a copy):
(a) their passport, or
(b) their identity card issued in the European Economic Area.
The document provided must be certified by a Crown Servant, British Council employee, or officer of HM Forces (as appropriate) who is not the applicant's parent, guardian, spouse or civil partner.

There is no provision for an attestation to be made.
Ministerial guidance

This guidance has been issued by the Minister under Section 1(3) of, and Paragraph 2(1) of Schedule 1 to, the Electoral Registration and Administration Act 2013.

EROs must, by law, have regard to this guidance.

8 The rules for special category electors

The relevant legislative references on which this guidance is based are set out in Annex 1.

8.1 Exceptions/Attestation for special category electors

8.1.1 All special category electors whose personal identifiers cannot be matched against DWP data must provide some form of evidence as to their identity in order to be registered to vote.

8.1.2 Anonymous electors and declarations of local connection (any type) who fail the DWP match must provide documentary evidence or, if they cannot provide documentary evidence, an attestation in the same way as people applying to register as an ordinary elector (see sections 5 and 6).

8.1.3 All reference to the spouse of a Crown Servant, British Council Employee, or member of the armed forces in this section should be taken to additionally refer to any civil partner of the above.

8.1.4 All correspondence between the ERO and applicants may be sent electronically. In addition, it is permissible for applicants to provide attestations or documentary evidence by electronic means such as a fax or scanned image.

8.1.5 The process for all other types of special category electors is as follows:

Crown Servants and their spouses, employees of the British Council and their spouses, and spouses of members of the armed forces

8.1.6 If a Crown Servant, British Council employee (or their spouse) or spouse of a member of the armed forces fails the DWP match, the ERO should write to them informing them of this and asking them to provide documentary evidence in support of their application as set out in 5.1.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Elector Type</th>
<th>Document</th>
<th>Certified by</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Crown Servants and spouse</td>
<td>A copy of the information/photograph page of their passport or both sides of their EEA identity card</td>
<td>Crown Servant, British Council employee, or officer of the armed forces who is not (in each case) the applicant’s spouse</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British Council employees and spouse</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spouse of a member of the armed forces</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>

8.1.8 This is the only route available to this type of special category elector; applicants who will not or cannot provide this information cannot register to vote.

8.1.9 The ERO may wish to consider setting a deadline date for the applicant to respond; this will be helpful to the ERO when deciding to reject an application because no response has been received. The time given to applicants to respond is at the discretion of the ERO; however, it should allow the applicant reasonable time to return their documentary evidence. This is likely to be a longer period than for ordinary electors, as special category applicants may live overseas or not have easy access to their documentation.

Members of the armed forces

8.1.10 Members of the armed forces whose personal identifiers have failed the DWP match must provide an attestation as to their identity.

8.1.11 The ERO must write to the applicant informing them that it has not been possible to verify their identity and asking them to supply an attestation.

8.1.12 The attestation must:

- Be in writing;
- Confirm that the applicant is the person stated in the service voter’s application;
- Be signed by an officer of the armed forces who is not spouse, parent, grandparent, brother, sister, child or grandchild of the applicant;
- State the full name, address and rank of the person signing the attestation and the service (whether naval, military or air forces) in which the attestor serves;
- State the date on which it is made.

8.1.13 In common with attestation for ordinary electors, the ERO may wish to create a form which contains the necessary legal statements and requirements for the attestation. Alternatively, the ERO may wish to set this detail out in the letter to the applicant. In all cases, the ERO must communicate the legislative requirements for an attestation as set out in regulation 26B.

8.1.14 Note that persons attesting armed forces applications do not have to be registered to vote and may attest an unlimited number of applications.

8.1.15 The ERO may wish to consider setting a deadline date for the applicant to respond; this will be helpful to the ERO when deciding to reject an application because no response has been received. The time given to applicants to respond is at the discretion of the ERO; however, it should allow the applicant reasonable time to source and return their attestation, bearing in mind that armed forces electors may be deployed to overseas locations.

Overseas electors

8.1.16 People who wish to register as overseas electors and who fail the DWP match must provide an attestation as to their identity.

8.1.17 The ERO must write to the applicant informing them that it has not been possible to verify their identity and asking them to supply an attestation.

8.1.18 The attestation must:

- Be in writing;
- Confirm that the applicant is the person stated on the overseas elector application;
- Be signed by a registered elector who is a British citizen living overseas and who is not the spouse, parent, grandparent, brother, sister, child or grandchild of the applicant;
- State the full name, address and occupation of the person signing the attestation;
- State the attestor’s British passport number together with its date and place of issue;
- State the date on which the attestation is made.

8.1.19 In common with attestation for ordinary electors, the ERO may wish to create a form which contains the necessary legal statements and requirements for the attestation. Alternatively, the ERO may wish to set this detail out in the letter to the applicant. In all cases, the ERO must communicate the legislative requirements for an attestation as set out in regulation 26B.

8.1.20 The ERO may wish to consider setting a deadline date for the applicant to respond; this will be helpful to the ERO when deciding to reject an application because no response has been received. The time given to applicants to respond is at the discretion of the ERO; however, it should allow the applicant reasonable time to source and return their attestation. The ERO should consider whether to allow additional time for overseas electors, bearing in mind the distance the elected from the UK.

8.1.21 Note that persons attesting overseas applications should be a registered elector who is a British citizen living overseas and may attest an unlimited number of applications.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

8 Amendments to existing entries

8.1 An elector’s circumstances may change after they have been added to the register. For example, an elector may gain or lose a nationality that affects their franchise, or they may change their name.

Changes that are indicated on a returned pre-populated HEF (other than a change to the ‘aged 76 or over’ indicator in England and Wales) cannot be actioned by themselves and follow-up action will be required. This is detailed in Part 3: Annual Canvass.

Change of nationality

8.2 An elector who becomes a British citizen, a citizen of the Republic of Ireland or a citizen of another Commonwealth country but who was previously registered only in the register of local government electors must make a new application in order to be added to the register of UK Parliamentary electors. As this constitutes a new application, the elector’s details will need to go through the whole application, verification and determination process again.

8.3 As part of your power to check local records, you should regularly inspect the lists held by the registrar holding citizenship ceremonies. These will have information on who has become a British citizen. You are entitled to inspect and make copies of these records, and could use them, for example, to identify potential new electors and issue them with an invitation to register. Information on applying to register to vote could also be given to the registrar to include in the pack they make available to those receiving British citizenship.

8.4 In order to demonstrate that all information obtained complies with the principles of processing personal data, ensuring that it is processed lawfully, fairly and in a transparent manner, you should maintain records of the local records you have inspected and the action you have taken on the basis of the information you have received.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains guidance on inspecting records, including what details should be recorded to help you demonstrate that you are complying with your obligations under data protection legislation.
Change of name

8.5 An existing elector can apply to change their name on the register by submitting a completed change of name request.\textsuperscript{237}

You must use the form approved by the Minister for the Cabinet Office and made available by the Commission. The form is available on our website.

8.6 If an elector applies to change their name, the request must be in writing and include:\textsuperscript{238}

- the applicant’s full name
- the full name under which they are currently registered
- the date of the change of name
- the registration address
- a declaration by the applicant that the information provided in the application is true
- the date of the application
- documentary evidence in support of the change (see Section 9 of the Ministerial Guidance below)

8.7 If a person is unable to provide any suitable documentary evidence they must provide their date of birth and National Insurance number as part of their application or, if they are not able to provide their date of birth or National Insurance number, the reason why they are not able to do so.\textsuperscript{239}

8.8 As part of any checks you carry out of local records, you should inspect the records held by the registrars of births, deaths and marriages. This information, in conjunction with information gained from other records, may alert you to a change of name. Where this is the case, you should contact the elector and inform them of what they need to do to change their name on the electoral register and provide them with the change of name form.

8.9 In order to demonstrate that all information obtained complies with the principles of processing personal data, ensuring that it is processed lawfully, fairly and in a transparent manner, you should maintain records of the local records you have inspected and the action you have taken on the basis of the information you have received.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 contains guidance on inspecting records, including what details should be recorded to help you demonstrate that you are complying with your obligations under data protection legislation.
8.10 The Minister has issued guidance on the types of documentary evidence that can be provided to support a change of name.
Ministerial guidance

This guidance has been issued by the Minister under Section 1(3) of, and Paragraph 2(1) of Schedule 1 to, the Electoral Registration and Administration Act 2013.

EROs must, by law, have regard to this guidance.

9 Amendments to existing entries – change of name

The relevant legislative references on which this guidance is based are set out in Annex 1.

9.1.1 An existing elector can apply to change their name on the register by submitting a completed change of name form.

9.1.2 The applicant is required to provide supporting documentary evidence of the change. The evidence provided should show a clear link between the name under which an applicant is currently registered and the name to which they wish to change the entry.

9.1.3 Acceptable documents may include:

- Marriage or civil partnership certificate
- Overseas marriage or civil partnership certificate
- Enrolled deed poll
- Unenrolled deed poll or change of name deed
- Statutory declaration or affidavit
- Baptismal or confirmation certificate (for first names only)
- Birth certificate
- Certificate of naturalisation or registration
- Adoption order/certificate

9.1.4 The above list is not exhaustive and it is for the ERO to decide whether a document constitutes satisfactory proof of the change of name of the elector.

9.1.5 A birth certificate, a certificate of naturalisation or registration, or an adoption order/certificate will usually only be a suitable form of evidence if the document has been amended. Examples of amendments include:

- An amendment on a birth certificate in England and Wales can occur if the holder had their forename changed within the first twelve months of their birth, or under some other circumstances.
- An amendment on a certificate of naturalisation may occur if the holder subsequently changed their name. In such cases, the document will have both the former name and the newer altered name, giving evidence of a link between the two.

9.1.6 In the first instance, the ERO should request that the applicant provide copies of the evidence to the ERO, either by post or by electronic means. EROs should ensure that copies of documents provided by applicants, or copies taken by the ERO of original documents, be stored securely in the same way as application forms. The applicant may attend the ERO’s office in person with either copies or original documents if they do not wish to send copies.

9.1.7 The ERO must be satisfied that the documents or copies provided to them appear to be genuine.

9.1.8 Where the ERO has doubt as to whether a document that has been copied is genuine or where the copy is of such poor quality that the ERO cannot make an assessment of the document, the ERO may ask the applicant to present the original document(s) in person at the ERO’s office. It is also permissible for the applicant to send original documents to the ERO to be copied and returned, however EROs should be aware that they would become responsible for the secure transit of the document.

9.1.9 Where there has been more than one change of name, the applicant should provide sufficient documentary evidence to show a clear link between their name as currently shown on the register and the name to which they wish to change the entry.

9.1.10 The following are examples of decisions that an ERO might take in determining a change of name application:

- An elector registered as John Smith would like to change his name on the register to John Smith-Brown. He provides a copy of a marriage certificate recording the marriage of John Smith and Alice Brown. The ERO considers this sufficient evidence, as the link can clearly be made between John Smith and John Smith-Brown from the surname of his wife.
- An elector registered as Lucy Jones would like to change her name on the register to Lucy Lewis. She provides a marriage certificate recording the marriage of Lucy Jones and Mike Green, and a deed poll proving Lucy Green’s change of name to Lucy Lewis. The ERO considers this sufficient evidence, as while there is no direct link between Lucy Jones and Lucy Lewis, the link between each of these and Lucy Green has been made.
- An elector registered as Jane Grey would like to change her name on the register to Jane Walsh. She provides a marriage certificate recording the marriage of Jane Walsh and Thomas Grey. The ERO considers this sufficient evidence, as the link can clearly be made between Jane Grey and Jane Walsh from her maiden name.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- An elector registered as James Osborne would like to change his name on the register to James Smith. He provides a passport in the name of James Smith. The ERO does not consider this sufficient evidence, as it does not demonstrate the link between the two names.

- An elector registered as Michael Giggs would like to change his name on the register to Arthur Lucas. He provides a deed poll affirming the change of name of Michael Giggs to Arthur Lucas. The ERO considers this sufficient evidence, as the link between the two names is demonstrated.
Change of address

8.11 An elector can apply to change the address at which they are registered within the registration area by making a new application to register.

