May 2022 elections: public awareness update

New resources are now available to help you raise public awareness of the upcoming elections, registration deadlines and different ways to vote. These include social media graphics, posters, social media post templates, short animations and more.

Voter registration

As the registration deadline approaches, we know you'll be continuing to work hard to ensure as many people as possible are registered to vote so they can take part. We'll once again be running our 'Got 5?' voter registration campaign encouraging people to use the five spare minutes they have to register to vote.

We have made available a range of voter registration resources which promote the registration deadline (14 April in Wales).

Voter information

We have once again also made available voter information resources which include messaging on polling station opening times, tellers, support at polling stations and postal and proxy voting. They are designed to help you communicate the essential information voters need in order to cast their vote with confidence in the upcoming elections.

May 2022 elections: post-election data collection

As you know, at each set of elections, the Commission collects key administrative data from Electoral Registration Officers and Returning Officers. This data provides important evidence to support our work in reporting on elections across the UK.

What data are we going to collect?

We have now published a list of the core data that we will collect after each set of elections. We hope that this helps to provide you with early clarity as to the data that we will be looking for and will support you with putting arrangements in place as necessary to collect and collate it. This list will apply for the May 2022 elections, and we have highlighted where it differs from what we collected after the May 2021 polls.

In future, we only intend to vary this list in response to specific issues arising at a poll or in response to significant changes in administrative processes. If there are additional changes or bespoke fields we need to collect for a specific election, we will highlight these to you through a Bulletin and make it clear what has changed.

We will update you in a future Bulletin when the data collection for the May 2022 polls is open, and will confirm the deadlines for submission at that time.

If you have any questions about the data collection, please contact research@electoralcommission.org.uk
