Electoral registration: additional template HEF letters and envelopes

In Bulletin 208, we shared the results of the project we carried out with Hull and Hackney Councils and the Behavioural Insights Team (BIT) which aimed to increase response rates to the HEF during the 2017 annual canvass.

Further to this, we can now confirm we will provide EROs with additional template versions of the HEF letters and envelopes which reflect the learning from the trial.

The additional templates will include:

- a modified HEF letter ('Easy' messaging) – a simplified call to action highlighting the online return method
- a modified HEF letter ('Cost' messaging) – highlighting the cost of non-compliance and framing the amount in terms of another council expense
- a modified HEF letter ('Hassle' messaging) – making future hassle of failing to complete the form more prominent
- a modified envelope – making it clear the letter requires a response by adding 'Do not ignore this envelope. If you live here you need to respond to this letter' to the front of the envelope

These additional templates will be made available on our website by the end of May. We will confirm in a future Bulletin as soon as they are available.

We appreciate that some of you will already be well advanced in your planning for this year's canvass and so this timing is not ideal, but we nevertheless wanted to make the additional templates available and share the learning from the trial in a practical way as quickly as we can. The existing templates will, however, remain available and can still be used. It will be for you as ERO to decide which templates, if any, you want to use based on your own local

National Democracy Week Awards – nominations now open

Do you know any individuals or organisations in the UK that are working hard to engage people in our democracy? If you do, make sure you nominate them for a Democracy Award.

Democracy work, particularly with underrepresented groups, has the potential to help people understand their democratic rights and make their voices heard. This service is not always recognised, but these awards are an opportunity to acknowledge the outstanding contributions that so many have made.

There are four award categories:

- Young Advocate of the Year Award
- Diversity Champion of the Year Award
- Changemaker of the Year Award
- Collaboration of the Year Award

The deadline for nominations is 27 May and the awards ceremony will take place during National Democracy Week. You can find further information about the National Democracy Week Awards and submit your nominations here.

Please keep us informed of any staff changes within your team. This will help us to keep our mailing lists up-to-date.

Electoral Commission response to the National Assembly for Wales consultation on electoral reform

In February the Assembly Commission launched its consultation 'Creating a Parliament for Wales' which asked for views on how the electoral, operational and internal arrangements of the National Assembly for Wales could be changed. This included questions around franchise, voting systems and electoral law.

Our focus is to ensure that any changes made to modify and reform electoral arrangements are adequately resourced to ensure that they can be implemented in the best interest of voters.

We responded to the consultation on 13 April 2013 and our full response can be found here.