8.12 If you are notified on an application to register that the applicant has ceased to reside at another address in the same registration area, and the application at the new address is successful, you should amend the elector’s entry to remove them from the register at their previous address. The confirmation letter you are required to send in response to a successful application to register must in all cases where a previous address at which the applicant no longer resides has been given, confirm that their register entry relating to that address will be removed (see also paragraphs 6.10 to 6.15).240

Where an elector has made an application for registration in another area, and has indicated that they have ceased to reside at an address in your area, you will receive a notification from the IER Digital Service when the new ERO has allowed the application. You can then follow the deletions process (see Chapter 9: ‘Deletions’).

8.13 If you are notified directly by an elector of a change of address within the registration area you should provide them – and any other electors who have moved with them – with information about how to make an application. You should also make enquiries to establish whether there are other new residents, or whether any previous residents have moved out.

8.14 Once you have identified the name and address of a person who is not registered and you have reason to believe that they may be eligible, the invitation to register requirements apply.241

Guidance on encouraging applications before giving an invitation is set out at paragraphs 2.9 to 2.12. Guidance on giving invitations to register is provided in Chapter 3: Giving invitations to register.
9 Deletions

9.1 A person who is registered stays registered unless and until the ERO determines that:²⁴²

- the person was not entitled to be registered in respect of the address
- the person has ceased to be resident at the address or has otherwise ceased to satisfy the conditions for registration
- the person was registered as the result of an application for registration made by someone else (i.e. not the individual whose details are provided on the application and who has declared that the information provided is true) or the person’s entry has been altered as the result of an application for a change of name made by someone else

9.2 You are required by law to consider whether to make such a determination in respect of a person’s entry on the register maintained by you if you become aware of information that causes you to suspect that one of the conditions in the list above may be met, or if you receive a valid objection to a person’s registration.²⁴³

9.3 Where you have determined that someone is no longer entitled to be registered, they must be deleted from the register.²⁴⁴

9.4 As set out in paragraph 4.31, unless there is a legal challenge or investigation you should not retain any documents relating to a particular elector for more than 12 months after they have been removed from the register, as this is the usual time limit for any prosecutions.

Special provisions apply to special category electors. Chapter 7: ‘Special category electors’ contains guidance on managing the registration of these electors.

To achieve the outcomes set out in performance standard 2, you will need to use available information sources to identify existing electors who may no longer be eligible and ensure that all necessary steps are taken to remove that elector from the register. The number of reviews of registration undertaken and the total number of electors deleted from the register will help to demonstrate how the outcomes have been met.
Deletions without a review

9.5 In the same way that a person cannot register by including their name on a HEF, an elector cannot be deleted based solely on a HEF response (such as an elector being crossed off or no response being received to the HEF) unless you have information that an elector is deceased.

We have published a summary of the deletions and reviews processes on our website.

9.6 In order to remove a person’s entry from the register you must make a determination that they are no longer entitled to be registered (as set out in paragraph 9.1). You may proceed to make this determination without any further evidence or review only in one or more of the following circumstances:

- you receive notification via the IER Digital Service that a person registered in your area has made an application for registration elsewhere and has indicated that they have ceased to reside at the address in your area, and the new ERO has allowed the application
- you receive notification from another ERO that a person registered in your area has made an application for registration elsewhere and has indicated that they have ceased to reside at the address in your area, and the new ERO has allowed the application
- you have information from at least two sources that supports a determination that a person is no longer entitled to be registered at the address in question
- you have been given a death certificate in respect of the elector
- the registrar of births and deaths has notified you that the elector has died
- you are satisfied the elector is deceased after receiving information:
  - as a result of the canvass (for example, a returned HEF with an elector marked as deceased)
  - from a close relative (spouse, civil partner, parent, grandparent, brother, sister, child or grandchild of the elector). This can be provided in person, by telephone or in writing but must include:
    - the full name and address of the elector who has died;
    - the full name and address of the person providing the information;
    - their relationship to the deceased; and,
    - a statement that the person providing the information is aware of the penalty for providing false information.

Where information is provided in person or by telephone, you must record the information in writing or in data form.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- from a care home manager of a registered care home\textsuperscript{xii}. This can be provided in person, by telephone or in writing but must include:
  - the full name and address of the elector who has died;
  - the full name and address of the person providing the information; and,
  - a statement that the person providing the information is aware of the penalty for providing false information\textsuperscript{247}

Where information is provided in person or by telephone, you must record the information in writing or in data form.

- from the records of the council that appointed you (and, if you are an ERO for a district council in a two-tier authority, the records of the relevant county council)

- from a person or organisation providing services to the council that appointed you (including, if you are an ERO for a district council in a two-tier authority, the relevant county council).

9.7 In all other circumstances you must carry out a review before deleting a person’s entry on the register.\textsuperscript{248}

Deletions supported by information from at least two sources

9.8 You may make a determination that a person’s entitlement to be registered has ceased without carrying out a review where you receive two sources of information that support such a determination.\textsuperscript{249} However, even where you are in receipt of two sources of information which are consistent, you should nevertheless still be satisfied that a person is not entitled to be registered before you make such a determination. If you are in doubt as to whether a person’s entitlement to remain registered has ceased you still have the option of obtaining additional information, or carrying out a review, before making your determination.

9.9 The sources of information that you use in determining whether someone is no longer eligible to be registered should be robust and you should maintain a clear audit trail of the steps you have taken as part of the deletions process.

Information arising in response to invitations to register

9.10 You may receive information in response to invitations to register. This could include the following:

\textsuperscript{xii} under Part 2 of the Care Standards Act 2000 in England and Wales. In Scotland, “care home” means a care home service registered under Part 5 of the Public Services Reform (Scotland) Act 2010(a) and “care home service” has the meaning given by paragraph 2 of schedule 12 of that Act.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- information from another resident at the address notifying you that the elector is no longer resident
- information from someone else connected with the address, such as a landlord, notifying you that the elector is no longer resident
- an invitation to register being returned as undeliverable/return to sender/not at this address

9.11 Such information would count as one source of information. If this is supported by local data, such as the individual being removed from the council tax account at that address, then that would be information from a second source which could support a determination that the elector is no longer resident.

Other sources of information
9.12 If you have been provided with information from a source other than the elector themselves you can attempt to contact the elector directly including by phone, email or post to make enquiries. A lack of response to an attempt to make contact with the elector, such as a letter that is returned as undeliverable or indicating that the elector is no longer resident could be such a source of information. The information on which a decision to delete an entry without a review is based must, however, be from different sources. For example, two pieces of mail returned as undeliverable are unlikely to be information from two sources. In this case information from a different source would also be required before a determination could be made.

Chapter 10: ‘Reviews, objections and hearings’ contains guidance on carrying out reviews and deletions following a review. We have also published a summary of the deletions and review processes on our website.

Deletions where you have evidence that the elector is not eligible to remain registered

Notification that an elector is registered elsewhere
9.13 Once you are notified via the IER Digital Service or directly by another ERO that an elector who has an entry on the register for your electoral area has had an application allowed in the other ERO’s area and has on their application stated that they have ceased to reside in your area, you can delete that elector’s entry on the register.²⁵⁰

9.14 If you are otherwise notified that an elector has moved out of the area, including by the elector themselves, you cannot automatically delete that entry. You can only do so if you have information from another source to support such a determination or following a review. These situations are covered later in this chapter.
Paragraphs 4.36 to 4.38 contain guidance on your responsibility to notify another ERO if an application states that the applicant’s former address is in another registration area, and on the notifications you will receive via the IER Digital Service.

Change of address within the registration area

9.15 An elector can apply to change the address at which they are registered by making a new application to register. If you are notified on an application that an elector has ceased to reside at another address in the same registration area, and the application at the new address is successful, you must amend the elector’s entry to remove them from the register at their previous address.\(^{251}\)

Chapter 8 contains guidance on making amendments to existing entries.

Evidence that an elector has died

9.16 You may delete an elector’s entry from the register without a review if you have:\(^{252}\)

- been provided with a death certificate in respect of an elector
- been notified by the registrar of births and deaths that an elector has died
- received information as a result of the canvass (for example, a returned HEF with an elector marked as deceased) that an elector has died.
- been notified by a close relative (spouse, civil partner, parent, grandparent, brother, sister, child or grandchild of the elector) that an elector has died

Can be provided in person, by telephone or in writing but must include:
- the full name and address of the elector who has died;
- the full name and address of the person providing the information;
- their relationship to the deceased; and,
- a statement that the person providing the information is aware of the penalty for providing false information\(^{253}\)

Where information is provided in person or by telephone, you must record the information in writing or in data form.

- been notified by a care home manager of a registered care home\(^{xiii}\) that a care home resident has died. Can be provided in person, by telephone or in writing but must include:

\(^{xiii}\) under Part 2 of the Care Standards Act 2000 in England and Wales. In Scotland, “care home” means a care home service registered under Part 5 of the Public Services Reform (Scotland) Act 2010(a) and “care home service” has the meaning given by paragraph 2 of schedule 12 of that Act.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- the full name and address of the elector who has died;
- the full name and address of the person providing the information;
and,
- a statement that the person providing the information is aware of the penalty for providing false information .

Where information is provided in person or by telephone, you must record the information in writing or in data form:

- identified through the records of the council that appointed you (and, if you are an ERO for a district council in a two-tier authority, the records of the relevant county council) that an elector has died
- identified through a person or organisation providing services to the council that appointed you (including, if you are an ERO for a district council in a two-tier authority, the relevant county council) that an elector has died.

9.17 Where you delete an elector’s entry from the register because they have died, you should maintain an audit trail of the reasons for your actions. In relation to notifications from the registrar of births and deaths, you should bear in mind that a death must only be notified to the registrar responsible for the area in which the death occurred, and if an elector registered in your area dies elsewhere you are unlikely to receive formal notification.

9.18 If you are informed that a person has died in any circumstance other than those listed in paragraph 9.16, you will need to obtain a second source of information before you can remove the elector. For example, you could contact the registrar to obtain formal notification of the death, which would allow you to delete the entry without further information or a review.

‘Inspecting other records’ in Chapter 2 sets out the records you are entitled to inspect, and you may be able to use these to support a determination that an elector should be deleted from the register.

Deleting an entry

9.19 Once you have determined that a person is no longer entitled to remain registered at the address in question you must remove their entry from the register.

9.20 When deletions take effect will depend on when you have made your determination:
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of register update</th>
<th>Deadline for determining deletions</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Monthly notice of alteration</td>
<td>14 calendar days before publication²⁵⁸</td>
</tr>
<tr>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>Revised register between canvasses</td>
<td>14 calendar days before the end of the month preceding the month when the revised register is due to be published²⁵⁹</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

9.21 Once you have given effect to a deletion you do not need to send written confirmation of your determination to the elector where the deletion is made as a result of:

- information from two different sources
- information that an elector is deceased as per paragraph 9.16
- a notification through the IER Digital Service or another ERO that the person registered in your area has made an application for registration elsewhere and has indicated that they have ceased to reside at the address in your area, and the new ERO has allowed the application

9.22 You may, however, still choose to confirm the deletion if you think it might be helpful to do so, which could be done by email if you hold their email address.

9.23 You should consider whether to send a HEF to the property to enable you to identify any potential new electors who may be resident at that address.

Appeals

9.24 Where someone has been removed from the register, they have 14 calendar days beginning from the date of the decision to delete the person from the register to appeal the decision.²⁶¹

9.25 The notice of appeal must be submitted to you and any other relevant party, together with the grounds of appeal.²⁶² You must then forward the notice to the county court or in Scotland to the sheriff, which should be accompanied by:

- a statement of the material facts which, in your opinion, have been established in the case
- your decision on the whole case and on any point specified as a ground of appeal
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- in Scotland, such further information as the sheriff may require and which you are able to give

9.26 Should you consider that any appeals are based on similar grounds, you must inform the appropriate county court, or the sheriff in Scotland, of this to enable the court or sheriff to consolidate the cases or select one as a test case.²⁶⁴

Deletions following a review

9.27 If you still have reason to believe that a person’s entitlement to remain registered may have ceased, and the circumstances set out in paragraph 9.6 do not apply, you should carry out a review (see next chapter).
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

10 Reviews, objections and hearings

10.1 The process for determining applications, assessing the continued entitlement of an elector to remain registered and removing someone from the register may require dealing with reviews, hearings and objections.

