The Independent reported Sunday. The visit will take place in late April, about two months before the referendum of June 23, during which the British will vote on the membership of their country in block 25, the newspaper said. The official program of the US president plans at this time a trip to Germany, where he will meet the Chancellor Angela Merkel and participate in the gigantic trade fair in Hannover. Questioned by AFP about his possible arrival in London, a spokesman for British Prime Minister David Cameron has refused to comment, citing speculation. In late February, Obama reaffirmed during a telephone conversation with David Cameron, the support of the United States towards a UK integral part of the European Union. The hypothesis to visit the US president give a boost to Cameron and camp maintenance in the EU has, angered supporters of Brexit and a petition to the Parliament to prevent Obama to speak at Westminster on the referendum Sunday had collected over 18,000 signatures. The people in the country have had enough of American presidents who debased our foreign policy, lambasted Jack Montgomery, spokesperson of the pro-Brexit Leave.eu movement. In a statement to AFP, Obama does not want to an organization like the EU to the US, he said. He does not feel justified to say the United Kingdom to accept such a situation in Europe? A little over three months the referendum, polls show that the vote will be close. Stay in the EU would reap 57% of the vote from 49% to an average realized by the whatpolls.org site, but about 25% of the population remains undecided. (© AFP / March 13, 2016 13:15)