10.2 There are circumstances where you can remove someone from the register without the need for a review. These are set out in Chapter 9: Deletions.

We have published a summary of the deletion and reviews processes on our website.

Reviews

10.3 Registration reviews form an integral part of ensuring the register is as accurate as possible and you should monitor any local records you use to help you identify where electors are no longer resident at an address.

10.4 You have a duty to ensure that, far as is reasonably practicable, persons who are not entitled to be registered are not registered. This includes any ordinary, anonymous or other special category elector.

10.5 If the circumstances do not allow you to remove someone from the register without conducting a review first, you have a duty to undertake a review of the entry. You can also undertake a review at any other time where you have reason to believe someone may not be entitled to be registered.

To achieve the outcomes set out in performance standard 2, you will need to use available information sources to identify existing electors who may no longer be eligible and ensure that all necessary steps are taken to remove that elector from the register. The number of reviews of registration undertaken and the total number of electors deleted from the register will help to demonstrate how the outcomes have been met.

‘Inspecting other records’ in Chapter 2 sets out the records you are entitled to inspect – including data protection considerations – and these records may give you an indication whether someone is no longer resident at an address.
Types of review

10.6 There are three types of review. The choice of which option to undertake is at your discretion and will depend on the particular situation.

10.7 Following your decision as to which type of review you will carry out in any particular case, you must send a notice to the elector, containing the relevant information for that review type as set out below. In each type of review, the form of the notice to be given is not prescribed but the content is. Irrespective of which type of review you are undertaking, you must inform the elector of the grounds on which you are reviewing their registration.

Type A review

10.8 A type A review should be undertaken when you are of the opinion that the elector is not or was not entitled to be registered, or has an entry in the register which results from or was altered as a result of an application made by another person (i.e. not the individual whose details are provided on the application and who has declared that the information provided is true). For example, if you have received information that a person is no longer resident at a particular address, and you have not been able to obtain a second source of evidence to support a deletion, you could undertake a type A review.

10.9 If you decide to undertake this form of review, you must send a notice to the elector stating that:

- you are of the opinion that the person is or was not entitled to be registered or has an entry in the register which results from or was altered as a result of an application made by another person, and give the reasons for your opinion.268
- if the elector does not request a hearing within 14 calendar days beginning with the date of the notice, you may make a determination and remove them from the register
- the elector will have no right of appeal against any decision to remove them from the register if they have not requested a hearing within the 14 calendar day period
- after the expiry of the 14 calendar day period, the elector may contact you to find out if they have been removed from the register.

10.10 As the 14 calendar day period runs from the date of the notice, you should date the notice on the date that it is sent.
10.11 If the elector does not ask for a hearing within 14 calendar days, you must determine the review using any information that you have and any submitted by the elector or any other party. If you consider that the elector is or was not entitled to be registered, or has an entry in the register which results from or was altered as a result of an application made by another person, you must remove the entry from the register.

10.12 Paragraph 9.20 contains information on the timetable for deletions.

Notification of the outcome of a type A review

10.13 If the elector did not request a hearing or make representations, you are not required to notify them of the outcome of the review, but may do so if you consider it appropriate. If you do notify the elector, you must state that there is no right of appeal.

10.14 If the elector has made representations or requested a hearing you must notify them of the outcome of the review and state whether there is a right of appeal, including:

- the time within which notice of appeal must be given (see paragraph 10.64)
- any other information about the appeal that you consider appropriate

Type B review

10.15 Type B reviews enable you to require the elector to provide evidence of age or nationality or to supply information on any other aspect in connection with the requirements for registration. You should conduct a type B review when you have doubts as to whether the person meets one or more of the eligibility criteria but you are not able to substantiate these by, for example, using other council records and the elector has not responded to any previous request for information.

10.16 If you decide to undertake this form of review, you must send a notice to the elector stating that you are not satisfied that the elector is entitled to be registered and your reason for the review. You must also include a requirement to provide evidence of age or nationality as appropriate.

10.17 The notice should state that the elector has 28 calendar days from the date of the notice to supply the required evidence and that if they do not, their entry in the register may be deleted. You should highlight that it is an offence to provide false information to you in response to this notice.

10.18 If the elector has not submitted satisfactory evidence or information within 28 days, you should proceed to a Type A review.

10.19 If the elector has submitted evidence or information within 28 days, you must notify the elector of the outcome of the review and state whether there is a right of appeal, including.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- the time within which notice of appeal must be given (see paragraph 10.64)
- any other information about the appeal that you consider appropriate

Type C review

10.20 Type C reviews occur when you decide to go directly to a hearing. This may be in circumstances where your position and that of the elector or any other person is clear and it would be more practicable to have a hearing to decide the matter than to conduct a type A or type B review by correspondence. A type C review can be completed in a shorter timescale than types A and B and so may be particularly appropriate close to a determination deadline, for example, ahead of an election.

10.21 If you decide to undertake this form of review, you must send a notice to the elector stating your intention to hold a hearing. The notice must include the reasons for the review and the time and place of the hearing.

10.22 Following the hearing, you must notify the elector of the outcome of the review and state whether there is a right of appeal, including:

- the time within which notice of appeal must be given (see paragraph 10.64)
- any other information about the appeal that you consider appropriate

Review hearings are covered later in this chapter at paragraphs 10.57 and 10.60.

---

We have published a summary of the review process on our website.

---

List of reviews

10.23 You must keep a list of reviews. The list must contain the following information for each review, unless the review relates to an anonymous entry on the register:

- the full name, qualifying address and electoral number of the subject of the review
- the reason for the review

10.24 The list must be available for inspection at your office. You may keep the list electronically, such as on your EMS, and produce a paper copy for inspection on demand. You should maintain a clear audit trail of the reviews you have undertaken and the processes you have followed, including records of the information you have taken into consideration in your decision-making.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

In Scotland, where the subject of a review is under 16 years old, you must not include them in the list of reviews available for inspection at your office.\(^\text{280}\)

Objections

10.25 An elector registered in your area may make an objection at any time to a person’s registration, either before or after you have added that person to the register. Objections can be made both to applications for registration and to entries already on the register.

In Scotland, an application by a person under 16 years old must not be entered in the list of applications available for public inspection. However, there is nothing to prevent an objection being made to the application. An objection could equally be made to an entry on the register of a person under 16 years old.

10.26 The grounds for objection are that the person does not meet one or all of the requirements for registration, namely the age, nationality and residence qualifications, or the person has a legal disqualification to registering.

10.27 Some electors may not wish to make a formal objection because they wish to keep their details anonymous. However, this does not prevent you from carrying out a review of entitlement to registration.

Form of objection

10.28 Objections must:\(^\text{281}\)

- be made in writing
- be signed and dated by the elector making the objection (‘the objector’) – the signature cannot be an electronic one
- include the name, address and electoral number of the objector – the address should be as it appears on the register if shown, and if no such address appears or if the objector wishes correspondence to be sent to a different address, the correspondence address should also be given
- give the name, qualifying address and electoral number of the elector who is objected to or, if the person in question is not yet registered, their name and address as in the application
- give the reason for the objection
10.29 You are entitled to ask for further information about the particulars of any objection. If, for example, an objector has not given the qualifying address of the person they are objecting to, you should write to the objector to ask for this before taking any further action. Once you are satisfied that you have all the details, you can continue with the objection process.

10.30 As with applications, objections are open for inspection until they have been determined.\textsuperscript{282}

10.31 The two separate lists of objections you must maintain are:\textsuperscript{283}

- a list of objections to applications for registration before you have added the person to the register
- a list of objections to entries already in the register

10.32 Anonymous registration applications are not open to inspection and anonymous applications and those registered anonymously cannot be subject to an objection.\textsuperscript{284}

\begin{quote}

However, there is nothing to prevent an objection being made to the application. An objection could equally be made to an entry on the register of a person under 16 years old.
\end{quote}

Determination of objections

10.33 You can disallow an objection without the need for a hearing, where:\textsuperscript{285}

- the objector was not entitled to object, for example, they were not a registered elector in your area
- the objection was clearly without merit
- the matter has already been settled by a court
- the particulars given in the objection do not entitle it to succeed

10.34 Examples of objections that are clearly without merit or where the particulars given will not succeed are:

- Objections based on the nationality of a person when the alleged nationality is an eligible nationality and the same as that given by the person
- Where the objector believes that the elector does not own the property they live in and should therefore not be registered
10.35 If you reject an objection, you must inform the objector of this, setting out your reasons. The objector may require a hearing within three days of your decision to reject it.\[286\]

10.36 The objector must be a registered elector in the local authority area, but does not need to be registered in the same ward.\[287\] If an objection is disallowed because the objector was not entitled to object you must inform the objector.

Objections received within five working days of listing an application

10.37 If you receive an objection to an application to register within five working days of listing it, you must suspend the application until you determine the objection. The only exception to this is if you are of the opinion that the objection is clearly without merit – in this case, you should continue to process the application.

10.38 In making your determination you could:

- Decide that the objection is clearly without merit. In such a case you must write to the objector and inform them of your decision. The application is not suspended and you can determine the application. The objector may still request a hearing.\[288\] If a hearing is requested, you should still continue to determine the application and add the applicant to the register if appropriate, but you must also conduct the objection hearing.\[289\]
- Inform the objector that they are not entitled to object. In such a case you must inform the objector of your decision. At that point, the objection is dismissed and you can determine the application.\[290\]
- Conclude that a decision of a court specifically covers the matters raised by the objection and that therefore the objection cannot be allowed. In such a case you must write to the objector and inform them of your decision. At that point, the objection is dismissed and you can determine the application.\[291\]
- Decide that the objection has or may have merit. The application is suspended and you must then hold a hearing. You will then determine the objection and the application based on the result of the hearing. See 'Hearings' below.

Objections received after the five-day period

10.39 Objections made after the five-day period do not suspend the application for registration.\[292\]

10.40 If you are unable to determine an objection to an application received after the five-day period in time for the next register update, the application continues as normal and you can determine it. If you publish a notice of alteration and add

an applicant subject to an objection, you should move the details from the 'objections to applications' list onto the 'objections to registration' list.\(^{293}\)

10.41 If you are able to determine the objection before the next register update and determine that the objection is allowed, then you must not add the applicant to your register.\(^{294}\)

10.42 If you receive an objection to an entry already on the electoral register, you must retain the elector on the register until you determine the objection.

10.43 If you disallow an objection, then you should send a notice of your decision and your reasons for disallowing it to the objector in order to allow them the opportunity to request a hearing.\(^{295}\)

10.44 The notice to the objector must state the grounds on which the objection has been disallowed and inform them that, unless they give you notice within three working days that they require a hearing, you will disallow the objection.\(^{296}\)

10.45 The only time you are required to inform an elector who is subject to an objection that their application or registration has been objected to is where there is a hearing as a result of the objection.\(^{297}\)

Hearings

Application hearings

10.46 Applications for registration do not have to be taken at face value - you have the option to take any application to a hearing. This process should be undertaken if you have any reason to doubt any application received based on any knowledge that you may have. Additionally, if an application has been disallowed without a hearing, one may be required by the applicant.\(^{298}\) This requirement must be made within three working days from the date of the notice informing the applicant of your decision\(^{299}\) and, due to the timescales, you should accept notification of the requirement to hold a hearing by written note, email or fax, or orally. You should ensure that once a decision is made to reject an application, the notice to be sent to the applicant is dated and sent on that same day.

10.47 Where a hearing is to take place, a notice of hearing must be sent to the applicant stating the following:\(^{300}\)

- the time and place of the hearing
- the grounds for the hearing
Objection hearings

10.48 You must hold a hearing to determine an objection unless you disallow an objection on one of the following grounds:\(^{301}\)

- the objector is not entitled to object
- the objection is clearly without merit
- the matter has been concluded by a court
- the reasons for the objection are not valid reasons for an objection

10.49 Additionally, if you disallow an objection without a hearing, a hearing may be required by the objector. This requirement must be made within three working days from the date of the notice informing the objector of your decision\(^{302}\) and, due to the timescales, you should accept notification of the requirement to hold a hearing by written note, email or fax, or orally. You should ensure that once a decision is made to reject an objection, the notice to be sent to the objector is dated and sent on that same day.

10.50 Where a hearing is to take place, a notice of hearing must be sent to both the objector and the applicant or elector subject to an objection. The notice must state the following:\(^{303}\)

- the time and place of the hearing
- the name and address of the objector
- the grounds for the objection

10.51 The objector’s details will be made available to the applicant or elector.\(^{304}\)

Arrangements for application / objection hearings

10.52 You must set the date of a hearing to take place no earlier than three working days and no later than seven working days after the date of the notice of the hearing.\(^{305}\) The applicant, or, in the case of an objection, the objector and the applicant or elector subject to an objection, are entitled to attend the hearing, as is anyone who appears to you to be interested.\(^{306}\)

10.53 Any person entitled to attend may do so in person, or alternatively they may make a written representation or have someone else attend on their behalf.\(^{307}\) You should ensure that as many relevant parties as possible have the opportunity to attend, in particular the applicant or, in the case of an objection, the objector and the applicant or elector subject to an objection.

10.54 You may require that evidence be given on oath (or affirmation in Scotland), either because one of the people entitled to appear requests it, or because you think it is desirable.\(^{308}\) While you may administer the oath yourself, you should seek advice from your legal team to ensure that the oath is in the correct form and that the appropriate religious and non-religious options are available.

10.55 If the persons who are entitled to attend tell you they cannot attend a hearing on the date you have specified, you should attempt to rearrange the hearing if possible within the period allowed. You may still continue to have the hearing and determine the application/objection at the hearing even if the objector, the applicant or the elector subject to an objection fail to attend. You must consider any written evidence, such as a letter or form, supplied by the applicant, elector or objector in their absence.

10.56 Hearings are quasi-judicial proceedings and should only be undertaken by the ERO or an appointed Deputy ERO.

Chapter 2 of Part 2: ‘Registration framework’ contains information on the appointment of Deputy EROs, known as Deputes in Scotland.

Review hearings

10.57 Unlike the hearing of an application or objection, which must not be held earlier than the third working day or later than the seventh working day after the issue of the notice of hearing, there is no upper time limit on the conduct of a review hearing. The only requirement is that at least three working days need to elapse from the issue of the notice of hearing before it can be held.

10.58 Any person entitled to attend may do so in person, or alternatively they may make a written representation or have someone else attend on their behalf.

10.59 You may require that evidence be given on oath (or affirmation in Scotland), either because a person entitled to appear requests it, or because you think it is desirable. While you may administer the oath yourself, you should seek advice from your legal team to ensure that the oath is in the correct form and that the appropriate religious and non-religious options are available.

10.60 If the person tells you they cannot attend a hearing on the date you have specified, you should attempt to rearrange the hearing if possible within the period allowed.

10.61 If the subject of a hearing fails to appear, you may still determine that the subject of the review was not entitled or has ceased to be entitled to be registered. In making a determination, you must take into account any written representations from the subject of the review and other interested parties.

10.62 Once you have made a determination, you must notify the elector of the outcome of the review and state whether there is a right of appeal, including.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- the time within which notice of appeal must be given (see paragraph 10.64)
- any other information about the appeal that you consider appropriate

10.63 Hearings are quasi-judicial proceedings and should only be undertaken by the ERO or an appointed Deputy ERO.

Chapter 2 of Part 2: 'Registration framework' contains information on the appointment of Deputy EROs, known as Deputes in Scotland.

Appeals

10.64 Where you make a determination at any hearing, the applicant, objector or elector has the right to appeal by submitting to you a notice of appeal. They have 14 calendar days beginning from the date of the decision to request an appeal. The process for making an appeal should be made clear to anyone attending the hearing.

10.65 Where the applicant, elector or objector has failed to attend the hearing, you should write to them to inform them of the outcome and include details of their right of appeal.

10.66 The notice of appeal must be submitted to you and any other relevant party, together with the grounds of appeal. You must then forward the notice to the county court, or in Scotland to the sheriff, which should be accompanied by:

- a statement of the material facts which, in your opinion, have been established in the case
- your decision on the whole case and on any point specified as a ground of appeal

10.67 Should you consider that any appeals are based on similar grounds, you must inform the appropriate county court, or the sheriff in Scotland, of this to enable the court or sheriff to consolidate the cases or select one as a test case.

10.68 Anonymous registration appeals, which can only arise from reviews or the original application, will need to be heard in private unless the court decides otherwise.

In Scotland, a registration appeal in relation to a person under 16 years old, following a hearing, will need to be heard in private unless the court decides otherwise.
11 Publication of notices of alteration and revisions to the register

Describing the full and edited registers

The terms ‘full register’ and ‘edited register’ are the technical terms used in the legislation. The terms ‘electoral register’ and ‘open register’ must be used to describe the full and edited register to members of the public, to make it easier to understand the purpose of each register and how it is used. In specific instances where we mention the edited register in the guidance in this context, we refer to the edited register as the ‘open register’. Otherwise we use the term ‘edited register’.

Publication of the full register

11.1 You may revise the register at any time if necessary. This could be, for example, following a review of local government boundaries or in order to implement a review of polling districts and places made by the local authority. If you decide to revise your register in this way you must publish a notice of your intention to publish a revised register 14 calendar days before the publication date.317

11.2 Your revised register must incorporate all the amendments to the register as a result of the successful applications which have met the deadline for inclusion and those you retain on the register. You should also give effect to any deletions that you have determined since the publication of the last notice of alteration and in time to be reflected in the revised register.318 Names on HEFs or from other data sources must not be included on the register unless an application for registration is successfully made and determined by you by the determination deadline for that register.

In Scotland, the local government register will include 16 and 17 year olds as full electors. Additionally, 15 year olds and some 14 year olds are entitled to be included on the local government register as ‘attainers’. For the purposes of the local government register in Scotland, an attainer is someone who turns 16 by the end of the twelve months following the 1 December after the ‘relevant date’ (see paragraph 4.12).

The combined register will therefore need to make clear the date on which those
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Included on it that are under 18 years of age will become 18 years old in order to clearly show their eligibility to vote in different elections.

No information on those aged under 16 must be included on any version of the register published or otherwise made available, except in very limited circumstances. For further information on access and supply of the register, see Chapter 12.

Part 3: Annual Canvass contains guidance on publishing the revised register to be published by 1 December 2018.

Monthly alteration notices to the full register

11.3 You must publish monthly notices of alteration on the first working day of every month, except that you may not issue a monthly notice of alteration in the month you are publishing the revised register and in the two months before that day.

11.4 The updates must account for any additions, deletions and amendments which are due to be made to the register.

11.5 We have published a document showing when monthly updates must be published, including when applications must be made and when they must be determined by you for inclusion in a particular monthly update. You should note that names added to HEF forms or identified through a data source do not constitute an application and must not be included on the register unless an application for registration is successfully made and determined by you by the determination deadline for that register.

In Scotland, no information on those aged under 16 must be included on any version of the register published or otherwise made available, except in very limited circumstances. For further information on access and supply of the register, see Chapter 12.

Updates to the edited register

11.6 An elector’s name and address will be included in the edited register unless they ask for them to be removed.
In Scotland, a person under 16 years old is automatically opted out of the edited register. The details of any person under 16 years old must not be included in any version of the published register, including the edited register.

11.7 You must use the prescribed wording set out in regulations to explain the difference between the electoral register and the open register to electors. There are two versions of form of words prescribed in legislation which must be used by you to explain the purposes for which the full and edited register may be used—the short version must be used on all registration application forms and the pre-printed HEF (and applications made by telephone or in person), and the longer version should be used by you in all other circumstances when describing both versions of the electoral register. \(^x_{xiv}\)

Publishing the edited register

11.8 You must publish a revised version of the edited register on the first working day of every month. This duty applies all year, including during the canvass period.\(^{321}\) This means that you must publish the edited register in the month you are publishing the revised register and in the two months before that day. It must take account of any alterations to the full register, and any notification that a person contained on the register wishes to opt in or opt out.\(^{322}\)

11.9 Unlike notices of alteration to the full register, you are required to publish a fully integrated updated version of the register rather than simply a notice setting out the changes. However, you do not have to print a full edited register every month, only if you are producing one for somebody who has requested it.\(^{323}\)

In Scotland, a person under 16 years old is automatically opted out of the edited register. The details of any person under 16 years old must not be included in any version of the published register, including the edited register.

Process for changing opt-out preferences

11.10 An elector who wishes to change their opt-out preference can do so at any time by making a request to you with their full name, address and an indication of whether they wish to be included in or omitted from the edited register.\(^{324}\) This request may be made verbally or in writing. Where this information is provided verbally, you should make a written note of this for your records.

---

\(^x_{xiv}\) The form of words can be found in Schedule 3 of the following regulations:
http://www.legislation.gov.uk/uksi/2013/3198/contents/made (England and Wales);
http://www.legislation.gov.uk/uksi/2013/3206/contents/made (Scotland)
11.11 When you receive a request for a change to an edited register preference you are not required to confirm the request in writing but may do so if you wish. For example, where a request to change edited register preference is made in person or by telephone, you can confirm the change verbally. However, where a request is made in writing, this is not possible. As the request was in writing, you could confirm in writing that the change has been made. If confirming a change, you should notify the elector when a revised version of the edited register reflecting the request will be published, and how to contact you if the information in the notice is not correct.\(^{325}\)

11.12 While a request to opt in or opt out of the edited register can be made at any time, it must be received 14 calendar days before publication to be included in the next update.\(^ {326}\)

Changing opt-out preference during the canvass

11.13 During the canvass period, you can only include or remove an elector from the edited register if they are already an existing elector included on the full register or on any alternation notice.\(^ {327}\) This means that in the months when the publication of alterations to the full register is suspended, the revised edited register must not include the details of any new electors whose details have yet to be added to the full register. Any requests from existing electors to change their opt-out status, however, will need to be reflected.

Article 21 requests

11.14 Under data protection legislation electors have the right to require you to exclude them from the edited register on a permanent basis (or until further notice). Article 21 of the EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) gives individuals a right to object to processing for direct marketing purposes and you are under a legal duty to comply with a valid request.

11.15 The request has to come from the elector themselves. An elector cannot make the request on behalf of another person.

11.16 If you receive a request from a third party, such as a friend, family member or company alleging to be acting on the elector’s behalf, the request should not be treated as a valid request under Article 21 unless you are satisfied that the elector has authorised the third party to make an Article 21 request on their behalf.

11.17 If you are not satisfied, you should contact the third party and ask them to provide evidence that they have authorisation from the elector to make a request under Article 21 on their behalf. If this is not provided, you should make enquiries of the elector in question and should obtain the elector’s confirmation of authorisation. Only once you are satisfied that the elector has authorised the third party to send the Article 21 notice can you treat the Article 21 notice request as valid.
11.18 If you receive such a request you should treat it as a request to opt out of the edited register.

Specific provisions apply to HEFs issued during the canvass. Further guidance on Article 21 requests made via HEFs is provided in Part 3: Annual Canvass.

Election notices of alteration

Interim election notices of alteration

11.19 Where an election is taking place, there is a requirement to publish two interim election notices of alteration:

- one must be published on the last day on which nomination papers may be delivered to the Returning Officer for the purposes of the election
- the other must be published on a date to be determined by you, but this must be a day after the first interim publication date and before the publication date of the final election notice of alteration

11.20 As with all notices of alteration, you are required to provide these updates to those who are entitled by law to receive them. For election notices, it is likely that candidates and agents will be seeking these updates as quickly as possible, and so you should ensure these are provided promptly.

11.21 The following determination and application deadlines apply:

Chapter 12: Access and supply contains guidance on access to and supply of the register.

11.22 Election notices of alteration only apply to the specific register (e.g. the local government register, or parliamentary register) for the pending election, and only make or remove entries in respect of an address in the electoral area.
affected by the election. This means that if, for example, a local government election only relates to part of the registration area, the interim election notices will only give effect to determinations made by the required deadlines for the election in that area, and will only apply those changes to, in this case, the local government register. Determinations that relate to the parliamentary register, or those made outside the area affected by the election, will be given effect on the next monthly notice of alteration or on publication of the revised register, whichever is sooner.

Final election notice of alteration

11.23 The deadline for anyone to make an application in time to appear on the final election notice of alteration is midnight, 12 working days before the poll.

11.24 As set out in Chapter 4: Applications, an application is not made until you have received all of the required information. This also includes any applications to amend existing register entries. The only exceptions to this are anonymous registration applications, which can be received up to six working days before the poll as they are not subject to the five-day objection period.

11.25 You must publish a final notice of alteration on the fifth working day before the day of the poll. You will need to have arrangements in place so that you know whether or not an application has arrived by the deadline.

11.26 The following table sets out the timetable for applications and determinations to be made in time for inclusion on the final election notice of alteration:

Part 3: Annual Canvass details the application and determination deadlines that apply to the publication of the revised register following the 2018 canvass.

Clerical errors

11.28 You may determine that the register contains a clerical error at any time and may correct it. You can correct all clerical errors made by you and your staff, for example, errors when transcribing information from an application or where you have failed to add a successful applicant to the register due to a clerical processing error.334

11.29 Any clerical errors should be rectified as soon as they have come to your attention and reflected in the next register update. If a clerical error has been identified after the publication of the last notice of alteration before an election, you can correct the error up until 9pm on polling day.335 The determination must have been made by 9pm on polling day for it to take effect in time for the election. The details must be transmitted to the Presiding Officer for the appropriate polling station in whatever manner you have previously agreed with the Returning Officer for the election.336

Further information on clerical errors is contained in our guidance for Returning Officers.
12 Access and supply

12.1 Access to and supply of the electoral register, any notice of alteration and the list of overseas electors is subject to certain restrictions. This section explains how you must allow access to and supply of the documents you maintain, and what restrictions apply. It also sets out the different provisions that apply in respect of the edited register and the marked register.

12.2 You should maintain records of every person and organisation supplied with the register, whether on publication, by sale, or on request, to demonstrate that you are complying with the principles of processing personal data, ensuring that it is processed lawfully, fairly and in a transparent manner.

Public inspection of the full register

12.3 You must make the full register available for public inspection. You must ensure that:

- Any inspection takes place under supervision, either by you or someone else.
- There is provision for inspection at your office. Additionally, at your discretion, you may make provision at one or more places elsewhere in your area if there are reasonable facilities for this.

12.4 The legislation does not prescribe the level and nature of supervision of those who inspect the register. You should, however, satisfy yourself that the supervision is sufficient to prevent, as far as possible, unauthorised copying or theft of all or any part of the register. You should provide training or guidance notes to those staff who will be supervising the register.

12.5 Handwritten notes may be made by those inspecting the full register. Any other copying or recording is not permitted, and is a criminal offence.

12.6 Registers may be made available for inspection in paper and/or electronic form. You must take appropriate steps to ensure the security of the register if you make the register available for inspection electronically. In particular, you will need to ensure that any person inspecting the register is prevented from downloading, transmitting electronically or printing this information or copying it by any other means. Any search facility should be by address only and not by name, as this is specifically prohibited. Whether paper or electronic records are provided, any photographing or similar recording of the register, including by mobile phone, is also prohibited.
12.7 A person inspecting the register is not permitted to use it for direct marketing. You could ask those inspecting the register to give their name and address and to sign a disclaimer stating that they understand the legal restrictions, and that breaching them would be an offence. If a person inspecting the register subsequently breaches those restrictions, you will have a demonstrable audit trail showing inspection was undertaken in accordance with electoral law.

12.8 You may allow library or other council staff to provide inspection facilities, provided that you are confident that they can offer an appropriate level of supervision. Ensuring the appropriate level of supervision may be achieved by, for example, sending a copy of the legislation and any relevant guidance to the responsible person and obtaining a signed letter or email stating that the requirements will be followed. You should ensure that the supervision continues to be sufficient, and you should undertake regular checks. You may want to consider obtaining a signed undertaking annually from any person outside of your office who is responsible for supervision of inspection.

12.9 If you have any concerns that steps are not being taken to avoid a breach of the regulations, you may wish to take legal advice. You should remove the copies of the register from any place where you are not satisfied that the supervision arrangements are sufficient.

We have produced a cover sheet for the inspection of the register which sets out how it may be used and the penalty for misuse.

In Scotland, beyond the limited circumstances set out in the break-out box under paragraph 12.14, no information on those aged under 16 must be included on any version of the register published or otherwise made available.

Supplying copies of the full register and associated documents to specified individuals and organisations

12.10 This section covers the supply of the full register, and, depending on the potential recipient, supply of the list of overseas electors and/or any notice of alteration.

12.11 Supply of copies of the full register and the associated documents is limited to those individuals and organisations prescribed in the legislation.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Some of those are entitled to free copies without application. Some are entitled to free copies only on application to you. Others are entitled to copies on payment of a prescribed fee. In all cases, before supplying the register you need to be satisfied that the individual or organisation making the request is entitled to receive it.

We have published a list, for reference, of those entitled to receive the register and associated documents. This includes who is entitled to receive these documents, on what basis and in what format, and includes contact details where relevant. This list is available on our website.

12.12 Only a body or organisation which is allowed by an enactment to access the electoral register may be supplied with a copy if they are not specifically listed in electoral legislation. You should consider the enactment quoted by the applicant and, if you are satisfied that the enactment gives them access to the full register, supply it. An example of an enactment could be the Council Tax (Administration and Enforcement) Regulations 1992, Regulation 4 of which allows a billing authority to obtain name and address (including past address) information from an ERO.

12.13 There are restrictions on the recipients’ use of copies of the full register. For example, it is not permissible to share copies of the full register with other employees (including if you are employed by a council), unless those employees fall within one of the permitted recipients. See paragraph 12.36 below for further information on restrictions of use.

12.14 Given that the register contains personal data you should take measures to ensure security of the register in transit. This is addressed in paragraphs 12.54 to 12.57. You should also include information when supplying the register setting out how it may be used, the penalty for misuse, and that the data should be securely destroyed once the purpose for which it has been supplied has finished.

We have produced cover sheets for the sale and the supply on request of the electoral register, which set out how it may be used, the penalty for misuse, and that the data should be securely destroyed once the purpose for which it has been supplied has finished.

In Scotland, only EROs and their staff will have access to and be able to make use of data relating to those under 16 years of age, and no version of the register or any absent voting lists published or otherwise made available should contain that data. However, the data may be disclosed:

- to the individual themselves (including to demonstrate that they are a permissible donor, in which case the data must be disclosed) or to a person they have appointed as proxy to vote for them

- for the purposes of a criminal investigation or criminal proceedings relating to the registration of electors or the conduct of elections
- in a pre-printed HEF sent to a household for the annual canvass, although the date of birth of any person aged under 16 years old must not be pre-printed
- to EROs and Returning Officers in connection with the registration of electors or the conduct of elections

The only other exception is that before a Scottish Parliamentary or local government election, the information on those under 16 years of age who will be eligible to vote at the election (i.e. will attain the age of 16 on or before polling day), can, for the purposes of or in connection with the election, be disclosed in the electoral register, postal voters list, list of proxies and list of postal proxies, that is supplied to:

- candidates at Scottish Parliamentary and local government elections for electoral purposes or to comply with the rules on political donations
- the Returning Officer for the purposes of Scottish Parliamentary or local government elections
- the Electoral Commission. In this case, the Commission is only allowed to use the information in connection with its functions relating to donation controls and publication of information about donors, but the latter does not enable publication of the names and addresses of those under 16 years old. In practice, this will apply to Scottish Parliamentary elections only
- a local authority Returning Officer for the purposes of an election to a National Park authority. In this case, the information can only be used for the purposes of a National Park authority election
- The information supplied before an election must not contain dates of birth, or anything else that would identify a voter as under 16 years old

No other individuals or bodies may be supplied with any information relating to those aged under 16 years old.

Timely supply of the register

12.15 The timing of receipt of the register is particularly important to some recipients – for example, political parties need the electoral register to fulfil their statutory obligations in relation to the checking of donations, in addition to using it for campaigning purposes. It is important that the register is supplied promptly and you should, therefore, supply the register to anyone who is entitled to receive it on publication as soon as possible and in any case, within 5 working days.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

To be able to meet the outcomes set out in Performance standard 2, you will need to ensure timely supply of the register to those entitled to receive it. To demonstrate how the outcomes have been met, you will need to set out the date[s] the register was supplied, along with the dates[s] it was requested, for those entitled to receive the register on request.

Free supply without application

12.16 You must automatically send a copy of the published full register, and any associated documents, to certain individuals and organisations entitled to be supplied with the register on publication.\textsuperscript{345}

We have published a list, for reference, of those entitled to receive the register and associated documents on publication. This list is available on our website.

In Scotland, beyond the limited circumstances set out in the break-out box under paragraph 12.14, no information on those aged under 16 must be included on any version of the register published or otherwise made available.

Free supply only on application

12.17 Regulation 102 of the Representation of the People (England and Wales) Regulations 2001 provides that persons or organisations falling within Regulations 103 to 109, which include a councillor, party or candidate, may request the ERO to supply a free copy of the relevant parts of the full register, any notice setting out an alteration to the register and a list of overseas electors, on application. There is equivalent legislation in Scotland in the Representation of the People (Scotland) Regulations 2001, specifically Regulations 101 and 102 to 108.

We have published a list, for reference, of those entitled to receive the register and associated documents on request. This list is available on our website.

12.18 Any application must be made in writing and must specify:\textsuperscript{346}

- the document that is requested
- whether the request is made for current documents only or whether it includes a request for the supply of any subsequent documents, such as notices of alteration (although the option of receiving subsequent documents does not apply to candidates requesting the documents for electoral purposes, so they will not need to include this)\textsuperscript{347}, and
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- whether a printed copy of any of the documents is requested instead of the version in data form

12.19 The relevant part of the full register must be supplied on receipt of a valid request. There is no limit on the numbers of requests that can be made. This means that the right to request the register could potentially be exercised more than once, with each request being a valid request that the ERO must comply with. A further copy of the revised register, together with any subsequent notices of alteration, may therefore be supplied to, for example, a councillor, party or candidate who has already been supplied with a copy if they make a further request.

We have produced a cover sheet for the supply of the electoral register on request which sets out how the register may be used, the penalty for misuse, and that the data should be securely destroyed once the purpose for which it has been supplied has finished.

In Scotland, beyond the limited circumstances set out in the break-out box under paragraph 12.14, no information on those aged under 16 must be included on any version of the register published or otherwise made available.

Access to the full register by third parties

12.20 There is no distinction made in law between political parties and third parties when it comes to accessing the full register and the purpose for which the information can be used. A third party that meets all the criteria for being registered as a third party will be registered by the Commission and will then be entitled on request to a copy of the following, which they can then use only for prescribed purposes:

- the full register
- any notice setting out an alteration to the register
- a list of overseas electors
- the current absent voters list
- the final absent voters list for a particular election

12.21 If a valid request is made for any of this information it must be supplied unless the ERO has reason to believe that the person requesting the information is not asking for it on behalf of the registered third party. You can find the full list of third parties registered with us on our PEF Online website.

12.22 A request for a copy of the full register by a third party must be made in writing to the ERO. It must state whether the request is for the current version of the full register or whether it includes requests for the supply of any subsequent notices of alteration. Where a printed copy is required, the requester must specify this too. Where it is not clear from the written request whether the request is for the current version of the register or if it includes any updates, the ERO should contact the requester and ask for clarification. Similarly, if there are any questions about whether the request has actually come from the registered third party (for example, if the third party name used in the request does not exactly match the name that appears on PEF Online), you should not supply the register until you have asked the requester for clarification and are satisfied that they are requesting the register on behalf of the third party.

12.23 There are strict legal restrictions on the use of the register and it can only be used by registered third parties for electoral purposes and the control of donations. As with anyone requesting a copy of the register, you should point out to them the restrictions on the use of the information contained in it, as well as the potential penalties for misuse. Any person found breaching the restrictions on the use of the electoral register could face an unlimited fine in England and Wales or a fine of up to £5,000 in Scotland.

We have produced a cover sheet for the supply of the electoral register on request which sets out how the register may be used, the penalty for misuse, and that the data should be securely destroyed once the purpose for which it has been supplied has finished.

Supply by sale

12.24 Specified organisations are entitled to a copy of the full register, any notice of alteration, and the list of overseas of electors, on payment of the relevant prescribed fee (unless that organisation is entitled to a copy free of charge, as set out above).

Fees

12.25 The relevant prescribed fees are:

- For sale of the full register and the notices of alteration:
  - in data format, £20 plus £1.50 for each 1,000 entries (or remaining part of 1,000 entries) in it
  - in printed format, £10 plus £5 for each 1,000 entries (or remaining part of 1,000 entries) in it

- For sale of the list of overseas electors:
  - in data format, £20 plus £1.50 for each 100 entries (or remaining part of 100 entries) in it
  - in printed format, £10 plus £5 for each 100 entries (or remaining part of 100 entries) in it

12.26 The £20 charge for a data copy or the £10 charge for a paper copy applies to the whole of each register that the ERO maintains and the legislation does not permit EROs to calculate the fees separately in relation to polling districts covered by the register. So, for example, if you maintain the registers for two parliamentary constituencies, the £20 charge applies separately to the register for each constituency.

12.27 The legislation does not permit the charging of any other administration or ancillary fees.

12.28 The register must be supplied on receipt of a valid request, with the obligation to supply arising at the point at which the ERO is satisfied that the applicant is entitled to receive the register. Failure to supply the electoral register when required may have an impact on individual electors as the information is used by credit reference agencies for vetting applications for credit.

Charges for monthly notices of alteration

12.29 The same principle applies to each notice of alteration.

12.30 If a request is received to buy a full register and any notices of alteration which alter that register and which have been published before the request is received, the register and notices are treated as the same document for the purposes of the fee calculation. This means that the £20 fee covers the full register and all the requested notices of alteration that have already been published.

12.31 Where a request is received which includes any notices of alteration that are due to be published after the request is received, the £20 fee will also be applied to each subsequent notice of alteration that is requested.

Recording sales of the register

12.32 You should keep a record of the transactions of sales of the register so that the revenue gained, alongside the number of registers sold, can be made available for public scrutiny if so required. You should redact any personal information when the record is made available for public scrutiny.

Use of ‘Z’ markers

12.33 All copies of the full register that have been sold must have the letter ‘Z’ placed against the name of any person whose name is not included in the edited version of the register that is published at that time.355

We have produced a cover sheet for the sale of the electoral register which sets out how the register may be used, the penalty for misuse, and that the data should be securely destroyed once the purpose for which it has been supplied has finished.
In Scotland, beyond the limited circumstances set out in the break-out box under paragraph 12.14, no information on those aged under 16 must be included on any version of the register published or otherwise made available.

Inspection and supply of the edited register

Inspection of the edited register

12.34 The edited register must be made available for public inspection. Unlike inspection of the full register, no supervision is required. The copy must be made available at your office, and in addition by any other means as you see fit.

Supply of the edited register

12.35 The edited register can be sold to anyone requesting it on payment of the prescribed fee. The fees for sale of the edited register are:

- in data format, £20 plus £1.50 for each 1,000 entries (or remaining part of 1,000 entries) in it
- in printed format, £10 plus £5 for each 1,000 entries (or remaining part of 1,000 entries) in it

In Scotland, a person under 16 years old is automatically opted out of the edited register. The details of any person under 16 years old must not be included in any version of the published register, including the edited register.

Restrictions on use of the full register

12.36 There are restrictions on the use of the information contained in the full register. For example, a councillor or employee of the council (excluding a parish or community council, see paragraph 12.37 below) who has a copy of the full register may only supply a copy of it, or disclose or make use of information contained in it that is not contained in the edited register for.

xv Elected representatives are also entitled to be supplied with the electoral register, for electoral purposes, for the area that they represent (Regulation 103, 2001 Regulations, Regulation 102 RPR (Scotland) 2001).
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- the discharge of a statutory function of the council or any other local authority relating to security, law enforcement and crime prevention. In Scotland, the words ‘other local authority’ do not apply.
- statistical purposes (without disclosing the name and address of any elector, whether that elector appears in the edited register or not)
- the purposes of a local poll under s116 of the Local Government Act 2003 (excluding Scotland)
- a local referendum (Scotland only)

12.37 A parish or community councillor\textsuperscript{xv}, or a person employed or otherwise assisting a parish or community council who has a copy of the full register may only supply a copy of it, or disclose or make use of information contained in it that is not contained in the edited register for:\textsuperscript{359}

- The purpose of establishing whether a person is entitled to attend or participate in a meeting of the parish or community council
- The purpose of establishing whether a person is entitled to take action on behalf of the parish or community council (excluding Scotland)
- the purposes of a local poll under s116 of the Local Government Act 2003 (excluding Scotland)
- electoral purposes in relation to that council (Scotland only)

12.38 Government departments are restricted in the way that they may use the register. They may not supply or sell on a copy unless the recipient could obtain a free copy under the regulations.

12.39 Government departments must only use the register for:\textsuperscript{360}

- in England and Wales, the prevention and detection of crime and the enforcement of the criminal law (whether in England or Wales or elsewhere)
- in Scotland, the administration of justice, the prevention and detection of crime and the enforcement of the criminal law (whether in Scotland or elsewhere)
- the vetting of employees and applicants for employment where such vetting is required pursuant to any enactment
- the vetting of any person where such vetting is for the purpose of safeguarding national security, or
- supply and disclosure as defined by the regulations

12.40 Credit reference agencies must only use the registers for:\textsuperscript{361}

- vetting applications for credit or applications that can result in the giving of credit or the giving of any guarantee, indemnity or assurance in relation to the giving of credit
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

- meeting any obligations contained in the Money Laundering Regulations 2007 or any rules made pursuant to Section 137A of the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000, and
- statistical analysis of credit risk assessment in a case where no person whose details are included in the full register is referred to by name or necessary implication

In Scotland, beyond the limited circumstances set out in the break-out box under paragraph 12.14, no information on those aged under 16 must be included on any version of the register published or otherwise made available.

Inspection and supply of the marked register – England and Wales only 12.41 This section of the guidance is not relevant to EROs in Scotland. Although similar provisions for access to the marked register apply at some elections in Scotland, the responsibility for administering such access rests with the Returning Officer, not the ERO.

Inspection of marked registers and marked absent voter lists

12.42 Any person may inspect the marked register and any notices amending it, plus the marked copies of the postal voters list, the list of proxies, and the proxy postal voters lists, and such other documents relating to an election as you are required to retain, except ballot papers, completed corresponding number lists, certificates as to employment on the day of the election, and the list of ballot papers rejected under the verification procedure. Any person wanting to inspect such documents must apply in writing and must state:

- which register or document they wish to inspect
- whether they wish to inspect a printed or data copy (where appropriate)
- the purposes for which any information will be used
- where the request concerns the marked register or lists, why inspection of the full register or unmarked lists would not be sufficient to achieve the purpose
- who will be inspecting the documents, and
- the date on which they wish to make the inspection

12.43 You may refuse to allow inspection of these documents if you are not satisfied that the purposes of the requestor cannot be met by inspection of the full register, in which case you must inform the requestor of this decision and provide information concerning the availability of the full register for inspection.\textsuperscript{365} Otherwise, the documents must be made available within 10 days of receipt of the application. You must arrange for them to be inspected under supervision.\textsuperscript{366} Inspection can take place anywhere you choose.

12.44 Those inspecting the documents can make copies of the registers and lists using handwritten notes only.\textsuperscript{367}

12.45 The same safeguards apply regarding the supervision and protection of the information as apply with the inspection of the full register, as set out in paragraphs 12.3 to 12.5.

12.46 The Security Service, Government Communications Headquarters, and Secret Intelligence Service are entitled to a free copy of any of these documents on request, and the police (including the National Crime Agency) are entitled to free copies of any of these documents on request if they have inspected them.\textsuperscript{368}

Supply of the marked register and marked absent voting lists

12.47 Relevant parts of the marked copy of the register of electors and any notices amending it, plus the marked copies of the postal voter list, the list of proxies, and the proxy postal voters lists, all must, if requested, be supplied to specified persons on payment of a prescribed fee.\textsuperscript{369}

12.48 The request must be made in writing and must specify:\textsuperscript{370}

- which of the marked register or lists (or relevant parts of them) are requested;
- whether printed or data copies are requested; and
- the purpose for which the data will be used and why the supply of the full data would not be sufficient to achieve that purpose.

12.49 The cost of a marked document is prescribed. The charge for data copies is £10 plus £1 per 1,000 entries or part thereof, and for printed copies it is £10 plus £2 per 1,000 entries or part thereof.\textsuperscript{371}

12.50 You must supply copies if requested provided the relevant fee is paid and you are satisfied that the requestor needs to see the marks on the marked register or lists in order to achieve the purpose for which it is requested.\textsuperscript{372} When the marked register is supplied, you should remind the recipient that the data should be securely destroyed once the purpose for which it has been supplied has finished.
Old copies of the full register

12.51 You should keep old copies of the full register and the overseas list for 15 years in case checks are needed, particularly in the context of checking overseas voter applications.

12.52 You should not, however, allow access to a register or other documents other than the current versions.

12.53 Local authority libraries and archives services, the British Library, the National Libraries of Scotland and Wales, and the Statistics Board holding copies of the full register (and the other associated information) may allow inspection and supply of older versions. You could therefore refer inquiries for older versions to any of these bodies.

Security of data in transit

12.54 Due to the nature of the information contained within the register, proper caution should be exercised when sending this data to any of the entitled recipients.

12.55 While you should seek your own advice regarding the most appropriate and secure method of supplying the register to recipients, general security precautions, should include as minimum:

- saving electronic copies of the register, either sent by email or saved to disk, in a password-protected or encrypted format with the relevant password or encryption key being sent in a separate communication
- using secure delivery options provided by Royal Mail and other mail delivery service providers
- maintaining records of what has been sent, the recipient’s details, and how it was sent.

12.57 Where you have used data encryption, you will need to ensure that any recipient can access the data.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Data protection

EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and Data Protection Act 2018

12.58 Data protection legislation gives individuals the right to know what information is held about them and provides a framework to ensure that personal information is handled properly and in accordance with data protection principles. For EROs this includes ensuring that the collection, handling and supply of data comply with electoral legislation and with the principles of processing personal data, ensuring that personal data is processed lawfully, fairly and in a transparent manner.

12.59 You should keep a list of all those organisations and individuals to whom copies of the register are supplied, and make this list publicly available. This will ensure an audit trail is maintained, and that any request for those details can be complied with easily.

Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 provides guidance in relation to your role as data controller.

12.60 All issues relating to the data protection aspects of using registration data should be directed to the Information Commissioner’s Office:

Disclosure of registration applications and associated data

12.61 Applications for registration (other than anonymous registration applications) and any objections to applications are available for inspection from the point at which they are made until they are determined. After that point, such documents may not be inspected. Applications for absent votes may not be inspected at any time.

In Scotland, an application by a person under 16 years old must not be entered in the list of applications available for public inspection.

Requests for other data

12.62 You may receive other requests for data you hold, which is not covered by any particular duty to disclose or to withhold.

12.63 An example is information sought by police or other investigating or prosecuting authorities in connection with any criminal investigations. For example, the appointing local authority may request copies of canvass forms and registration application forms in connection with fraud investigations.

12.64 Although there is no right or duty of disclosure, you may supply such data if you feel that it is appropriate and are satisfied that to do so is in compliance with data protection legislation.

12.65 Where you are not satisfied, any such body would need to obtain a court order for its supply.

Subject access requests

12.66 Data protection legislation provides that a person may make a subject access request to see personal information that is held about them. No charge can be made for fulfilling a subject access request unless the request can be deemed excessive or repetitive. Subsequent copies may be charged for, but the charge must be “reasonable” and “based on administrative costs”.

12.67 There is no requirement for the request to be made in writing. You must, however, be satisfied of the requesters’ identity before fulfilling the request. Information requested by data subjects must be provided without delay and in any event within one month (although it can be extended to two months in certain conditions).

12.68 For example, where an elector requests a letter confirming their residency, known as a “certificate of registration”, this should be treated as a subject access request. In the majority of instances, providing confirmation of a data subject’s entry on the register via a certificate of registration will not meet the test of being excessive or repetitive, and therefore no charge should be made.

Part 5: ‘Absent voting’ and our FAQs for postal vote rejection notices, contains guidance on subject access requests in relation to postal voting statements. Our resource on the EU General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018 also contains guidance on subject access requests.

Access requests for crime prevention

12.69 Schedule 2 of the DPA 2018 provided an exemption to data processing rules for the purposes of the prevention or detection of crime, or the apprehension or prosecution of offenders. Therefore, where you receive a request for information that you hold you will need to consider:

- the person or organisation making the request,
- the purpose of the request, and
- the enactment quoted requesting access

12.70 If satisfied that the request meets the purpose detailed above then you should supply the data.

12.71 It should be noted that Regulation 107 (Regulation 106 in Scotland) of the RPR 2001 provides for the ERO to supply the full register to the council that appointed them. As set out in paragraph 12.36, an employee or councillor of that council may, disclose or make use of information contained in it, where necessary for the discharge of a statutory function of the council (or, in England and Wales, any other local authority) relating to security, law enforcement and crime prevention. If the request relates to the council’s copy of the register, you should direct this to your council’s Monitoring Officer.
Freedom of Information

12.72 EROs are not a public authority under the Freedom of Information (FOI) Act 2000 and, as such, are exempt from the disclosure requirements imposed by it.

However, where possible, EROs should disclose the requested information, provided this information is already in the public domain, or the information requested does not include personal data. An example of non-personal data would be statistical data providing the total number of electors registered in your area.
APPENDIX 1 - APPENDIX TO MINISTERIAL GUIDANCE:
INFORMATION ON LEGISLATION

1. Interpretation of verification DWP data match results
Schedule 2 to the Representation of the People Act 1983 (as amended by the Electoral Registration and Administration Act 2013) states:

1 (2A) Provision made under sub-paragraph (2) authorising or requiring a registration officer in Great Britain to—
   (a) require a person who has made an application under section 10ZC or 10ZD to provide evidence that he or she is the person named in the application, or
   (b) require a person who has made an application under section 10ZC or 10ZD, or any person who has an entry in a register, to provide evidence for the purpose of enabling the officer to determine whether a person is entitled to be registered in a register maintained by the officer, must specify the kind of evidence that a person may be required to provide (for examples, see paragraph 3ZA (5)).

(2B) Provision of the kind mentioned in sub-paragraph (2A) may authorise or require the registration officer to require a person to provide the evidence to a registration officer or to some other prescribed person (or person of a prescribed description).

This means that someone who wants to register to vote must supply evidence of their identity to the ERO or a person appointed by them to receive such information (Electoral Services staff for example).

The Representation of the People Regulations 2001 for both England and Wales and Scotland set out the process for establishing the identity of new applicants:

29ZA.—
(1) On receipt of an application under section 10ZC or 10ZD of the 1983 Act made otherwise than through the digital service, a registration officer must disclose name or names, date of birth and national insurance number given under regulation 26 or 26A to the Minister for the Cabinet Office in such a format and through such a conduit system as the Minister for the Cabinet Office may have notified to the registration officer in writing.

(2) Following receipt of the information from the registration officer or (in the case of an application made through the digital service) from the applicant, the Minister for the Cabinet Office may disclose the information to the Secretary of
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

(3) Where information has been disclosed to the Secretary of State under paragraph (2), the Secretary of State may compare it against—

(a) the name, date of birth and national insurance number of individuals appearing in the following types of databases kept by the Secretary of State—

(i) databases kept for the purposes of functions relating to social security (including such information kept on behalf of the Department for Social Development); and

(ii) databases relating to working tax credit, child tax credit and child benefit (being information kept on behalf of Her Majesty’s Revenue and Customs); and

(b) any other information contained in those databases which relates to the information disclosed under paragraph (2).

(4) The Secretary of State may disclose the results of the comparison to the Minister for the Cabinet Office.

(5) On receipt of such results, the Minister for the Cabinet Office may disclose them to the registration officer in whose register the applicant has applied to be registered.

(6) Where the Minister for the Cabinet Office does so, the registration officer must take the results into account in determining the application.

Paragraphs (1) and (2) outline the process of passing an applicant’s data from an ERO, to the IER Digital Service and on to DWP and which items of data collected on the application must be sent.

Paragraph (3) defines which databases DWP are allowed to match the applicant’s data against. Paragraphs (4) and (5) describe the process of returning the match results to the ERO.

Paragraph (6) requires the ERO to use the results of the data match when determining an application.

2. Using local data to establish identity with red and green matches

The amended Representation of the People Regulations 2001 (for both England and Wales and Scotland) states that:
Registration officer’s right to inspect certain records

35.—
(1) A registration officer is authorised to inspect, for the purpose of his registration duties, records kept (in whatever form) by—
   (a) an authority listed in paragraph (2) below, or
   (b) any person providing services to, or authorised to exercise any function of, any such authority.

(2) Those authorities are—
   (a) the council by which he was appointed; and
   (aa) where the council by which he was appointed is a council for a district in a county for which there is a county council, that county council; and
   (b) any superintendent registrar of births, deaths and marriages, registrar of births and deaths or registrar of marriages.

(3) A registration officer is authorised to make copies of information contained in such records.

Regulation 35 of the Representation of the People Regulations 2001 (for both England and Wales, and Scotland) sets out the local data sources an ERO is allowed to use when making a determination. This is limited to any data held by the authority which appointed the ERO and any superintendent registrar of births, deaths, and marriages, any registrar of births and deaths or any registrar of marriages (N.B. The latter is not limited to registrars within the ERO’s Local Authority area). The ERO is also allowed to inspect any data held by private contractors or arms length organisations that provide services to a local authority or undertake work on behalf of that authority. For example, a private contractor has been appointed to collect council tax on behalf of the local authority. The ERO for that authority is entitled to access the data held by that contractor regardless of any contractual arrangements.

The ERO should be aware that there may be fees and charges levied by private companies who hold local authority data, particularly where the private company has undertaken work to improve the accuracy of a data set. The ERO should take any potential access costs into consideration when assessing the viability of local data matching.

The Representation of the People Regulations (England & Wales, and Scotland) 2001, as amended state that:
Disclosure of certain local authorities’ records

35A. — (1) A local authority listed in paragraph (2) may disclose to a registration officer information contained in records held by that authority, for any of the purposes mentioned in paragraph 1A(1) of Schedule 2 to the 1983 Act.

(2) The authorities are—

(a) the authority by which the registration officer was appointed; and

(b) where the council by which the registration officer was appointed is a council for a district in a county for which there is a county council, that county council.

(3) A disclosure under paragraph (1) may be made only in accordance with a written agreement between the authority and the registration officer regulating the processing of the information, including its transfer, storage, destruction and security.

(4) Where an authority refuses a request by a registration officer to disclose information under paragraph (1) it must give the registration officer written reasons for its refusal.

Finally, Regulation 35A of the Representation of the People Regulations 2001 (for both England, Wales and Scotland) allows a local authority to disclose information to an ERO which was appointed by that local authority, and also allows a county council to disclose information to an ERO in a district council under that county council. This gives EROs in two-tier authorities access to the same information as an ERO in a unitary authority. There must be a written agreement in place covering how the data will be handled, and a local authority may still refuse to pass over information but must give written reasons for such a refusal.

3. Registering electors who do not have or cannot provide a National Insurance Number

The Representation of the People Regulations 2001 for both England and Wales and Scotland state that:
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Applications for registration

26.—(1) An application for registration as a parliamentary or local government elector (or both) under section 10ZC or an application for alteration in respect of address under section 10ZD of the 1983 Act ("an application") must be in writing and must state—

(f) the applicant’s national insurance number or, if they are not able to provide that information, the reason why they are not able to do so.

Regulation 26 (1) (f) requires applicants to register to vote to supply their National Insurance Number or if they are not able to provide that information a statement of the reason why they are not able to do so.

4. Registering electors who cannot provide a date of birth

The Representation of the People Regulations 2001 (both for England and Wales and Scotland) states that:

Applications for registration

26.—(1) An application for registration as a parliamentary or local government elector (or both) under section 10ZC or an application for alteration in respect of address under section 10ZD of the 1983 Act ("an application") must be in writing and must state—

(e) the applicant’s date of birth or, if they are not able to provide that information, the reason why they are not able to do so and a statement as to whether the applicant is under 18 years old or aged 76 or over;

Regulation 26 (1) (e) requires applicants to register to vote to supply their date of birth. Where an applicant cannot give their date of birth, they must provide the reason why they are not able to do so and a statement as to whether they are under 18 years old or (in England and Wales only) aged 76 or over.

5. The exceptions process

Regulation 26B of the Representation of the People Regulations 2001 states:
Power to request additional evidence where certain information is unavailable or where the registration officer considers it necessary

26B.—(1) This regulation applies where a registration officer considers additional evidence is necessary in order to verify the identity of a person or determine their entitlement to register in respect of their application under section 10ZC or 10ZD of the 1983 Act, including where that is necessary because the person is not able to state the information required by any of subparagraphs (e), (f) or (g) of regulation 26(1).

(2) The registration officer may require that the applicant give them a copy, or where the registration officer considers it appropriate, the original of one of the following documents —

(a) the applicant’s passport;
(b) the applicant’s identity card issued in the European Economic Area;
(c) the applicant’s biometric immigration document issued in the United Kingdom in accordance with regulations made under section 5 of the Borders Act 2007;
(d) the applicant’s electoral identity card issued in Northern Ireland; or
(e) the applicant’s photocard driving licence granted in the United Kingdom or driving licence granted by a Crown Dependency, which bears a photograph of the applicant.

(3) Where an applicant is not able to give one of the documents in paragraph (2), the registration officer may require that the applicant give them a copy, or where the registration officer considers it appropriate, the original, of—

(a) one of the following documents, which, except in relation to paragraph (vii), must have been issued in the United Kingdom or Crown Dependencies—

(i) the applicant’s birth certificate;
(ii) the applicant’s marriage or civil partnership certificate;
(iii) the applicant’s adoption certificate;
(iv) the applicant’s firearms certificate granted under the Firearms Act 1968(xvi);
(v) the record of a decision on bail made in respect of the applicant in accordance with section 5(1) of the Bail Act 1976(xvii);
(vi) the applicant’s driving licence, which is not in the form of a photocard; or
(vii) the applicant’s driving licence granted other than in the United Kingdom or Crown Dependencies, which bears a photograph of the applicant.

applicant and which must be valid for at least 12 months from the date the applicant entered the United Kingdom; and
(b) two other documents, each of which may be either from sub-paragraph
(a) or from paragraph (4).

(4) Where the applicant is not able to give documents in accordance with paragraph (3), the registration officer may require that the applicant give them a copy, or where the registration officer considers it appropriate, the original, of four documents, each of which may be any of the following types of evidence and which must bear the applicant’s full name
(a) financial statement, including but not limited to
(i) a mortgage statement;
(ii) a bank or building society statement or a letter from a bank or building society confirming that the applicant has opened an account with that bank or building society;
(iii) a credit card statement;
(iv) a pension statement;
(b) a council tax demand letter or statement;
(c) a utility bill;
(d) a Form P45 or Form P60 issued to the applicant by their employer or former employer;
(e) a statement of benefits or entitlement to benefits such as a statement of child benefit, within the meaning of section 141 of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, or a letter confirming that the applicant is entitled to housing benefit within the meaning of section 130 of that Act.

Paragraph (1) sets out the circumstances in which the exceptions process should be used.

Paragraphs (2) to (4) cover the types and quantities of documents that can be used to establish the identity of the applicant.

The use of the exceptions process is permissive (however, there are elements of the process that are mandatory); the exceptions process should be undertaken in all cases other than where an application is obviously false (e.g. the applicant has given an address which has clearly been fabricated or does not exist).

6. The attestation process

Regulations 26B of each of the Representation of the People (England and Wales) Regulations 2001 (as amended) state that:
26B(5) If an applicant is unable to give the documentary evidence required under paragraphs (2) to (4) the registration officer may require that the applicant give an attestation as set out in paragraph (6).

(6) An attestation must—

(a) confirm that the applicant is the person named in the application;

(b) state that the person signing the attestation is aware of the penalty for providing false information to a registration officer;

(c) be in writing and signed by a person—

(i) whom the registration officer is satisfied is of good standing in the community;

(ii) who is registered as an elector in a local authority area in England or Wales;

(iii) who is not the spouse, civil partner, parent, grandparent, brother, sister, child or grandchild of the applicant; and

(iv) who has not already signed attestations under this regulation for two applicants since, whichever is the later,—

(aa) the date on which the revised register in which that person’s name appears was last published under section 13(1) of the 1983 Act; or

(bb) the date on which that person was added to the register by a notice of alteration under section 13A(2) of that Act.

(d) state the full name, date of birth, address, electoral number and occupation of the person signing the attestation; and

(e) state the date on which it is made.

Sub-paragraphs (a) and (b) cover the statements that the person making the application (the attestor) must make for the attestation to be valid. Firstly, that the applicant is the person whose name appears on the registration application. Secondly, that the attestor is aware that there is a criminal penalty for providing false information to the ERO.

Sub-paragraph (c), (i) – (iii) defines who may make an attestation in support of an application. The attestor must be a ‘person of good standing in the community’ (a term defined in section 6.1.13 of this guidance), registered as an elector in a local authority area in England and Wales, and not closely related to the applicant.

Sub-paragraph (c) (iv) limits to two the number of attestations one person may sign in any one electoral year (normally from 1 December to 30 November), or in the period since the person was added to the register, whichever period is shorter.
Sub-paragraph (d) lists the information the attestor is required to supply about themselves in order for the attestation to be valid. Sub-paragraph (e) requires the attestation to be dated.

The attestation process in Scotland
Regulation 26B of the Representation of the People (Scotland) Regulations 2001 states that:

26B (5) If an applicant is unable to give the documentary evidence required under paragraphs (2) to (4) the registration officer may require that the applicant give an attestation as set out in paragraph (6).
(6) An attestation must—
(a) confirm that the applicant is the person named in the application;
(b) state that the person signing the attestation is aware of the penalty for providing false information to a registration officer;
(c) be in writing and signed by a person—
(i) whom the registration officer is satisfied is of good standing in the community;
(ii) who is registered as an elector in a local authority area in Scotland;
(iii) who is not the spouse, civil partner, parent, grandparent, brother, sister, child or grandchild of the applicant; and
(iv) who has not already signed attestations under this regulation for two applicants since, whichever is the later of—
(aa) the date on which the revised register in which that person’s name appears was last published under section 13(1) of the 1983 Act; or
(bb) the date on which a notice specifying that person’s entry in the register was issued under (as the case may be) section 13A(2), 13AB(2), 13B or 13BC of that Act (and if there has been more than one such notice, the date on which the last one was issued);
(d) state the full name, date of birth, address, electoral number and occupation of the person signing the attestation; and
(e) state the date on which it is made.

Sub-paragraphs (a) and (b) cover the statements that the person making the application (the attestor) must make for the attestation to be valid. Firstly, that the applicant is the person whose name appears on the registration application. Secondly, that the attestor is aware that there is a criminal penalty for providing false information to the ERO.

Sub-paragraph (c), (i) – (iii) defines who may make an attestation in support of an application. The attestor must be a ‘person of good standing in the community’ (a term defined in section 6.1.13 of this guidance), registered as an elector in a local authority area in Scotland, and not closely related to the applicant.
Sub-paragraph (c) (iv) limits to two the number of attestations one person may sign in any one electoral year (normally from 1 December to 30 November), or in the period since the last notice adding that person’s entry to the register was issued, whichever period is shorter.

Sub-paragraph (d) lists the information the attestor is required to supply about themselves in order for the attestation to be valid. Sub-paragraph (e) requires the attestation to be dated.

8. Special category electors

Schedule 5, Parts 5 and 6 of the Electoral Registration and Administration Act 2013 sets out the point at which provision of personal identifiers of special category electors was required for renewal.

PART 5
PERSONS WITH EXISTING REGISTRATIONS BY VIRTUE OF DECLARATIONS ETC

20.
(1) In this Part of this Schedule “relevant person” means a person who falls within sub-paragraph (2) or (3).

(2) A person falls within this sub-paragraph if the person—

(a) is for the time being registered in a register in pursuance of a declaration of local connection, a service declaration or an overseas elector’s declaration, and
(b) has been registered in pursuance of a declaration of that kind since immediately before the commencement date.

(3) A person falls within this sub-paragraph if the person—

(a) has for the time being an anonymous entry in a register, and
(b) has had such an entry since immediately before the commencement date.

Relevant person’s first renewal of registration after 3-month transitional period: successful new application required

(1) On the first occasion after the transitional period on which a relevant person’s entry in a register comes up for renewal, the person is not entitled to remain registered unless the person has made a successful new application for registration (in addition to complying with any other requirements).

(2) “Transitional period” means the period of 3 months beginning with the commencement date.

(3) For the purposes of this paragraph, a relevant person's entry in a register comes up for renewal when an event mentioned in the applicable provision occurs in relation to that entry.

(4) “The applicable provision” means—

(a) section 7C(2) or 15(2) of the Representation of the People Act 1983 or section 2(2) of the Representation of the People Act 1985, or

(b) section 9C(1) of the Representation of the People Act 1983;

(as applicable).

Paragraph 20(1) to (3) defines the types of electors to whom these rules apply (Overseas, Crown Servants, armed forces voters, Anonymous, and Declarations of Local Connection).

21 (1) states that any special category elector whose application is due for renewal after the transition period and who does not make a new application to register (by supplying personal identifiers in the first instance) cannot remain registered to vote.

21 (2) defines the transition period as being three months from the start of IER.

Now that over 15 months have passed since the introduction of IER, the only special category electors whose application will not have been due for renewal and who hence may not be IER-registered are any armed forces electors whose applications have not yet been due for renewal.

Regulation 26B of the Representation of the People Regulations 2001 for both England and Wales, and Scotland governs the exceptions/attestation process for some types of special category electors who cannot provide personal identifiers:

26B (7) Paragraphs (2) to (6) do not apply where the application is made pursuant to the following declarations—

(a) a service declaration on the grounds that the applicant is a Crown servant (within the meaning of regulation 14) or the spouse or civil partner of a Crown servant (within the meaning of regulation 14);

(b) a service declaration on the grounds that the applicant is a member of the forces (within the meaning of section 59(1) of the 1983 Act); or (c) a service declaration on the grounds that the applicant is the spouse or civil partner of a member of the forces (within the meaning of section 59(1) of the 1983 Act); or
(d) an overseas elector’s declaration.

(8) In the case of an application in pursuance of a declaration within paragraph (7)(a) or (c), the registration officer may require that the applicant give them a copy, or where the registration officer considers it appropriate, the original, of one of the following documents, which has been certified by a Crown servant (within the meaning of regulation 14) or British Council employee or an officer of the forces (within the meaning of section 59(1) of the 1983 Act) who is not the applicant’s spouse or civil partner—

(a) the applicant’s passport; or
(b) the applicant’s identity card issued in the European Economic Area.

(9) In the case of an application within paragraph (7)(b) and, the registration officer may require that the applicant give an attestation which must—

(a) confirm that the applicant is the person named in the application;
(b) be in writing and signed by an officer of the forces (within the meaning of section 59(1) of the 1983 Act) who is not the spouse, civil partner, parent, grandparent, brother, sister, child or grandchild of the applicant;
(c) state the full name, address and rank of the person signing the attestation and the service (whether naval, military or air forces) in which they serve; and
(d) state the date on which it is made.

(10) In the case of an application in pursuance of a declaration within paragraph (7)(d) the registration officer may require that the applicant give an attestation which must—

(a) confirm that the applicant is the person named in the application;
(b) be in writing and signed by a registered elector who is a British citizen living overseas and who is not the spouse, civil partner, parent, grandparent, brother, sister, child or grandchild of the applicant;
(c) state the full name, address and occupation of the person signing the attestation;
(d) state the attestor’s British passport number together with its date and place of issue; and
(e) state the date on which it is made.

Paragraph (7) defines which special category electors the regulation applies to.
These are Crown Servants, employees of the British Council and their spouses/civil partners, members of the armed forces, spouses/civil partners of members of the armed forces, and overseas electors/applicants.
Part 4: Maintaining the register throughout year

Paragraph (8) sets out the exceptions process that applies to Crown Servants and spouses of Crown Servants (see section 8.1.6).

Paragraph (9) sets out the attestation process for members of the armed forces and spouses of members of the armed forces (see section 8.1.10).

Paragraph (10) sets out the attestation process for overseas electors/applicants (see section 8.1.16).

Anonymous electors and persons registered under a declaration of local connection are not covered by these regulations – people who want to be registered as one of these types of special category elector must follow the same exceptions/attestation process as ordinary applicants (see sections 5 and 6).

9. Amendments to existing entries – change of name

The Representation of the People Act 1983 (as amended by the Electoral Registration and Administration Act 2013) states that:

(1) A registration officer in Great Britain must alter the name or address in respect of which a person (“P”) is registered in a register maintained by the officer if—
   (a) an application for alteration is made by someone who appears to the officer to be P,
   (b) any requirements imposed by or under this Act in relation to the application are met, and
   (c) P appears to the officer to be entitled to be registered in the register in respect of the new name or the new address (as the case may be).

(2) In determining an application under this section, the officer must consider any objection made in accordance with the prescribed requirements by another person whose name appears in the register.

(3) Regulations may make provision about the procedure for determining applications under this section.

This means that someone who is registered to vote who wants to change their name on the register can do so providing they follow the procedure outlined in the regulations.

The Representation of the People (England and Wales, and Scotland) Regulations 2001 (as amended) state that:

Application for alteration of register in respect of name under section 10ZD

26A (4) A person making an application for alteration in respect of name under paragraph (1) must give to the registration officer as part of their application documentary evidence of the applicant’s change of name

(5) Where a person is unable to provide any documentary evidence, they must provide their date of birth and national insurance number as part of their application or, if they are not able to provide their date of birth or national insurance number, the reason why they are unable to do so.
(6) Where the registration officer considers it appropriate, the officer may require that the applicant require the original of any copy document provided under paragraph (4) after the application has been made.

This means that someone who is registered to vote who wants to change their name on the register must supply evidence of the change of name to the ERO or a person appointed by them to receive such information (Electoral Services staff, for example). It also means that if someone who is registered to vote wishes to change their name but cannot provide sufficient documentary evidence, they can in effect make a new application.
Is the electoral register information for this property correct?

Dear Occupier(s)

We need to make sure that our electoral register records are correct. Being registered to vote gives you the right to participate at elections and could improve your credit rating.

The following people are currently registered to vote at your address:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>INDIVIDUAL</th>
<th>DATE OF 18th BIRTHDAY [In Scotland: ‘16th birthday’ (but you will not be able to vote in UK Parliamentary or European Parliamentary elections until you are 18] (if applicable)</th>

Frequently Asked Questions

Someone in my household isn’t registered, what should I do?
Everyone is responsible for registering themselves. Anyone whose name is not included in this letter should go to www.gov.uk/register-to-vote to register. We can also provide paper application forms on request.

I have already told the council I live here and I have voted in the past – why am I not registered?
Even if you have registered for council tax or council services, this does not automatically register you to vote. If your name is not included in this letter, then you are not registered. You should go to www.gov.uk/register-to-vote to register. We can also provide paper application forms on request.

What elections are happening in my area?
[add name and date of next scheduled elections].
If you are entitled to vote at the election, you will receive a poll card with more information in [add month poll cards are likely to be issued].

You will also receive information on any other elections that may be happening on the same day and at which you can vote.

Will I be able to vote at the [add name of election] on [add date]?
You need to be included on the electoral register in order to vote.

[add poll specific information on the franchise and age requirements. For example, for a UK Parliamentary election: “While you can register to vote before you turn 18, you have to be 18 or older on election day in order to vote. To vote at a UK Parliamentary election you also have to be British, Irish or a national of a qualifying Commonwealth country. EU nationals (other than those who are British, Irish or Commonwealth) cannot vote at UK Parliamentary elections, but they can register to vote at local and certain other elections]
